HE WAS ABSENT-MINDED.

The things Hixon does during his frequent attacks of absent-mindedness are of a character that gives his friends grave fears regarding his lunacy. The other day he came out of his house, walked to the edge of the pavement. threw his right leg into the air with a vaulting movement and fell sprawling to the ground.

A friend who came along in time to witness this singular performance said to

"Why, Hixon, what in time do you mean by such a performance?"

Hixon got up, brushing the dirt from his garments, and rubbing his bruises, while he said:

THE TAILOR'S CROSS. (From the Youth's Companion.)

There is a story of an envious tailor current with the French peasantry. He fancied that his neighbor, who received a pension for the loss of an arm incurred while fighting for his country, was better off than himself. Both men went to pay their rent on the same day.

"That's a lucky man," said the tailor to the landlord. "He gets well paid for his arm."

"But who would be willing to part with an arm, even if he were paid for it?" said the landlord.

"I would." declared the tailor. "You!" cried the landlord. "Why, man you wouldn't be willing to bear anything of the sort, no matter now much you were paid for it."

"I wish some one would try me."

"Now, see here," said the landlord, who had studied human nature. "I'll tell you what, if you'll wear even so much as a chalk-mark on your back I'll remit your rent as long as you wear it on your coat so it can be seen, the condition being that you tell no one why it is there."

"Agreed," said the tailor, eagerly. "That's an easy way to pay rent!"

So the chalk-mark in the form of cross was made on the back of his coat, and the delighted tailor sallied forth upon

Strangers and acquaintances bailed him to tell him of the mark on his back. Jokes were made at his expense, children laughed and pointed at him, and his wife in Central prison. Sheldon has spent annoyed him with questions, and with conjugal familiarity told him he was a fool. The usually amiable man grew surly and morose; he shunned men, women and children, and frequented back streets. Before the week was up the tailor found himself embroiled in a quarrel with his best friend, his wife had threatened to leave his house, and he considered

Finally, one night he took off his coat and rubbed out the chalk-mark and said: "There! I would not wear that cross on my back another week, no, not if I could have all the money there is in Paris!"

JUL'S ANODYNE LINIMENT.

Some twelve years ago Mrs. Elizabeth Gilhula, wife of the postmaster of Buxton, Ont., was taken ill with an obscure stomach trouble which her physicians pronounced cancer of the stomach and informed her that her lease of life would be short. On the advice of friends she commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters. The results that followed were little short of marvellous. Her strength and vigor returned and in a short time she was completely cured. Mrs. Gilhula is to-day in the full enjoyment of good health, and in all these years there has not been the slightest return of the trouble. Here is the letter Mrs. Gilhula wrote at the time of her cure: "About four years ago I was taken sick with stomach trouble and consulted several of the leading physicians here, all of whom pronounced the disease to be cancer of the stomach of an incurable nature, and told me that it was hardly to be expected that I could live long. Afterward the two doctors who were attending me gave me up to die.

"By the advice of some of my friends, who knew of the virtues of Burdock Blood Bitters, I was induced to try it, and I am now happy to say that after using part of the first bottle I felt so much better I was able to get up. I am thankful to state that I am completely cured of the disease by the use of B. B. B., although it had baffled the doctors for a lamp time.

Here is the letter received from her a short

A GALLANT YOUNG MAN.

WHO MADE FRIENDS WITH A CHARMING BOSTON YOUNG LADY.

A really good joke is being told at the expense of a city young man, a public official, and who considers himself quite "masher" and who has the reputation of being quite a ladies' man. The story goes that this gentleman while spending part of his vacation at Boston was particularly attentive to a very pretty and most charming young lady, who was, with him a passenger on the street cars one evening. The lady was a perfect stranger to our young townsman, but that did not abash him in his attentions and when she alighted from the car he, too, got off and asked to be permitted to assist with the parcels she was carrying and to accompany her home, to which propositions the young lady smilingly assented. Some of the gentleman friends of the young man were quite envious of him as he walked off with his fair companion and looking over his shoulder knowingly "winked the other eye." As a matter of course the gallant made himself particularly agreeable upon the walk of a block or two until a handsome stone residence, which the young lady announced was her home, was reached and it was with great delight that our friend ascended the steps leading to the massive front doorway and politely opened the door for the young lady, and doffing his hat politely awaited the invitation in. The young lady called a servant and relieving her escort of the parcels, politely thanked him and then gave him-ten cents and "good-night."-Fredericton Gleaner.

DUEL ENDS IN DEATH VIENNA, Oct. 19.—Colonel Schneider, the former Austrian military attache at Paris, whose name has been prominently connected with the alleged treason of former Captain Alfred Dreyfus, of the French army, and who, it is generally understood, fought a duel about Oct. 13 with Capt. Cuignet, of the French army, as a result of statements made by the captain at the Rennes court martial, is dead. A despatch from Paris, October 13, said that a representative of the Intransigeant, the newspaper edited by Mr. Henri Rochefort, asserted that while seeing a friend off on the Orient express the evening before, he observed Colonel Schneider being car ried to the train, accompanied by physicians and with blood flowing from a wound in his side. The colonel is said to have at the time recently returned from Switzerland to fight a duel with Captain Cuignet on account of his evidence regarding me before the Rennes court martial. While testifying at the court martial Captain Cuignet referred to the despatch of Colonel Schneider, denouncing as a forgery a letter said to have been written by the colonel, in which he was represented as alluding to efforts made by the Italian and German military attaches, Colonel Schwartzkoppen and Major Panizzardi, to conceal their alleged relations with Dreyfus. Captain Cuignet ridiculed this allegation of forgery, and declared that if Colonel Schneider persisted in his attitude that the French general staff was in a position to prove beyond dispute the authenticity of the letter which Colonel Sch. neider repudiated. The captain added "The author of the letter, I know, is of

A BABY SACRIFICED TO THE FAITH CURE.

BERWICK, Kings Co., Oct. 20 - Much comment of condemnatory nature is rife upon the matter of the death of a child at the head of Millstream. A physician had been called and had perscribed. At a subsequent call he was surprised that his active in their work of flittering the blood, | medicine had not produced the result expected. Upon enquiry he was told by the parents that the medicine had been discontinued, that they had concluded to leave the child in the Lord's hands. This course was adopted as the result of the teaching of a small religious company in the community whose members profess a high type of holiness. They abandoned the use of material means and resorted wholly to prayer. The child died; and the rational mind decides that had the proper means been used life might have been

SHE WANTS REVENGE.

AND WOULD SEND BROTHER TO THE GAL-

PARIS, Mo., Oct. 20 .- Mrs. Cornelia Street, who caused the arrest of her brother, Alexander Jester, eighty years old. for the murder of her sweetheart, Gilbert W. Gates nearly thirty years ago, and has sworn to bring that brother to the gallows is deeply chagrined over the refusal of the counsel for the State to have her cal!ed as a witness against Jester in his trial now in progress here.

The State's counsel takes the ground that a sister who would betray her brother would not give unprejudiced testimony. For years Mrs. Street cherished her vow of revenge against her brother. After she had succeeded in having him arrested she said:

"It is my highest ambition to see my brother brought to the gallows. He murdered my affianced lover in cold blood and then robbed his dead body. That was nearly thirty years ago.

'My brother, when he heard of my engagement and that I was to be married within a week, killed the man who was to marry me and forced me to wed a friend of his own. For this I resolve to get revenge and will do all in my power to send him to the gallows.'

Early in 1871 Alexander Jester and Gilbert W. Gates were travelling overland in Missouri, Jester having induced Gates to take the journey. They camped near Warrensburg one night and Jester murdered Gates, robbed the body burned it and fled. He was arrested, tried and sentenced to be hanged, but he escaped.

He was hunted many years, but was not found. He took the name of W. H. Hills, settled near Shawnee, Kansas, amassed wealth, built a fine house, and was highly respected by all who knew

Mrs. Street learned where he was and in June informed the authorities where he could be found. The old man said when he was arrested. "I have been expecting this. It is the work of that devil sister of mine." The 'devil sister' only smiled and said: "I guess that's right. I just did it so you would not forget." Gates, the murdered man, was a brother of John W. Gates, for many years president af the Illinois Steel Company. On the Gates family monument, in Oakwood Cemetry, West Chicago, is this inscrip-

"Some time ago I was attacked with very severe rheumatic pains. My joints swelled and stiffened. I had to be turned in bed on a blanket. I had best doctors and best nurses, but could not get relief. Death would have been welcome. A friend called and recommended South American Rheumatic Cure. I procured it and in twenty-four hours after taking it there was a wonderful change. I was able to get out of my bed into a chair without assistance. I have continued using it, and although 88 years of age, do not feel within twenty years of it.
