RULE PRESENT POTENTIAL. BY JESSIE MACGREGOR.

(From the National Advocate.) Here's a thought for you, for me-

When an evil thing we see, When unrighteous rulings trip us, When degrading customs grip us, Since the time for action's come-Hear, ye deaf, and speak, ye dumb-This the rule for me, for you: Do as Jesus Christ would do.

Influence that sinks? or saves? Hark, O Nation! God hath spoken, What response? and what thy token? Sea is calling unto sea: "Be the power that Christ would be." This our land's reveille note: "Vote as Jesus Christ would vote."

Do we send th' exulting waves

Jesus left his chosen few, Giving them his work to do. See these thrones where virtues languish, Lucre heaped o'er awful anguish; Evil men, usurpers, use, Fill, or silence whom they choose! Would these hold their sovereign sway Were the master here to day?

Are we His? Have we no power Now in this, His Spirit's hour? Hold we His commission, given At the open door of heaven? Filled with power, for us created, Where the "greater deeds" that waited? Are we doing, have we stood As the Master meant we should? This the rule for me, for you: "Do as Jesus Christ would do."

GO AT THE ENEMY.

It is not a shame and disgrace that in any civilized Christian community laws are made and guarded safely on the statute books, and vet the liquor interests throughout the country are able to laugh these laws to scorn and to say to other interests:

"Observe these laws as you will." "We, the liquor dealers, are above

And yet say what we will, this is the case in many places.

It is danger for the whole nation. What are we coming to? we may well ask in wonderment. Is it not true to-day in free America, in the country of liberty par excellence, that a candidate for public office and public favor is compelled if he wishes to succeed, to come and worship at the shrine of vile whiskey and vile wine. Is it not true that members of our legislators confess that they ought to vote for laws for suppressing the liquor traffic and to vote for the enforcemens of such laws when passed, and yet in veriest shame say that they cannot endanger their poli. tical prospects?

They know that when they turn from the halls of legislation to their constituents they would have united against them the liquor interests and that their political fate would be sealed.

They care not for you; they say they are your masters.

Ten just men would have saved Sodom from destruction; a few hundred zealous moral heroes in America will save the nation.

And why? Because a soul on fire spreads abroad

the sacred contagion of fire. Go at the enemy.

cannon, if you like, but hit him. ARCHBISHOP JOHN IRELAND.

THE ILLS OF INTEMPERANCE. BY VIOLA MASON, BOSTON, MASS.

(From the Hants Journal ) It has been said that seventy-five per cent, of the crimes committed are caused by strong drink: it also causes insanity. and the majority of worthless youths emerge from drunkard's bomes. Is this not a startling report? Should we not endeavor to lessen those evils? The man who is a slave to drink-suffers not alone. Let us enter the drunkards home. Here we find a sad, care-worn mother, whose face bears deep traces of sorrow and suffering; the little children you notice are poorly clad, and their pinched faces show that they have suffered from hunger. Where is the money that should support his family? In the rumseller's pocket; he sells the tender mother's tears and the little children's bread. If men would keep out of the demon's snare there would be thousands more of happy homes, less dread, less sorrow. The serpeut lurks in D. 1899. the poisonous glass, shun it as you would your most deadly enemy, for such it is.

is self. Oh! that they might rule their desires, and resist the evil, for better is he that ruleth his own spirit than he that taketh a city. How easy it is to tread the downward path! One first glass, one wrong step and you have started in that direction. We frequently hear men assert that a glass now and then is not injurious, that they can do without just as well, then why not do so? It is not an easy task to break off this dangerous habit; be- | From the News, Truro, N. S. sides the injury to yourself think of your influence upon others. Someone will take you for example, and begin to indulge just as you have done, the more he drinks, the more he wants, and alas! that man becomes a drunkard. Was it not your influence that brought him to this state? Let us ever try to use our influence for good. When we see a person in actual danger do we not hasten to render assistance? The greatest danger in our land which affects mankind is the rumshop. Let us help to stamp out the awful, consequences. Liquor destroys both body and soul, it is the curse of our land, fight against it, stand up for right and temperance. Young men, we need your useful services in this work, you can be so noble, so brave and true, drink will make you so low, degraded and miserable. Choose the higher, learn to say no when temptation is near, reform those fallen brothers who need your help, those who having fallen, have not courage to go forward, give them an encouraging word, a helping hand. The withering plant uprooted by the wayside, will with care once more become green and flourishing, and ere long bear flowers of sweetness and beauty. God prosper the temperance people wherever they may be, and may the time come when the land shall be free of rumshops, and consequently the crime and sorrow of which they are the cause.

Every person can be king over one, that

A Trying Experience.

A NOVA SCOTIA FARMER SUFFERED FOR FIFTEEN YEARS.

Consulted Four Doctors, But the Only Relief They Gave Him Was Through Injections of Morphine-Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored Him to Health and Activity.

Mr. Robert Wright, of Alton, Colchester Co. N. S., is now one of the hardiest and hardest working farmers in this section. But Mr. Wright was not always blessed with perfect health; as a matter of fact for some fifteen years he was a martyr te what appeared to be an incurable trouble. In conversation lately with an News reporter, Mr. Wright said:-"I am indeed grateful that the trouble which bothered me for so many years is gone, and I am quite willing to give you the particulars for publication. It is a good many years since my trouble first began, slight at first, but later intensely severe pains in the back. Usually the pains attacked me when working or lifting, but often when not at work at all. With every attack the pains seemed to grow worse, until finally I was confined to the house, and there for five long months was bed ridden, and much of this time could not move with out help. My wife required to stay with me constantly, and became nearly ex-

During the time I was suffering thus I was attended by four different doctors. Some of them pronounced my trouble lumbago, others sciatica, but they did not cure me, nor did they give me any relief, save by the injection of morphine. For years I suffered thus, sometimes confined to bed, at other times able to go about and work, but always suffering from the pain, until about three years ago when I received a new lease of life, and a freedom from the pains that had so long tortured me. It was at this time that Dr. Wilbrought to my attention and I got two boxes. The effect seemed marvellous and I got six boxes more, and before they were all used I was again a healthy man and free from pain. It is about three years since I was cured, and during that time I have never had an attack of the old trouble, and I can therefore strongly tes tity to the sterling quality of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Since they did such good work for me I have recommended them to several people for various ail ments, and the pills have always been suc-

FIGHT OVER WIFE'S MIND.

YOUNG COURTNEY SAYS MISS CUTTING WAS

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 .- The fight between Harold Courtenay, of England and Francis cutting, the millionaire fruit packer, of San Francisco, his father-in-law. began in this city a year ago, when Cutting began suit against his son-in-law for $17,500 for money alleged to have been spent on his daughter since her marriage, has been fiercely renewed in San Fran Young Courtenay has gone there and assumed the aggressive. He sues his father-in-law for $50,000 damage, on the novel ground that the old man arranged a marriage between him and Miss Isabella Cutting, knowing her to be of unsound mind and anxious to get rid of her.

The marriage took place in New York on Dec. 31, 1891. Courtenay now declares that the young woman had been in a private sanitarium for two years, by skilful treatment a semblance of a cure has been secured.

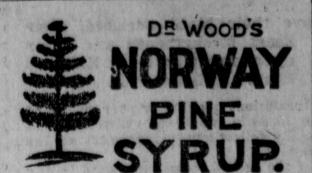

After the marriage they sailed for Gen oa. A passenger very much resembling Courtenay jumped overboard and was drowned. The bride saw the act, sup posed it was her husband, and at once became violently insane.

She bit her husband many times. She stabbed him with a scissors. She hit him on the head with a knife. He scarce dared to sleep lest she murder him,

On reaching Italy she was placed in an asvlum. Mr. Courtenay swears that subsequently her father had her removed to England, keeping her whereabouts unknown to him. Her cousin, Miss Patterson was made her guardia:, and took her to the Isle of Wight and afterward brought her to that city, where Justice Lawrence, of the Supreme Court, appointed a commission in lunacy to examine her.

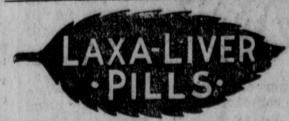

At the time of her marriage the father set aside a certain block of railway stock for her, and guaranted the interest. The $17,500 he claimed was for disbursements she had made above this sum.

Courtenay belongs to the house of Courtenay, the head of which is the Duke of Devon. He will not consent to a suit of divorce, but he says the father must pay for the mental anguish he has caused him to suffer by knowingly letting him wed a daughter of unsound mind.

CURES COUGHS AND COLDS.

Dangerous Hair Ornaments. Women cannot be too careful in selecting combs for the purpose of wearing in their hair. Imitation tortoise combs are highly dangerous from the fact that they are combustible and have been known to explode when exposed near a fire, gas jet or lamp.

It is not very difficult to tell the difference between an imitation and a real tortoise comb. The former is generally very clear, and the places between the teeth are finished off square. On the other hand, real tortoise combs are somewhat cloudy, but very highly polished, and the spaces between the teeth are carefully rounded. They are made entirely by hand, while the imitations are molded

When a woman thrusts a little tortoise shell ornament through her hair, she little dreams of the number of hands through which it has passed. The finest tortoise shells in the world come from the West Indies and the next from the coast of Africa. At one time it was thought necessary to kill the tortoise for the purpose of getting the shells, but now they are plucked from the animal just as feathers are from a goose, and in the course of a year the tortoise is capable of growing another

By blending light and dark shells together the expert is able to produce almost any shade he wishes. Having been carefully prepared, the shell is constantly steamed to prevent it becoming crisp, and when pliable it is immediately molded by hand into the shape desired. - Exchange.

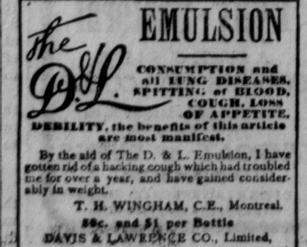

The Borrowing Nuisance.

Many good housewives suffer terribly from a borrowing neighbor—the sort of person whom we have all met-who, rather than employ her ample means for providing necessaries for domestic use, is continually troubling her more sensible neighbors for the loan of a couple of eggs, a cake of soap, a fish kettle, flatiron or preserving pan. Habitual borrowers are liable to forget to return such articles, and the lender feels naturally diffident about asking for them. Go without any article you want rather than borrow it, or if it is an absolute necessity make up your mind to buy one at once. You will then have it always at hand and will feel under no obligation to your neighbor; neither will you have the responsibility as to its safety while in your possession. If dire necessity, such as sudden illness, renders borrowing indispensable, see that the article that is lent is punctually returned in exquisitely clean and good condition. Should it take the form of a comestible, see that the quality is as good and the quantity the same, or rather in excess. Unless you hear to the contrary, even so slight a loan as a newspaper should be returned as soon as read, for you can never tell whether your friend may wish to file it or send it on to some one else. When books are borrowed, they should be at once covered and never defaced by the turning down of a page, so common a trick of most readers. The gist of the whole matter is this-never lend or borrow.—Buffalo Express.

When Most Girls Marry.

For the comfort of the American women of marriageable age it may be stated that their prospects are much better than those of women in the older countries. According to an authoritative statistician, there are in the United States as a whole 965 women to every 1,000 men, while in all Europe there are 1,019 women to every 1,000 men The proportion in the different European states is, however, variable. A woman's prospect of marriage is distinctly affected by age. The statistics of all countries show that the great majority of women marry between the ages of 20 and 30. Before reaching 20 a woman has, of course, a chance of matrimony, but the objections raised by parents or friends to marriage at a tender age frequently outweigh the desire of the young woman to acquire a husband and lead her to defer the wedding day. All the statistics that have been gathered in the United States bear out the statement that a woman's best chance to marry is at the age of 25, that over six-tenths of the marriages take place between 20 and 30, and consequently that a woman's chance increases up to 25 and steadily decreases after that age until it reaches the vanishing point somewhere about 60.—Professor D. R. Mc-Anally in Ladies' Home Journal.

KILLED BY A FALLING TREE. (Fredericton Gleaner.)

A telegraphic message was received here on Saturday evening announcing the death in the lumber woods of Mr. William Holder. The message was from Mr. J. A. Morrison, who is now at the scene of his lumbering operations on the headquarters of the St. John River. and stated that William Holder was killed at Seven Islands, Me., on last Thursday by a falling tree. There being no means of conveying the body out of the woods until the snow falls, the men who go in having to tramp fifteen miles, the body was interred at the camp where the fatality occurred.

Mr. Holder was about forty-five years of age and left here last fall to lumber for J. A. Morrison. His home is on Government Lane, and he leaves a widow who is prostrated by the sad and sudden blow which has fallen upon her.
