

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE FAILED TO CURE.

THE WIFE OF COLONEL RIVERS DIED, AND A DOCTOR SAID DEATH WAS FROM NEGLECT.

Boston, Mass., March 16.—The death of the wife of Colonel Charles C. Rivers, assistant surveyor of the port of Boston, at the family residence, in Chelsea, last Saturday, has resulted in a series of events which will probably bring for trial in courts of this Commonwealth the question of the legal status of the practitioners of Christian Science as a remedial agency for the physical ailments of mankind.

The case has already been referred to the District Attorney through the absolute refusal of the medical practitioner who was called into the case to sign the death certificate and by the action of Assistant Medical Examiner Steadman in signing the certificate with the cause of death given as "Neglected."

The social prominence of Mrs. Rivers will perhaps give the case exceptional notoriety. She was one of the brightest of the society women of Chelsea, and was formerly a vice-president of the Chelsea Women's Club.

Mrs. Rivers was a devotee of Christian Science. She had been for years a sufferer from heart disease, and had lately been telling her friends how much she had benefited by Christian Science practitioners. Last Thursday afternoon about two o'clock Mrs. Rivers, while alone in her apartments, was stricken with paralysis. When the Colonel arrived there four hours later he found his wife prostrate on the floor.

Dr. E. E. Hawes was called. The doctor diagnosed the case as paralysis, and applied the usual remedies. Dr. Hawes said on his second visit that his patient was doing well and had an even chance of recovery. Next morning he was discharged and was not called again until Saturday morning, when Mrs. Rivers was in a dying condition.

After his refusal to sign the death certificate the medical examiner wrote "Neglected" on the death certificate and notified the District Attorney.

The Christian Science "healer," who was called at the request of Mrs. Rivers, was Mrs. Aldon G. Alley, wife of the Registrar of Votes. Every effort was made to keep the matter quiet, but the facts gradually spread through the city. Colonel Rivers is still in Thomaston, Me., where he went for the interment. Mrs. Alley was away to-night, but her husband said that the case was doing well under her treatment until she was called away, when a second attack occurred, which resulted fatally.

CASTILLIAN WRECK.

HALIFAX, N. S. March 20.—The examination into the loss of the Castilian was commenced this morning at Yarmouth before Commander Spain, Capt. Douglas and Captain J. E. Murphy. Richard Stroud, seaman, who was on the lookout in the crow's nest, testified to seeing something white off the starboard bow at 3.38 a. m., which he reported by calling to the bridge, but got no answer, as it turned out, because they had seen it, too. William Reave, the quartermaster, who was steering at the time of the accident, testified as to the courses given him.

Duncan McAffer, the first officer, who was in charge of the watch, described the course steered and detailed all circumstances up to the striking. He had been on the Allan line for thirty years, and for fifteen years had sailed the winter passage made this trip, during the winter considered the course a perfectly safe one. He considered the accident due to a northerly set of the current beyond what was laid down. The second and fourth officers and carpenter also testified.

The most important point so far made is that when the first sounding was taken at 1 a. m., the ship had run 135 miles and the sounding showed 62 fathoms which was not the sounding they should have had, according to the chart, if they had been on their correct course. The ship ran full speed from that time till she struck at 3.40 a. m.

The court resumes to-morrow, when the captain will be heard.

BRITAIN'S SAILOR PRINCE.

The Duke of York is the only member of the Royal Family who can dance a genuine sailor's hornpipe. He learned the steps when he was a young cadet. The story is told now he and his brother, the late Duke of Clarence, were frequently caught together and whilst the latter whistled Prince George would trip it. The Duke, too, is a perfect adept at tying the various sailor's knots with a rope, and would come out very well in a competition with an old hand.

FIVE CHILDREN SUFFOCATED.

WINNIPEG, Mar. 21.—Sunday night at a German colony near Greenfield, five children were suffocated. John Draw and wife went to visit a neighbor half a mile away, leaving six children home, the oldest a boy of 9. During their absence the sod roof caught fire. The children went to bed so they might not see it, and when the parents returned all but the eldest boy were dead from the effects of the smoke.

HATS OFF IN CHURCH.

PASTOR OF FASHIONABLE NEW YORK SOCIETY TO TRY AN EXPERIMENT.

New York, March 21.—When the congregation of the Cavalry Methodist Episcopal church, the largest Methodist congregation in the city, enters their church next Sunday they will observe a placard posted on the bulletin board inviting all persons worshipping in the church to remove their head coverings.

The new movement is directed against women's hats, and the pastor, Rev. Dr. Willis P. Odell, is the leader of it. The preacher believes his plan will succeed, but the official board of the church, comprising the trustees, class leaders, stewards and heads of the Sunday school and the church societies, are a bit doubtful. Dr. Odell came to the church about a year ago and began to work quietly to attain his object. He began by working on the leading members of the church and finally brought the question before the board. It required three weighty discussions at as many meetings of the board before it was decided to take the plunge. The test will come Sunday. There are more than 1000 women in the congregation in the handsome edifice at 129th st. and 7 av. every Sunday.

News of the innovation has quietly circulated throughout the parish and the subject has stirred up an animated discussion. Some of the women have agreed to follow their pastor. Most of them, however, shake their heads somewhat doubtfully. But no matter which way the question is decided, curiosity will crowd the church next Sunday with a record-breaking congregation.

The experiment of thawing frozen watermains by electricity was successfully tried at Chatham.

A New Departure.

Dr. Marschand, the celebrated French physician, has at last opened his magnificent equipped laboratory in Windsor, Ont. There is a large staff of chemists and physicians at his command, and the men and women of Canada may now procure the advice of this famous specialist free of charge.

Dr. Marschand has a world-wide reputation for successfully treating all nervous diseases of men and women, and you have but to write the doctor to be convinced that your answer, when received, is from a man who is entitled to the high position he holds in the medical fraternity.

Why suffer in silence when you can secure the advice of this eminent physician free of charge.

All correspondence is strictly confidential and names are held as sacred. Answers to correspondents are mailed in plain envelopes.

You are not asked to pay any exorbitant price for medicines, in fact it rarely happens that a patient has expended over 50 cents to one dollar before he or she becomes a firm friend and admirer of the doctor.

A special staff of lady physicians assist Dr. Marschand in his treatment of female cases. Always inclose a three-cent stamp when you write and address The Dr. Marschand Chemical Co., Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

The formation of a stock company to control the whole lake fishery business of Canada is now soon to be an accomplished fact, for some time the various companies engaged in fishing on the inland lakes have felt the effects of keen competition and lack organization and negotiations have been going on since last spring with the object of securing better conditions for those engaged in the work. There are upwards of a hundred companies or plants of greater or less magnitude operating on the upper lakes while a total of some three thousand men are actively employed in fishing.

How Doctors Differ.

"For ten solid years," said an Orleans broker, "I lived in the apprehension of sudden death. I was in Texas told me—my wife and his picture—that I had valvular heart disease, and if I wanted to stay on earth I must avoid every species of excitement. I did my best to follow his advice, but that miserable specter was at my elbow day and night and embittered my whole existence. I don't believe I am a coward, but the thought preyed on me until I began to fear for my sanity."

"At last, after all these years of infinite precaution, I went to a first class specialist to find out how much longer I'd last and was assured that I hadn't the single symptom of the malady. Talk about removing a mountain from a man! That assurance knocked off an entire range. It changed the color of the universe in a twinkling, and I was so happy I wanted to just throw up my hat and yell."

"That was a couple of years ago, and I have enjoyed myself tip-top ever since up to one day last week, when I happened to be chatting with the specialist and remarked that I'd like to murder that sawbones in Texas. 'I don't blame you,' he said. 'That man had no right to tell you that you had heart disease. If I had found you right at death's door, I certainly would never have let you know it.' Now, by Jove, I don't know who or what to believe and am drifting back to the old state of uncertainty. I wish I lived in a cannibal island and had never heard of doctors."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Milk and Mathematics.

When Thomas drove up to deliver the usual quart of white mixture, the gentleman of the house kindly inquired, "Thomas, how many quarts of milk do you deliver daily to your customers?"

"Ninety-one, sir."

"And how many cows have you?"

"Nine, sir."

The gentleman made some remarks about an early winter and the state of the roads, and then asked, "Thomas, how much milk per day do your cows average?"

"Seven quarts, sir."

"Ah, um!" said the gentleman, as he moved off.

Thomas looked after him, scratched his head, and all at once grew pale as he pulled out a short pencil and began to figure on the wagon cover: "Nine cows is nine, and I set down seven quarts under the cows and multiply. That's 63 quarts of milk. I told him I sold 91 quarts per day. Sixty-three from 91 leaves 28 and none to carry. Now, where do I get the rest of the milk? I'll be hanged if I haven't given myself away to one of my best customers by leaving a big cavity in these figures to be filled with water!"—London Sketch.

Italy in London.

Many Londoners have visited the Italian district, which lies in the neighborhood of Theobald's road and Hatton Garden, and some with inquiring minds have strolled up Leather lane and watched the Italian ice cream vendors and fortune telling women with pretty love birds, intermingled with the dirty, noisy, street hawkers, common to all London slums. It is amazing to learn how these Italians crowd together in the poky little houses of the courts and alleys. Generally a house is hired by an old padrone, who sublets to as many of his countrymen as he can respectably squeeze in. The cellars are utilized as sleeping apartments, and in the morning as many as 20, even 30, men will emerge from the bowels of the earth, blinking and winking in the daylight after a night spent in the cellars under one small dwelling house. A whole family, consisting of a husband and wife and eight or nine fanciulli of various ages, often sleep in one small garret or cellar.—Lodge Magazine.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Athletic Missionaries.

Two English home missionary workers were recently introduced by the Rev. A. J. Robinson to a Birmingham audience in these words:

"You Birmingham chaps have a lot of athletics, and quite right too. The two missionaries are both old athletes, you will be interested to learn. One, an old chum of mine, was in the Cambridge eight, and the other was famous among his fellows as a jumper. He could jump as high as his head."—Liverpool Mercury.

Why Maud Blushed.

Bobby (at the breakfast table)—Maud, did Mr. Jules take any of the umbrellas or hats from the hall last night?

Maud—Why, of course not! Why should he?

Bobby—That's just what I'd like to know. I thought he did because I heard him say when he was going out, 'I am going to steal just one,' and—Why, what's the matter, Maud?—London Fun.

Steel Balls.

The largest center in the world for the manufacture of steel balls for ball bearings is situated at Schweinfurt, in Bavaria. A couple of factories there, owned by one firm, produce close upon 300,000,000 balls annually with the labor of 600 men working ten hours daily. The total production of Germany is stated to be about 650,000,000, while England and France combined turn out only about 70,000,000 additional.

ENGLAND'S WAR FLEETS.

THE RUSSIAN ADMIRALTY SAID TO BE STAGGERED BY THE PROPOSED ADDITIONS.

LONDON, March 21.—A despatch to the Daily Graphic from Sebastopol says that the estimates for the British Navy which were submitted a few days ago to the House of Commons have staggered naval headquarters at that place. It is the opinion at the Naval Club that it would be idle for the European powers to attempt to increase their fleets in proportion to the additions to be made to the British Navy, and the smaller maritime powers, thereby depriving Great Britain of the trifling excuses she now seizes upon to swell her war fleets. Otherwise, the British will shortly be able to blockade Europe from the Baltic to Bosphorus.

The correspondent adds that he learns that the Admiralty at St. Petersburg was also greatly astonished by the addition proposed to be made by Great Britain to her sea power.

MRS. JOSEPH LANGTRY, BROCKVILLE, ONT., says: "I have used Dr. Low's Worm Syrup and I can say that it has done my children good. It never fails to act promptly." Price 25c.

LORD HERSCHELL'S REMAINS.

LONDON, March 21.—The funeral services over Lord Herschell were held in Westminster Abbey to-day. Many notables were present. The remains afterwards started for Dorsetshire for interment.

WILL I SUICIDE?

While There's Life and Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure There's Hope.

I had suffered so many years from catarrh that I don't know that I will ever get it out of my remembrance. One day, when I took one of the endless prescriptions given me by the medical man to a druggist, I asked him bluntly, "Will this cure me, or will it not? Or will it be like the rest?" I was nearly desperate, I can tell you. The druggist said:—"No, nothing can cure catarrh. I have it myself until I often think of suicide. I take opium usually to sleep it off." I took the prescription away unfilled and went home, thinking of what the druggist had said about suicide, and I was utterly disheartened. I have that prescription yet. One day my deliverance came. A lady told me she had suffered just as I had, and was nearly insane, and that a remedy known as Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure had actually cured her. I had read a lot about Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure, but I felt toward it as I did toward other medicines: had no faith. I tried it as a last resort. I used two boxes of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure, and found it a complete cure.
