The Leading Physical Culture Teacher of America, Prof. ROBERT J. ROBERTS, of the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium, of Boston, says: "DEAR SIR:—I can only speak of the 'old Johnson's Anodyne Liniment' in the highest terms. I have used it in the gymnasium when the boys have strained or overworked their bodies. It has worked like magic in reducing swelled joints and in removing soreness of the parts. At home my wife has used it with our boys and speaks enthusiastically. In fact for most of the slight ills of the flesh, internal and external, it has proved valuable. [Signed] ROBERT J. ROBERTS. Benjamin Parrott, Jr., a teamster, was tried at Hamilton, Ont., Friday for the murder of his aged mother, in February last. The hearing of evidence occupied only about an hour, the defence attempting to prove insanity. The judge addressing the jury charged against the prisoner, and the jury, after two hours' deliberation, returned a verdict of guilty. Parrott was immediately sentenced to be hanged on June 23. Parrott, while drunk, beat his mother to death with an axe.

THE DREYFUS INQUIRY.

PARIS, April 19.—It is rumored that the Court of Cassation, encouraged by the Ministers, who desire to meet the Chamber of Deputies with a well-defined situation, will dispense with the proposed confrontation of General Roget, Colonel Picquart, M. Bortulus, the magistrate, and others, in order to hurry its decision before the Chamber meets. It is further asserted that the Court's decision will be that no new facts have been adduced justifying revision, which the Court will accordingly reject.

IT WOULD NOT WORK.

LONDON, April 19.—The Paris correspondent of the Times, M. de Blowitz, referring to the rumors that the Court of Cassation will abridge the Dreyfus revision enquiry in order to enable the Government to go before the chamber of Deputies with a well-defined situation and that its decision will be against revision on the ground of the non-discovery of new facts, says: "Such a solution would only result in a continuance of the struggle in a more violent and dangerous form than ever, not only in France, but throughout the civilized world."

MAY PARDON DREYFUS.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily News, who regards such a possible course as "an endeavour to gag Captain Frey-statter (of the original court-martial) who would show cause for annulling the Dreyfus judgment, but will not be suffered to speak, says: "I believe the Government intends to pardon Dreyfus as soon as the Court of Cassation has delivered judgment. There is a majority of ten against him. One already wavers. A large proportion of the others are old men, some of whom are not in the best of health; and in the influenza might any day remove them. The Government knowing this, hurries the proceedings with a view of ensuring a decision that will please the army and the mass of the electors."

MORE OF THE TESTIMONY.

PARIS, April 19.—The Figaro publishes the conclusion of Colonel Picquart's deposition before the Court of Cassation in the Dreyfus revision inquiry, together with the testimony of M. Jules Roche, member of the chamber of Deputies for the second district of Tournon, and of several others, as well as a number of letters from Esterhazy to M. Roche—altogether about twenty-four columns. Col. Picquart told the court of various missions which General Gonse confided to him in Tunis, all of which convinced him that he was under the ban of displeasure. His mail matter always reached him unsealed and was invariably read by others before being despatched. He complained of this treatment to Lieut.-Col. Henry, but they refused to give him any satisfaction.

In August, 1896, after his examination of the dossier, he was convinced, Col. Picquart declared, of the guilt of Dreyfus and not until his return from Africa in March, 1897, did he confide to a friend, a lieutenant-colonel, his conviction that an error had been made by the court-martial and that Esterhazy was the real culprit. At this period his relations with Lieut.-Col. Henry ceased to be friendly. In the following June he became aware that machinations were brewing against himself, and he confined all his papers to Maitre Leboks, his counsel, for safety. He then returned to Tunis.

Col. Picquart remarked upon the coincidence that Esterhazy's letter to the Minister of War indicating his (Picquart's) movements was dated October 25, 1897, and that the date of the order sending him to the Tripolitan frontier was October 27. After referring to Esterhazy's letter and the "Blanche" and "Sporanz" telegrams, he detailed his recall to Paris to testify before General De Pellieux. He said he was called before the latter on the day following his arrival.

SAVE ME.

O, Brothers! I am wounded,
Rum hath stretched me on the field—
I have fought, but he has conquered,
For you offered me no shield.
There are many down beside me,
Who must die ere aid can come,
But, O heed the drunkard's pleading!
Save our future men from rum.

Listen, voters, I am dying!
'Tis the drunkard's dreadful death;
I would whisper you this morning,
With my foul, rum-laden breath,
Let not the love of office,
Or fear of murderous hand,
Keep the voters from removing
This dread foe from our land.

It is not to be wondered that so many drinking men die of heart failure, when the consumption of alcohol obtained from three glasses of whiskey in twenty-four hour necessities 6000 extra beats of the heart, equal to lifting one ton one foot high.—Pacific Ensign.

WHAT WHISKEY DOES.

Chauncey Depew says:—"Twenty-five years ago I knew every man, woman and child in Peekskill, N. Y. And it has been a study with me to mark boys who started in every grade of life with myself to see what became of them. I was up last fall and began to count them over, and it was an instructive exhibit. Some of them became clerks, merchants, manufacturers, lawyers and doctors. It is remarkable that every one of those that drank is dead; not one living of my age. Barring a few who were taken by sickness, every one who proved a wreck and creaked his family did it from rum and no other cause."

THE CONSUMER AND PRODUCER.

Eli Perkins in his humorous lectures, says the Omaha Bee, often ends a laughable satire with surprising moral thought.

"Coming through Chicago," he said last night, "I saw a grand procession in honor of Gambrinus. Such beautiful chariots—such decorated carriages, and such a procession of men marching to music!"

"Who rode in the chariots?" you ask.
"Why, the rich millionaire beer producers and their daughters in satins and diamonds."

"Who rode in the decorated carriages?"

"The rich wholesale dealers and their wives—the men who handle the product of the producers."

"Who rode in the one-horse carriages?"

"The prosperous saloon-keepers who sell the product to the people."

"Who were the poor, sad-faced, ragged men who footed it along the mud?"

"Oh, they were the consumers."

A DANGEROUS OCCUPATION.

A little thought will convince any careful inquirer that while prohibition would be a benefit to all, there is no class in the community that would really be more advantaged by its operation than would those who are now engaged in selling liquor. The business they are at present carrying on is physically perilous, socially in bad repute and morally degrading. Many insurance companies will take no risks on liquor sellers' lives. Those who carry on the traffic keenly feel, and sometimes bitterly complain of, the social obloquy which they and their families have to endure. Men have given up liquor selling to save their children from the disgrace of connection with it.

It is a business that deadens the moral sensibility and destroys the finer feelings and better nature of those who carry it on. The successful saloon-keeper makes himself the means of ruining his fellows, robbing wives and children of happiness and homes, and cursing humanity with poverty, distress and sin. No other occupation so mercilessly breaks down all that is really noble and worthy and generous in man. The community has no right to sanction a traffic that is so debasing to all who touch it.

IS THERE NOT A CAUSE.

Thoughtful men and women who have given this subject careful attention, have become convinced that the destructive liquor business bears unmistakable marks of Divine displeasure. A little examination of the history of those whom we have known connected with the liquor traffic for a number of years will convince us at any rate of its terrible danger. Suggestive details can readily be obtained of the singularly awful end of persons and families who within the memory of men now living, have been engaged in drink-making and selling in the past. Accumulated property has vanished away, violent deaths have been marvellously frequent, an unusually large number of persons once related to the business are now inmates of charitable or penal institutions, or lingering on the miserable existence of degraded outcasts.

The full extent of this terrible evil is not open to the public gaze. The remorse of the father who knows that his own business has been the ruin of his beloved boy, the anguish of the wife or mother who sees the sure, steady havoc that is being made in all she cherishes most on

LEGS ENTIRELY RAW

From his feet to his body,
and ran a blood tinged,
irritating water.

Mrs. A. Keirstead, Snider Mt., N. B., tells how her little boy suffered, and how B.B.B. cured him permanently.

FREDDY KEIRSTEAD.

There is not a mother in this land who has a child suffering from skin disease in any form but will thank Mrs. Keirstead, of Snider Mt., N. B., for telling of the remarkable manner in which her boy, Freddy, was cured of one of the severest and most torturing of skin diseases by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters; and not only relieved and cured for the time being, but, mark you, after eight years the disease has shown no sign of returning. The following is Mrs. Keirstead's letter:—

"With gratitude I can testify to the wonderful curative powers of Burdock Blood Bitters. Eight years ago our little son, Freddy, was afflicted with skin disease in a dreadful condition. His legs, from the soles of his feet to his body, were entirely raw, and ran a bloody water, which appeared to burn and itch until he was often in great agony."

"After trying several remedies, we resolved to give B.B.B. a trial."

"You can imagine with what delight and gratitude we saw our boy entirely cured after using one bottle and part of the second. We gave him the remainder of the second bottle, and from that time till the present he has never had a sign of the disease. You need not salt rheum or a sick day. You need not wonder that I think there is no other medicine can equal Burdock Blood Bitters to purify the blood and build up the health and strength."

earth, are carefully concealed. There are family secrets hidden away behind asylum walls and prison bars. Rev. Dwight L. Moody said some time ago, "If you can find a man in the whiskey business for twenty years who has not a skeleton in his closet I would like to see him."

Is this strange? Would it not be remarkable if an occupation so fraught with ruin to others did not leave the evidence of its destructive operations upon those who carried it on? "The curse causeless shall not come." But is there not a cause? "Woe unto him who buildeth his house with blood."

In the prohibition movement there is no ill-will toward liquor sellers. They are engaged in a calling that is lawful even though it is destructive and degrading. Many of them are men of intelligence, of integrity, of business ability; and they are their best friends who desire to see these God-given talents occupied in some better way. Hotel-keeping in its self is a useful and honorable occupation. It would be as respectable as any other business if it were not connected with this traffic so rightly denounced and condemned. Prohibition would be a blessing to the whole community; and most of all to those who now suffer the danger and disgrace that their connection with the liquor traffic brings upon them.

CATARRH CHOKED HIM.
Insidious, Deceitful, Relentless Disease—Bound to Vanish Under the Use of Agnew's Catarrhal Powder Treatment—Relief in ten Minutes.

Mr. Benjamin F. Wench, 31 McGee street, Toronto, says: "I was troubled with that insidious disease—catarrh—for many years. It became very degrading, and was rapidly growing worse, with disgusting discharges from my nostrils and the dropping in my throat almost choking me at times. I tried a dozen so-called catarrh cures without any relief, but after using a few bottles of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder I was completely restored and I believe permanently cured from this loathsome disease." Sold at Short's Drug Store.

A Judge's summing up of a case is not always distinguished by brevity, but Mr. Justice Denman is credited with probably the shortest one on record. The claim was for damages in connection with an accident which has produced a mass of evidence, and had taken up a deal of time; at the close of the arguments, the judge summed up the matter in two words. Turning to the jury, he said, "How much?" Promptly the reply came, "Five pounds," and the case was over.
