THE MOTHER OF A SOLDIER.

The mother of a soldier—hats off to her, I say!
The mother of a soldier who has gone to face the fray:
She gave him to her country, with a blessing on his head—
And she found his name this morning in the long list of the dead—
"Killed—Sergeant Thomas Watkins, while leading on the rest,
A Bible in his pocket and a portrait on his breast!"

The mother of a soldier—she gave him to her land;
She saw him on the transports as he waved his sun-browned hand;
She kissed him through the teardrops, and she told him to be brave;
Her prayers went night and morning with her boy upon the wave.

The mother of a soldier—her comfort and her joy,
She gave her dearest treasure when she gave her only boy;
She saw the banner waving, she heard the people cheer;
She clasped her hands and bravely looked away to hide a tear.

The mother of a soldier—Ah! cheer the hero dead,
And cheer the brave who battle 'neath the banner of their creed;
But don't forget the mothers, through all the lonely years,
That fight the bravest battles on the sunless field of tears.

Nay, don't forget the mothers, the mothers of our men,
Who see them go and never know that they'll come back again;
That gave them to their country, to battle and to die,
Because the bugler calls them and the brilliant banners fly.

The mother of a soldier—hats off to her I say!
Whose head is bowed in sorrow with its tender locks of gray.
She gave without regretting, though her old heart sorely bled
When she found his name this morning in the long list of the dead;
Killed—Sergeant Thomas Watkins, while leading on the rest,
His dear old mother's portrait clasped upon his hero breast!"

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our regular correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 19, 1900.—
The situation in China predicted in this correspondence some two months ago has come about nearly as foretold. Great Britain, still engrossed in South Africa, finds it difficult to spare any large number of troops to safeguard her interests in China, and the United States—which is almost without personal interest in Asia—sends troops from Manila and will send more to control the situation. Russia's hand has not yet been shown but there is little doubt in the minds of diplomats here that she will eventually be found acting on the side of China and against the powers. Nor is there any particular doubt that American troops have been sent in accordance with an Anglo-Saxon understanding that British interests were to be preserved in China pending the termination of the struggle in South Africa.

A. & R. LOGGIE.

The United States does not own or lease a foot of soil in China and has only a few missionaries there, nearly all of whom are located in a region some distance from the scene of the trouble. By recent treaties with the European powers, it has secured equal trade privileges in all territory held by all of them. Yet it is the only power to land regular soldiers in China. Why does it do it? There can be but one answer.

The New Orleans Times Democrat prints the following, which should be of interest to Canadians: "Captain Webster, of the big transport Milwaukee, which left this port Tuesday with a cargo of horses for South Africa, told an interesting story of the Canadian troops which he carried some time ago from Halifax to the seat of war. 'Considerable surprise has been expressed,' said the captain, 'that the Canadians suffered so little from the hot climate in South Africa. There were fewer cases of sickness and heat prostration among them than in any other command, but that was due undoubtedly to the physical examination they were obliged to pass before leaving. I have been in the service a good many years, but I never saw anything like it. Men were rejected for defects that an ordinary recruiting surgeon would scarcely observe, let alone question. At Halifax a magnificent big athlete came out to bid his brother good-bye, and told me between tears and curses that he had been turned down. I asked why, and he showed me a minute section broken off of one of his teeth. That will give you an idea of the severity of the examinations. The rank and file of the Canadians we carried were men from the country—hunters, trappers, and experts of wood-craft. They were used to hard fare and exposure, and to them the campaign was a sort of big picnic. One of Lord Roberts' officers told me they were the only men in the army who made no complaint about 'bully' beet. They ate it with a relish, pronounced it a first rate ration, and asked for more. The Canadians were the marvels of the African corps. They shamed each other branch of the service.'

Scarcely a month passes without some one turning up in this country as claimant of an estate or a title in Great Britain, and the appearance of a new one would be of no particular interest were it not that he lays claim to the earldom of Airlee, the holder of which has recently been killed in battle with the Boers. The claimants are John Wilson, who is at present conductor on a Broadway, N. Y. car and his sister, Mrs. Bridget Callaghan.

They base their claim on descent from an Earl of Airlee who lived in the last century.

Mr. R. James Henderson, of Liverpool, is in this city. Speaking of the war, he says: "The thinking persons of Great Britain have always been in favor of the war with the Boers. We have had our ups and downs so far as enthusiasm is concerned, but we think Bobs will settle the Boer war. We felt depressed when we met with reverses. We now feel confident that everything will turn out well with the British arms. Of course, there was always a chance that we might lose a battle or two more before the war was over, but we are not looking for it." Mr. Henderson is a great admirer of American methods, which he says are being more and more adopted in Great Britain. "This is particularly true," he said, in regard to transportation facilities. In addition to the rapid handling of freight, the railway companies have adopted time-saving schedules for the business man. I mean by that that they have put fast trains on the different lines, so that the business man who wants to visit London can do so and not lose much time away from his business. I will cite an example. A few months ago it was necessary for a business man to lose forty-eight hours if he wanted to go to London from Liverpool. He can now go there and return the same day. There is a saving of twenty-four hours. That means a good deal in the commercial world.

Unofficial word has come from London that Mr. Reginald Tower, Secretary of the British Embassy here will, shortly become first Secretary of the British Legation at Peking, which is just now one of the most important centers of British activity. Mr. Tower was prominently identified with American affairs last year while Lord Pauncefote was at The Hague, and as British Charge d'Affairs concluded the Alaskan boundary modus vivendi, and signed no less than five treaties between the United States and Great Britain touching the British West Indian Islands.

How to Cure a Corn.

It is one of the easiest things in the world to cure a corn. Do not use acids or other caustic preparations and don't cut a hole in your boot. It is simply to apply Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor and in three days the corn can be removed without pain. Sure, safe, painless. Take only Putnam's Corn Extractor.

The address was admirably well conceived and it referred to the growth and development of St. Joseph's, the prominence of training of the graduates of previous years in the various professions, in the church, state and mercantile life, for any of which St. Joseph furnished superior training.

The attendance this year which was very large was also referred to and the pleasant fact that students were there from different lands and differing in faith but all recognizing the eminence among educational institutions of St. Josephs, of which the coadjutor himself was a pupil.

AN OLD MAN'S DARLING.

A PROSPECTIVE BRIDE WEDS THE SON INSTEAD OF THE FATHER.

(St. John Gazette.)

North End has a real love romance, the third act of which was enacted last Thursday night, proved rather sensational and had such a thrilling ending that at least one of the principal actors will not recover from the shock for some days.

The story, which created a regular furore in that particular section of the city, dates back the best part of a year, although the final act was only enacted last night.

The first act of the drama in real life, was when a well known widower of some 55 summers left his quiet home on Sheriff street last summer and paid a visit to the rural districts of Queens Co. He was only absent from his home for a few weeks but in that time he fell desperately in love with a country maiden of scarce thirty years of age. The two corresponded and a match was made. The old gentleman proved an adept lover, and it was only a short month ago that the maiden came here and took up her abode in the old man's house.

During her stay she was busily engaged in making preparations for her approaching nuptials with her aged admirer. The engagement was duly announced and generally accepted by all except the prospective groom's son, a stalwart teamster of twenty-six. The young man objected to his father taking a second wife, and to show his disapproval he totally ignored the blushing bride that was to be.

The son's actions annoyed the old man so much that he planned a reconciliation so he suggested that the youth take his prospective mother-in-law for a drive.

This was only effected on Sunday last when the boy drove to the door and assisting the lady into the carriage drove off.

The old man was delighted and by every one of the neighbors to whom he related his ability as a strategist he was warned that the youth was susceptible to the lady's charms and perchance might out the old man out. Yesterday the young man's attentions to the old man's sweetheart so annoyed the prospective groom that he took the youth to task about the matter.

Some trifling answer was given and all went well until the young couple were seen to leave the house arrayed in all their good clothes. It was then that a neighbor called on the old man and told him the pair had gone to the city to be married. The old man seemed incredulous at first but upon investigation he found that the bride's trousseau was gone and in fact her whole outfit was missing. It was then eight o'clock and the old man had no idea which way to turn to stop the eloping pair. Shortly afterward electric car No. 38 stopped at the head of Sheriff street and the happy couple stepped off.

They were then man and wife having been married by the rector of the Reformed Baptist church, Carleton street. At the house the broken hearted old man was for a time missing, but a search found him in tears and in a dejected state hidden in one of the apartments alone with his grief. The small boys to the number of about sixty, gave the couple the usual shower of rice, boots, etc.

THE WAR.

BULLER'S ADVANCE NORTHWARD AND ITS EFFECT.

LONDON, June 21.—It is hoped in London that Gen. Buller's advance northward will hasten a cessation of the hostilities by cutting off communication between President Steyn's and Dewet's forces in the Orange River Colony, and Gen. Botha's burghers in the Transvaal, and completing a combined movement to surround Steyn and Dewet to which Roberts referred in a despatch. Despatches from Lorenzo Marques reiterates the statements that Secretary of State Reitz sailed for Europe recently on a Dutch war ship.

GENERAL BULLER ARRIVES AT SANDSPRUIT.

VOLKSRUST, June 21.—Buller has arrived at Sandspuit Station and camped two miles further on the western side of the road and surrendered their arms and horses.

HAMILTON AND BULLER TO JOIN HANDS.

LONDON, June 22.—Lord Roberts cables as follows: Pretoria, June 22.—Hamilton's column reached Springs yesterday en route to Heidelberg where they will join hands with Buller's troops who reached Pardekop yesterday and will be at Standerton to-morrow, thus opening up communication between Pretoria and Natal and preventing any joint action between the Transvaalers and the people of the Orange River Colony. Baden-Powell reports from Rustenburg that he found the leading Boers very pacific and cordial on his return journey hence and that commandant Steyn and two actively and hostile field cornets had been captured during his absence. Lord Edward Cecil administrator of Rustenburg district has to date collected three thousand rifles. The commissioner at Kroonstad reports that three hundred rifles have been handed in at Wolmarstrand.

BOTHA IS WILLING TO SURRENDER.

LONDON, June 23.—All South African news continues satisfactory from the British point of view. Gen. Botha possesses full power to conclude peace and is willing to surrender but Kruger's demands are obdurate.
