A Really Sick Man.

SUFFERED TERRIBLE AGONY DUE TO KIDNEY AND LIVER TROUBLE.

Medicines Apparently Had No Effect. Until at the Solicitation of a Friend He Used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and Was Cured.

From the Mail, Granby, Que.

Mr. Albert Fisher, accountant at Payne's cigar factory, Granby, Que., is known to almost every resident of the town, and is held in the highest esteem by all who know him. In conversation with the editor of the Mail recently, something was said concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, when Mr. Fisher remarked that he had found these pills a very valuable medicine. It was suggested that he should make his experience known, and to this he readily consented, handing to the Mail the following letter for publication:—

Granby, March 16th, 1900.

In justice to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I think it my duty, in view of what they have done for me, to add my testimonial to the many which I have seen in print. For some months I suffered most severely from pains up and down my back. It was thought these were due to liver and kidney trouble, but whatever the cause, they kept me in terrible agony. The pains were not confined to the back, but would shift to other parts of the body. As a result, I could get little rest; my appetite was much impaired, and I was really a sick man. I tried many different remedies, without effect, and which disgusted me with medicine. A friend suggested that I try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was not easily persuaded, for I had given up the use of medicine, as nothing had helped me, but as he insisted, I finally concluded to give them a trial. I purchased one box, and was astonished to find that before it was entirely used, I was quite a bit relieved, and after using six more, was fully restored to my former good health. I take great pleasure in recommending this valuable remedy, that others may profit by my experience, and not suffer the tortures that I did.

Yours sincerely,

Albert Fisher.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They renew and build up the blood, and strengthen the nerves, thus driving disease from the system. If your dealer does not keep them, they will be sent postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HANDS CRACKED WITH SALT RHEUM

Mr. James McIsaacs, 255 Elgin St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:—"I suffered with salt rheum for upwards of ten years, the skin on my hands cracking and breaking so as to make them useless. After trying all sorts of remedies in vain, I became discouraged and thought my suffering would never end. Last spring I used Dr. Chase's Ointment and in a short time was perfectly cured." Dr. Chase's Ointment is of unparalleled merit as a cure for all itching skin disease, all druggists.

TIPS ON THE MARKET.

Why One Broker Absolutely Refuses to Post His Friends.

"A tip to a friend! Not on your life!" said a veteran New Orleans broker, chatting over cigars and coffee in a restaurant last night. "I've responded on hard luck stories as often as the next fellow," he continued earnestly. "and I'll do it again, but a tip on the market—no! I wouldn't give it if I knew it was a lead pipe cinch and the other chap needed the money to buy bread. That sounds hard, and it's the result of hard experience. When I was young and green, I used to put folks next to 'good things' now and then, and there was never a case—not one—in which I didn't have a reason to curse my folly. In the first place, nobody who gets a secret of that kind is going to keep it.

"One day years ago, just to give you an illustration, a man who was an old friend of my father's and who was badly down on his luck, came to ask my private advice on a little speculative investment. I took him into my back office, swore him to secrecy and gave him a piece of information of considerable value. I instructed him exactly what to do and impressed upon him that the least leak would ruin the whole thing and incidentally destroy his own chances of making some money. I was so earnest that he got indignant and asked me if I meant to insult him by doubting his word.

"Well, inside of an hour he had told the secret. In strict confidence, of course, to two particular friends, each of whom proceeded to tell it in strict confidence to other particular friends, giving me as authority all along the line, and before night it was public property. You may imagine in what sort of position I was placed. Men who had lost thousands of dollars through my indiscretion didn't feel inclined to listen to explanations, and some of them are my enemies to this day. I don't blame 'em.

"When I took my man to task, he was dumfounded. He swore by all that was holy he hadn't said a word, and when I clinched the thing with positive proof he got mad. A chap who does you an involuntary injury is always sure to hate you afterward. That's one instance out of a dozen differing slightly in detail, but all having the same moral—namely, don't give tips."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WHEN FORT HILL WENT UP.

The Experience of a Colored Man in the Explosion.

"Speaking of comical incidents in the civil war," said Captain Oscar Ludwig, "brings to mind an incident of the blowing up of Fort Hill at Vicksburg. Fort Hill, it should be understood, was the key to the Confederate system of fortifications. Our regiment, the Twentieth Illinois, had charged up to the fort on May 22, but was ordered back on the 23rd and laid siege in a regular way. In June we proceeded to dig an open tunnel toward the fort for the purpose of mining. A car loaded high with cotton bales was pushed in front to protect the diggers, and the tunnel or trench was covered as we proceeded to protect us from the Confederate fire. Finally we pushed the tunnel under the fort and made ready for exploding the mines, and our brigade made ready for the charge.

"The mines were exploded. The fort and all the men in it seemed to go into the air, and the Twentieth Illinois and other regiments rushed into the gap. As we climbed over the broken embankment three men who had been blown up with the fort came down. Two of these were white men, and they were dead. The other, a colored man, came down with a mass of debris, but he was living. When the boys dug him out, they asked him how in the world he came to be in the fort. The frightened dandy explained that he was the servant of one of the leading officers and that he had just carried to his master his dinner when the explosion came.

"He went on to say: 'That is so far a fact. I came in just in time to be blown up. I was standing by the side of the captain when there came a roar in a tremor, and I felt myself go in. In a little while I started down, and I met the captain coming up, but we didn't speak. He was going up head first and I was coming down head first. I struck mighty hard, but here I am, thank de Lord and de Yankees! I suppose that if any one would ask that dandy to describe the siege of Vicksburg he would tell of his own mishap at the blowing up of Fort Hill.'—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Persian Soldier's Conundrum.

The Rev. Samuel Graham Wilson, M. A., author of "Persian Life and Customs," is a missionary who has lived in the land he writes about for more than 30 years. To show that the Persian peasant is not devoid of humor, the doctor tells the following experience:

"A soldier was an attaché of a royal household, and, besides soldiering, he had to write poems and tell conundrums and improvise puzzles. One day, after not having been paid for either military or other duties, he said to his master:

"I have a conundrum, your excellency."

"What is it?"

"Tell me what it is which has a name but no existence?"

"The master thought for some time and then exclaimed: 'I give it up. Now tell me the answer.'"

"My salary," the peasant groaned, dropping on his knees for darning to be so bold."—Saturday Evening Post.

Sheep as Beasts of Burden.

In the northern part of India sheep are put to a use unthought of in European or American countries. They are made to serve as beasts of the foothills of the Himalayas are so precipitous that the sheep, more surefooted than larger beasts, are preferred as burden carriers. The load for each sheep is from 16 to 20 pounds. The sheep are driven from village to village, with the wool still growing, and in each town the farmer shears as much wool as he can sell there and loads the sheep with the grain which he receives in exchange. After his flock has been sheared he turns it homeward, each sheep having on its back a small bag containing the purchased grain.

A DUTIFUL DAUGHTER.

"That daughter of mine will be the death of me some day," declared the portly party with a chuckle. "There has been a young man hanging around the house for the past six months, and I was growing tired of it, for I didn't consider that he was good enough for my girl. So yesterday I summoned my daughter and said:

"Daughter, will that young man be here again tonight?"

"I suppose so," she answered, looking at me out of the corners of her eyes.

"Well, when he comes I want you to sit down on him."

"Very well, papa," she answered demurely.

"I went down town congratulating myself for I really expected a scene, as my girl has a will of her own and is not at all backward about expressing it. But when she promises to do a thing it is settled, and I chuckled to myself when I thought of the reception that the young man would meet with when he called in the evening.

"Well, that night the young man made his usual evening call, and I cleared out to give my daughter a chance to carry out her promise. I waited an hour, and then as the young man showed no signs of leaving I entered the drawing room where they were. The gas was turned down, but it was light enough for me to discover that the young man was holding my daughter on his lap.

"What is the meaning of this?" I demanded with the little breath I had left.

"I am only following your instructions, papa," she answered without even looking up.

"You're what?" I gasped.

"Following your instructions. Don't be silly! Didn't you tell me to sit down on Mr. Blank when he called? Don't I hear mamma calling you?"

"I took the hint and fled. Cards will be out in a few days."—Detroit Free Press.

BRIDE STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

(St. John Gazette, June 29.)

Mrs. Charles McKenzie, of Westfield, a bride of but 48 hours and formerly Miss Lillian McGarigle, of Nerepis, will have cause to remember the beginning of her housekeeping. This morning about 7 o'clock during the big thunder storm she was getting breakfast in her kitchen and had opened the stove to put in a stick of wood when she heard a terrific peal of thunder and was dazzled by a flash of lightning. She remembered nothing more for some little time. The lightning had struck the chimney, demolishing it, and coming down, had torn up the stove and entered Mrs. McKenzie's arm coming out at her foot. She was badly injured her hand and foot being blackened and the latter bleeding considerably. Besides these it will be some time before she recovers from the shock. Dr. Patterson was summoned and she is now under his care.

The chimney where the lightning struck is badly broken up and the stove, a new one, is much broken.

The residents of Westfield say the clap of thunder was the loudest and the lightning the most severe they ever witnessed.
