AGRICULTURE. A DAIRY COW'S IMPORTANT POINTS.

The first consideration is that the dairy cow is a machine for the conversion of food into milk. In this respect she is the exact opposite of the beef breed and should show angularity, giving evidence that the food which she converts into flesh, the other sends into the udder.

Necessarily the thighs are important, as their conformation determines the capacity for carrying the udder. They should be thin, as far away from the beef type as possible, and they should be especially light on the inside or twist.

CARE OF DAIRY UTENSILS.

Never neglect the care of the churn. Slight negligence in this direction may cost you the price of many a pound of butter.

After a churn has been some time out of use it should be thoroughly scoured with salt and repeatedly scalded before being again employed.

Nothing will penetrate the crevices of a churn like hot water, and it needs to be at a boiling temperature when applied.

The greatest care should be taken to expunge every atom of salt or briny water from the iron work of dairy utensils.

Rigid drying by both an absorbent cloth and heat will do this satisfactorily. I have known a new $25 curd mill to be so eroded by rust in one season as to be nearly ruined.

By proper care it could have been made to run 10 years without repair.

If it is important to keep butter tools scrupulously clean, how much more important is it to be rigorous in the treatment of milk utensils.

In private dairies it would be well to emulate the methods in vogue in milk-shipping stations and creameries.

First, after a rinse of cold water, the cans and other tinned lacteal utensils are washed thoroughly with warm water, changing the bath frequently to keep it clean.

Now follows the coup de grace, the death-dealing blow to bacteria and spores. This is the scalding process.

Where a good steam pressure can be obtained, superheated steam is the best agency to employ, whirling the cans rapidly while it is applied to every part of the interior.

On the farm, however, water if used while boiling will be effective enough to render utensils aseptic.

Do not scald milk receptacles by pouring the hot water from one to the other. It cools too rapidly to be effective on even the second can so treated.

We should always bear in mind that the fungi and bacteria inhabiting milk vessels are of microscopic character, and seams which appear clean to the naked eye may in reality be teeming with millions of these vegetable organisms.

This subject is as important in winter as in summer, and the dairyman who does not consider it so will never make a success at butter production in cold weather.

Treat your dairy apparatus and utensils so well that when they finally become useless it will not be by the erosion of rust, but through good, honest, cleanly friction in the path of trade.—George E. Newell, in Am. Cul.

CHILDREN WILL GO SLEIGHING. They return covered with snow. Half a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in hot water will prevent ill effects. Avoid substitutes, here's but one Pain-Killer, Perry Davis', 25c and 50c.

THE STRANGELY SAVED.

In all of its work the Society for Physical Research never unearthed a story more remarkable than one which is vouched for by Bishop Samuel Fellows of the Reformed Episcopal Church.

"It was told at a meeting of a college Greek-letter society," said the Bishop to a reporter for the Sunday Inter Ocean, "by the young husband of the woman who figures in the story. He pledged everybody to secrecy concerning names, dates or anything which would fix the identity of the parties. All were Chicago people of well-known families, and the principals are alive to-day.

After stipulating that the names of the people in print should be Charles Smith and Mrs. Charles Smith, the Bishop told the story as follows:

Some years ago Mrs. Charles Smith, the wife of a young Chicago man living on the north side, was taken seriously ill and died in a short time. She was not embalmed and was buried two or three days later in Rose Hill cemetery.

She was buried in the afternoon, and in the evening a friend of the family came in and decided to stay in the house that night with the husband and servants. In the middle of the night Mr. Smith was awakened from a rather restless sleep by someone calling his name.

He heard the name two or three times, "Charles, Charles," very distinctly. He did not associate the voice with anyone he knew, and said to himself that it was hallucination. Being a man of materialistic views he attached no superstitious meaning to the matter, and soon fell into a troubled sleep again.

After a little while he was awakened by the voice again, this time more insistent, "Charles, Charles, Charles!" Just as the day was breaking for the third time he heard the call again, this time entreatingly.

This time he recognized the voice as that of his wife. Moved by some inexplicable impulse, he sprang up, searched the room thoroughly, found no one, and rushed into where his friend was asleep. "Come, get up," he said. "We must go to Rose Hill!"

His friend tried to dissuade him, but to no purpose. They harnessed a horse to a light buggy, took spades and pickaxes and drove to the cemetery at breakneck speed. As quickly as possible they dug down to the coffin, which had been put there the afternoon before, and opened it.

The young wife was just turning over in the casket. Although alive she was unconscious. Presumably she had been in a stupor the entire time. She was taken home, recovered consciousness and is alive to-day. She has no idea that she was ever buried alive, and probably if she had known the circumstances at the time the shock would have killed her.

She was told that she had been very ill and had recovered almost miraculously. Beyond that she knows nothing of the story. There seems to be but one explanation, and that is that Mrs. Smith's subconscious mind influenced the mind of her husband, telepathically and warned him of her danger.

GLEAMS OF WIT.

First Parson—Did you ever go to the Bowery after dark?

Second Parson—I certainly wouldn't go there after light.

Patience—Did you notice how proud Pattie acted with her new engagement ring?

Patrice—Yes; she always does act that way when she first gets them.

Bill—I saw a woman at the concert the other night, and she had a hat on which looked exactly like a gun.

Jill—How about the man behind it?

Yeast—Does your wife eat all she needs?

Crimsonbeak—No; that's the worst of it. I have to eat some of the bread she makes.

Bill—Did you say you got an umbrella for your Christmas?

Jill—Yes. "Did you 'soak' it yet?" "Yes; I 'put it up' yesterday."

She—Isn't that funny? The parrot is jabbering, and I can't understand a single thing she says.

He—Oh, I guess she's imitating a railway conductor calling out the streets.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—If you would give me the money, I'd see that my closet shelves were not bare.

Mt. Crimsonbeak—Well, I've never seen 'em bare yet. There's an inch of dust on 'em just now.

Yeast—There was a strange cat yelling in my back yard last night.

Crimsonbeak—You're a lucky dog. "Why so?" "Whenever there are strange cats yelling about my place there are a dozen or more."—Yonkers Statesman.

"Grasp All and Lose All."

Many people are so intent on "grasping all" that they lose strength of nerves, appetite, digestion, health. Fortunately, however, these may be restored by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has put many a business man on the road to success by giving him good digestion, strong nerves and a clear brain. It does the same thing for weak and tired women.

Hood's Pills cure sick headache, indigestion.

Archbishop Bruchesi, of Montreal, has ordered the three prayers for peace to be recited daily in addition to the ordinary orisons of the mass in Roman Catholic churches.

WHAT HE SAW ON THE COFFIN.

"I do not believe in ghosts, nor am I particularly nervous," remarked the express messenger, "but I once was so positive that I saw a spectre that I was troubled with insomnia for many nights and I thought I never would be able to quiet my nerves again.

"It was back in the 80s when I was running. We made a small station one evening about dusk and found on the platform, as I had been advised, the grow-some pine box, telling its story of some unfortunate who had gone to the mountains in a vain search for health. It so happened that my car was full and plan as I might I could find no place for the box. The train conductor came up to find out what was the cause of the delay. I told him of my predicament. He was equal to the emergency in an instant.

"Put it on the front platform," he said. The suggestion was a good one and in another moment our dead passenger was aboard and we were rolling over the prairie.

"It so happened that I had a car with a door at the end. About 10 o'clock snow began falling and I tell you it came down thick. It was midnight when I thought of the corpse. It would never do to lose it and the jolt of the train might jar it off the platform. The night was clear. I opened the door. As it swung on its hinges I looked out. Then I slammed the door with a bang and jumped back in the car. I was perspiring from every pore and trembling like a leaf.

"What had I seen? Why, sitting bolt upright on the coffin, with his hands clasping his knees, was the whitest ghost any man ever saw. I stood in the centre of the car, irresolute. I looked at my Winchester, then I realized it would be of no use against a spook. "Suddenly the door opened and there stood my ghost. It was a tramp covered with snow from head to foot. He stood there blinking at the light for a moment and then said:

"Say, Willie, you've ketches me, anyhow, can't you let me get warm afore you turn me off?" Well, I guess. If I'd been going to New York he could have gone with me, I'm the last man in the world not to show appreciation and gratitude."

THE CHAIN LETTER BUSINESS.

A gentleman who sent out a chain letter received this reply:

Dear Sir,—We have your chain letter in South African contingent and in reply beg to state that this is an exploded theory in this country as to how to raise money and affords magnificent scope for some one to bamboozle the public. If you figure it out you will find that a chain of twenty letters as called for by this one will reach the enormous number of 3,486,784,401, which, if all are returned with the requested 25 cents, you will see amounts to $871,696,100, no inconsiderable amount of money. You will also note that the number of letters amount to about two-thirds of the population of the Dominion, and taking the amount in proportion, the government votes $2,000,000, which is supposed to pay the contingent or their families for six months, this enormous sum to be collected by this chain letter would pay the contingent for 218 years, or it would pay 430 contingents for the same length of time as the government counts on paying with their two millions. If you go any further into the figures than we have done you will see the further fallacy of these chain letters which have become an unmitigated nuisance not only in this country, but in almost every other country in the world.—St. John Globe.

BETRAYED BY A TOOTH PRINT.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 22.—Charles Mack, while trying to blow open a safe in a store two nights ago, stopped long enough to take a bite from a cheese lying near. When the store was opened to-day the imprint on the cheese showed a peculiarly formed front tooth. A local detective, who thought he recognized the tooth print, went to Mack's house and arrested him. He forced Mack to take a bite of cheese, and found the tell-tale tooth print duplicated. The burglar confessed, and the police found much booty in his home.

A Rheumatic Cripple's Release!

A 'jury' of doctors, specialists and medicine vendors decreed that James Smith, of Grimsby, Ont., should spend the rest of his days in the agonizing chains of rheumatism

But common sense and modern medical science produced rebuttal evidence and procured his release

The Great South American Rheumatism Cure turned the tables, relieved the pain in a few hours and healed, cured and freed.

To the man or woman suffering the agonies of pain produced by Rheumatism, of whatever form, an essay on its causes, its symptoms, and its action, are idle; the one desirable objective point with the sufferer is the shortest cut to relief from all, has proved the most efficacious of remedies, and to back up their convictions, are prescribing it daily in practice; and doctors have always been the slowest to convince of the merits of any proprietary remedy.

South American Rheumatic Cure is powerful, potent, but harmless. It is a specific for all phases of Rheumatic Ailments; it goes directly to the seat of the troubles, dissolves and eradicates from the system the foreign matters which cause the excruciating pains which stiffen and swell the joints. It acts quickly and surely, and as proof of it there is ample testimony to show that in cases of many years' standing, where the patient was almost helpless, bed-ridden and so acute was the suffering that it was necessary to turn the victim in sheets, because fit was torture to have even the gentlest touch of the hand on the body. In twelve hours after the first dose was taken all pain was gone, and inside of three days recovery was so marked that the patient walked without assistance. Many have had a similar experience and have testified to it.

James Smith, a dairyman of Grimsby, Ont., was a great sufferer from sciatica and rheumatism. He was almost helpless; could not walk without crutches. He had tried any number of remedies, and had been treated by almost innumerable doctors without any permanent help. He began using South American Rheumatic Cure. In a few hours the pain left him; in a few days he threw away the crutches and has never had a touch of the trouble since. You are at liberty to write him about his own case. No need for an hour's suffering. South American Rheumatic Cure can do as much for you as it has done for thousands.

South American Nervine is a wonderful tonic for the stomach. It cures all disorders of the digestive organs, repairs exhausted nerve-power, puts on flesh, and is a general health builder.

South American Kidney Cure is a liquid kidney specific; it cures Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Inflammation of the Bladder and all disorders arising from imperfect working of the kidneys. It gives relief in six hours.
