

FADING AWAY.

THE CONDITION OF YOUNG GIRLS WHO ARE ANAEMIC

This Record is of Especial Value to Parents—It is a Message from a Mother to Mothers of Growing Girls.

Among the young girls throughout Canada who owe good health—perhaps life itself—to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, is Miss Hattie Althouse, of Campden, Ont. When a representative called at the Althouse homestead to make enquiries as to the particulars of the cure, he was cordially received by Mrs. Althouse, who readily consented to give a statement for publication. "Up to the age of fourteen years," said Mrs. Althouse, "my daughter Hattie had always enjoyed the best of health. Then she began to complain of weakness, and grew pale and languid. We tried several medicines, but instead of helping her she was steadily growing worse, and we became alarmed and called in a doctor. He told us that her blood was in a very watery condition, and that she was on the verge of nervous prostration. She was under his care for several months, but still kept growing worse. She had become very pale, had no appetite, frequent headaches, and after even slight exertion her heart would palpitate violently. As time passed, she seemed to grow worse and worse, until at last she could scarcely move about, and would lie upon a sofa most of the day. At this juncture she had occasional fainting fits, and any fright, as from a sudden noise, would bring on slight attacks of hysteria. Both my husband and myself feared that she would not live more than a few months. It was while Hattie was in this condition that I read an account of a girl cured of a similar ailment through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Then I decided that Hattie should give them a trial, and procured three boxes; when she had used them there was an undoubted improvement in her condition, and we felt hopeful that she would regain her health. She continued using the pills, and from that on daily made progress toward complete recovery. Her appetite returned, color began to come back to her face, headaches disappeared, and in the course of a few months she was as well as ever she had been in her life. It is now more than two years since she discontinued the use of the pills, and in all that time has enjoyed the best of health with absolutely no return of the trouble. I can scarcely say how grateful we feel for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for my daughter, and I would strongly urge mothers whose daughters may be ailing to give them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once, and not experiment with other medicines."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills create new blood, and thus reach the root of the disease. In the case of girls merging into womanhood they are almost indispensable, and their use is a guarantee of future health and strength. Other so-called tonic pills are mere imitations of this medicine and should be avoided. If your dealer does not keep them they will be sent postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE STAR OF THE FAMILY.
(Chicago Times-Herald.)
"Oh, yes," said the man who was visiting the old scenes, "I remember Jim Baker very well. Let's see, he wrote a book on something, didn't he?"
"Yes. It was some kind of a philo-sophical thing, and the college that he graduated from made him a doctor of laws on account of it. But his brother Frank's the one that has made his family really proud."

"Frank? I don't remember him. What did he do?"
"Why, he's the best football player in this town!"

Children Cry for CASTORIA.

If your dealer has ever tried them himself he will certainly recommend Castoria Dyes for home use.

Cured the Curious Youth.
"Pawing over the unclaimed muck is a favorite amusement among a certain set of idle youths," said a hotel clerk yesterday. "Any letters for So-and-so? they will ask, giving an imaginary name, their object being apparently to gratify idle curiosity by studying the superscriptions and reading the postals. Last fall an idiot of that type received a severe lesson here in this house. He made the usual request, giving rather a peculiar name, which he afterward admitted he had thought of on the spur of the moment. By a remarkable coincidence two central office detectives were standing near the desk at the time, and the name he gave was that of a noted crook who was wanted by the police of Chicago very badly. "Without a word more than was necessary they took the young gentleman by the arm and carried him off to police headquarters. He was so astonished that he was unable to make a coherent explanation and really presented a picture of guilt. His story at headquarters that he had asked for letters under an assumed name was regarded as so improbable that they held him until telegraphic inquiries could be made. Of course it turned out that he was not the Chicago crook, but he got the scare of his life, and you may rest assured that he has dropped that form of amusement from his indulgences."—New York News.

He Wasn't "Soaked."
"When I go over to the old country I am going to get a lot of clothes to bring back with me," said a well known Windsorite, who went abroad recently.
"Oh," said his hearer, "if that is the case, I have a brother who is a tailor in London, and I will give you a letter of introduction and write him telling him to use you right."
In course of time the traveler stepped into the tailor shop in London and presented his letter of introduction. He got a warm handshake from the tailor, who said he had received a letter from his brother telling of the traveler's expected arrival, but could not understand part of the letter. The letter, when produced, read:
"Dear Brother—The bearer, Mr. —, is from our place and wishes to get a lot of clothes in London. He has all sorts of money. Soak him. Yours affectionately."
The part of the letter that could not be understood was the concluding phrase. The traveler of course understood the Americanism, but managed to keep his face straight while he gave it a favorable construction. He saved the laugh until he could have it on his American friend.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

His Plea For Water.
"If there is anything I dislike," remarked Colonel Stillwell, wiping his mustache with impressive deliberation, "it is a bigoted person. Some of the people at my home in Kentucky came very near taking permanent offense at me, but I held out and finally convinced them."
"What was the discussion about?"
"It was the old controversy. Somebody mentioned water, and Judge Morgan stated his opinion that it was something that ought to be abolished. The major argued for its use in moderation, but the judge wouldn't have it. I was sorry to disagree with the judge, but I stated my arguments and clinched them so that he had to give in. I called his attention to the great achievements which all the world is now engaged in applauding. I recalled to his mind the glories of our naval heroes, the men who are so proud of their country, the men of whom their country is so proud. Then I pointed my finger at the judge and asked him how those naval heroes could have done these glorious deeds if there hadn't been plenty of water for them to sail their ships on."

Trains, Worry, Disease and Death.
Late trains are a source of annoyance to everybody. The British Medical Journal dwells upon the very serious result produced by them upon the health of travelers. The rush to the station to catch the train which may perchance be punctual; the weary wait on drafty platforms or in stuffy waiting rooms; the dilatory journey—all these, we are told, add seriously to the labor of the day even in the best of times, but when the weather is cold and damp they are still more injurious and in that they are largely responsible for those "colds," as they are called, those conditions of depressed vitality which are the starting points of most of the acute diseases from which men suffer and from which the elderly and the feeble die.

Genuine Courtesy.
Surface manners are like cut flowers stuck in a shallow glass with just enough water to keep them fresh an hour or so; but the courtesy that has its growth in the heart is like the rose-bush in the garden that no inclement season can kill and no dark day force to forego the unfolding of a bud.

Wonderful Development.
Watts—The development of the sense of touch in the blind is something always a wonder to me.
Gotrox—I have it pretty well developed myself. I have got so I can tell a borrower two blocks away.—Indianapolis Journal.

Nomenclature.
"Have you studied any language beside English?"
"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "three—golf, baseball and yachting."—Washington Star.

The man who reaches the railroad station two minutes after time and sees the train steaming out of the other end derives no satisfaction from the proverb, "Better late than never."—Berlin (Md.) Herald.

SAW BRIDE-TO-BE IN A DREAM.
Joy, happiness and contentment rested upon the house of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Thompson, of Falls of Schuykill, near Philadelphia, the other evening. The couple were surrounded by their children and grandchildren and by a host of friends and relatives, come to participate in the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary. Their pretty home at 4342 Ridge Avenue, under the shadow of "Laboratory Hill," shed rays of cheerfulness out into the gloom of night.
Seventy-five years have passed over the head of the husband since he was born in the quaint old town of Paisley, Scotland, where, too, his wife was born fifty-five years ago. Though so near each other, they did not meet until both had come to America years later. His wife was brought over when a small girl by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Rowley, who settled in Manayunk. Mr. Thompson, however, did not come to America until 1847.
But in the interval a strange revelation had come to Mr. Thompson. He dreamed he was in a picturesque valley, the scenery was rugged, the hillsides precipitous and thickly wooded. Through the valley meandered a boisterous and turbulent stream. In his dream Mr. Thompson saw himself climbing laboriously up the hillside, until he reached a field, inclosed, and within which cows were grazing. On the far side of the field stood a small girl. Years later he came to America and found his way to Manayunk. One day he strolled up the Wissahickon valley. In those days the wild beauty of this famous pleasure-ground was even more pronounced than to-day. The stroller was lured on and on until he began to wonder at the familiarity of the surroundings. Suddenly it dawned upon him that this corresponded with the scene of his dream. Following the course he had himself pursued in the dream, he climbed up the hillside. The same field, similar cattle grazing, and a girl on the far side of the field were all revealed to him.
Mr. Thompson crossed over to her. He spoke to her, learned that her name was Maggie Rowley, and that she had strayed away from her brother. He accompanied her to her home in Manayunk. Though she was twelve years old then, there began a courtship which ripened into marriage when she was fifteen years of age.
Rev. Dr. Andrew Culver, then pastor of the Manayunk Presbyterian church, officiated on that occasion, and was present at the golden wedding.

OUTRAGEOUS JOURNALISM.
(Yarmouth Telegram.)
The recent disaster to the City of Monticello has given a great chance to the newspapers to display their enterprise in supplying their readers with details of the sad event. The occasion, however, we are sorry to say, has also been made use of by journals, of which we had a better opinion, to palm off a great deal of matter that is sensational, wholly untrue and the opposite of what actually occurred.
For instance, the Boston Sunday papers were supplied by some correspondent who sat in his office in Halifax and wrote out columns of details solely from his own imagination. No such matter was sent him from Yarmouth.
The Globe gives a picture of the route from St. John to Yarmouth that the Monticello took on her fatal passage. The route goes several miles west of Briar Island. The truth is that the Monticello passed through Petite Passage and came down inside through St. Mary's Bay.
The Herald states that the disaster occurred by the Monticello being kept before the gale, and whilst being brought round in the wind to enter Yarmouth harbor she was washed to pieces. The truth is that Capt. Harding endeavored all through that long morning to get his steamer before the wind, and was unable to do so, as her head kept up the seas. She foundered with the jib set, as it was hoisted to assist in the work.
A reef is also shown on which the steamer finally drifted and broke up.
The Halifax Herald shows a cut, under which it has placed the name of the Monticello, which looks about as much like her as a pigeon resembles an eagle.
But about the worst monstrosity is that of the St. John Gazette. In its issue of Monday it has placed a picture of a tug boat lying head to the sea on her starboard side, with her pilot house stove in, bows broken up, spars carried away and a boat filled with people leaving from the starboard bow. Two men are seen in the water a short distance off. No more untrue picture could be imagined. Just the opposite of all these details occurred. The Monticello was on her port side, there was no damage to her spars or hull above water, the boats left the port quarter, etc.
There should be some means taken to restrain all such harrowing and untrue representations of such distressing events in the public press.

CLEAR AWAY WORMS.

SENSIBLE.
(Detroit Free Press.)
Stern Papa—So that young whipper-snapper, Smith, wants to marry you?
Daughter—Yes, papa. What did you say?
S. P.—I didn't say anything. I wouldn't listen to him.
Daughter (in tears)—Oh, Papa, when you—
S. P.—Don't begin now. I won't have it. That why I shut him up. What do I want to hear a whole lot of promises and prospectus talk and half page advertising business about what he thinks of you and what he will do and all that for? I don't. Go along and get married if you want't, and the Lord have mercy on you. I'll give you a check for 25,000 on your wedding day, so you can be just as sassy to him as you want to be. Run along now and don't bother me.

Mania for Operations

Among the Doctors. No Need of the Knife to Cure Piles. A Surger, Cheaper Easier Way, Dr. Chase's Ointment.
Dread of the surgeon's knife causes multitudes of people to suffer on year after year with piles, when they could be cured without risk, expense, or danger of an operation by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, the only preparation guaranteed to cure any case of itching, bleeding, or protruding piles.
Rev. J. A. Baldwin, Baptist minister, Arkona, Ont., writes:—"For over twenty years I was a great sufferer from itching and protruding piles. I used many remedies and underwent three very painful surgical operations, all without obtaining any permanent benefit. When about to give up in despair I was told to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and did so, finding relief at once. I used three boxes, and am almost entirely cured. The itching is all gone. I have advised others to use it, believing it would cure them as it has me."
Dr. Chase's Ointment is the only positive and actual cure for every form of piles. 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.
