THOUSANDS OF ANAEMIC GIRLS HURRYING TO THE GRAVE

A Young Lady at Cobourg, Ont. Whose Case Was Pronounced Hop-less, Tells How She Regained Health and Strength-A Lesson to Mothers.

Anæmia is the term used by doctors to indicate poverty of the blood. The prevalence of this trouble is most alarming, especially among young girls, and a large percentage of the altogether too numerous cases of consumption which annually ravage the country have their origin in this trouble. The first indication of anæmia is a pale, sallow or waxy complexion. This is followed by loss of appetite, frequent headaches, indisposition to exertion, swelling of limbs, violent heart palpita tion and frequently fainting fits. These symptoms may not all be present, but the more there are the greater the urgency for prompt and effective treatment, which should be persisted in until all traces of the trouble have vanished. Among the thousands who have been brought near to the brink of the grave from this trouble, and ultimately restored to health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, in Miss Bella Boyd, an estimable young lady whose home is at Cobourg. Miss Boyd gives her experience as follows:---

"It is nearly ten years since my illness first commenced, and although I wadoctoring more or less I received little or no benefit, as the doctors did not seem to understand my trouble. Two years ago my health became so bad that another doctor was called in, and he stated that my case was a most severe type of at æmia and that while he could help me the trouble had progressed to such a stage that he could hold out little hopes of a cure. A this time I was as pale as chalk, my eye lids were swollen and would hang down over my eyes like sacks of water. My feet and limbs would swell, and were al ways cold. I was sul ject to violent hea . aches, severe palpitation of the heart, and if I stooped over I would be so dizzy that I could scarcely regain an upright post tion. My appetite failed me almost entirely, and I grew so weak that I was mere wreck. While in this condition read in a newspaper of the cure of a young girl whose case was much like mine, through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I determined to try them, Those who knew me did not think auy medicine could de me any good or that l would ever get better, but I determinea at all events to give the pills a fair trial I have used them for nearly a year with the result that I feel like a new person The swelling in my eyelids and limbs has disappeared; my appetite is good and my face is regaining the color which left it years ago. I can sew and do work about the house, and this great change in my condition is due solely to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It is not too little to say that they have saved my life and 1 strongly urge girls who are similarly afflicted to give them a thorough trial."

Humiliating a Rival. It is not a mooted question in Persia whether women dress for the eyes of men or those of women, as there only women see women, at parties. In her book. "Through Persia on a Sidesaddle," Miss Sykes. writing of the women of Teheran, the capital of Persia, confesses that even Mohammedan isclation does not prevent women from being envious of other women, if they are dressed better than themselves. She writes I was told that many of the fine ladies would give large sums in the European shops of Teberan for any brocade of silk which struck their fancy and would wear it at the next party to which they invited their friends. flaunting the new toilet ostentatiously before them to fire their jealousy

Usually, however, one of the guests would pay her hostess out by buying some more of the same material and having it made up for one of her slave women She then would invite a large company to tea, and the cups would be handed round by a negress adorned in the ricb silks with which the former hostess is Arrayed.

Later on the slave would dance before the guests The great lady. who had been invited to be mortified, would be both disappointed and humiliated. The lady who had given the party would be pleased at vexing the rival.

EATING AN OYSTER.

The Starfish Has Rather an Odd Way of Doing It. How the starfish eats an oyster is told by H. W. Conn in St. Nicholas. The oyster when at home lives in a hard lime shell which nicely protects him from the attack of enemies. Man. with his tools, can open the shell and remove the soft animal, but besides man the oyster has few foes. Oddly enough, his greatest for is not, as might be expected, an animal with powerful jaws and strong teeth, but one wholly without jaws. It is the common starfish, so common everywhere at the scashore. Now, the starfish is a soft, flexible creature, very sluggish, seemingly belpless and utterly uphble to attack such an animal as the oyster. Its mouth, which is in the center of the disk, has no teeth or jaws. How can such a helpless creature open the formidable oyster shell and get at the animal concealed within?

Its method of doing so is odd enough. It first clasps the oyster in its artos, wrapping its five arms around the shell tightly. Having thus seized the syster, it quietly waits. Just exactly what happens next even our scientists do not exactly know. The two shells of the oyster are beld together by a hinge which is opened by a spring. The spring is so adjusted that the shells will be pushed open unless they are held together by the muscles. Some scientists tell us that after the starfish has held the oyster for awhile the oyster opens its shell in order to get food, and the starfish that has been waiting for this new injects into the shell a little reddish liquid. This acts as a poison, paralyzing the muscles and thus making it impossible for the animal to close its shell. Others tell us that the process is simpler and that the starfish simply holds the shells tightly together until the oyster is smothered. As soon as it is stupefied by the suffocation the muscles relax and the shell opens. Whichever of these two accounts is true it is certain that after a little the oyster shells fly open. Now comes the from its shell, digesting it in its own home and eventually crawling away. leaving behind the gaping, empty shell.

oddest feature of all. The stomach of the starfish is very large and elastic, and it is now thrown out of the animal's mouth much as one would turn a bag inside out. This stomach is then thrust within the oyster shell and wrapped around the soft animal, beginning at once to digest it. The starfish does not take the trouble even to remove the oyster

The tragedy took place in the billiard room of the hotel at 2 o'clock in the morning after a quarrel, participated in by Hamilton, Day and a number of other prominent men. All had been drinking, it was said, to a considerable extent. The men who had taken part in the affray at once left the place, but were found later by the police who took charge of the matter. There was a long cut on the dead man's head. The face was badiy bruised and a knife thrust through the left side of the neck had severed the sub clavicle arterv.

Helen Irving's Tragic Death.

The tragic story of the beautiful and talented Scottish woman, Helen Irving. is not. perhaps, well known, although it has been celebrated in song She had been for some time courted by two gentlemen whose names were Bell and Fleeming Bell told the girl that if he ever found her in Fleeming's company he would kill him She, however, had a strong regard for Fleeming, and one day, while walking along the romantic banks of the Kirtle, she observed his rival on the other side of the river among the bushes

Conscious of the danger her lover was in, she passed between him and his enemy, who, firing, shot her dead. Fleeming crossed the river and killed the coward. A heap of stones was raised on the place where the brave woman fell, and she was buried in the near churchyard. Fleeming. overwhelmed with love and grief. went abroad, but soon returned and stretching himself on her grave. expired He was buried by her side.

A Lucky Hairdresser.

The old saying that a man may be a hero to every one but his valet is called to mind by an article in The Illustrated London News on "Famons Masters of the Tonsorial Art. ' in which stories are told of Duplan. the bairdresser to Napoleon This astate man made himself so indispensable to the unfortunate Josephine and became so intimately acquainted with the emperor's affairs that he was retained in the service of the imperial family when Josephine was superseded by Marie Louise He cared for the hair of both the emperor and empress, being paid 4,000 france a year for service to the former and 6,000 for arranging the coiffures of the latter Ultimately he was the recipient of about 40.000 francs a year, his demands made a general assignment for the benefit being constantly increased because of Napoleon s restriction in refusing to allow the tonsorial artist to treat the hair of any other customer

Conductor to Terms.

I make my humblest salaam to a woman I saw in Fourteenth street Tuesday afternoon, for she has what I would rather have than much carthly treasure the courage of her convictions. She was still of an age where birthdays may be publicly celebrated, and she was accompanied by a small girl child. The car was crowded when she entered it at I street, but the fortunate leaving of a woman who got down there left a vacant seat. into which she sank gratefully. She looked tired, and the child was obviously weary. The mother looked around for a seat and, seeing none, lifted the tired little thing into her lap. Presently the conductor came along. The woman gave him a ticket. "How old is that child?" he asked.

"Six years and three months," answered the woman.

"C'hildren over 5 full fare," said be. The mother drew a long breath, and the light of an irrevocable resolve dawned in her eyes.

"If you will provide a seat for her.] am willing to pay her fare," said she. "and I shall not pay her fare if you don't. If I am obliged to treat her as an infant in arms, she shall have the privilege of an infant in arms. I simply will not pay for a child I have to hold in my lap."

The conductor was too amazed to be quick with his reply. "You will have to pay or get off, madam." said be. The woman merely swept him a look that would have withered a smaller man into nothing at all.

"I shall do nothing of the kind," she said, and he was obliged to pass on. About Q street there was a seat for the child. The mother beckoned to the conductor. "Here's the child's fare," said she.

"The company is entitled to it now, but no seat, no fare." My deepest salaam to her, I say. What mightn't we accomplish if only we'd all stand shoulder to shoulder with "No seat, no fare," as our warery ?-

Fried Bread.

"It is painful to observe that toast as an article of food is rapidly disappearing," said the regular eater in restaurants. "It is now almost impossible to get it in New York wherever one may order it. Fried bread is now accepted everywhere as the substitute for toast in spite of the difference in its taste, appearance and every other quality. Persons who eat toast for reason of health will find that fried bread produces an effect absolutely the opposite to that which toast would cause. I do not know agle restaurant in New York today in which real toast is served. The fried bread can be more easily and quickly prepared. The danger of burning is not so great, and in the hurry of a restaurant kitchen it is much less trouble to put bread into the frying pan than to have it kept over live coals long enough to toast. So toast must also be added to the pectors and the giving of directions with | which are rapidly disappearing from New
