

MAIN RIVER ITEMS.

My name was signed to a set of notes in THE REVIEW and I have been falsely accused. I decided therefore to have the gain as well as the name.

There is no order of the present day as everything is disorder personified.

Mr. W. Walker who has been the guest of Mr. Hugh McKay, returned to Buctouche Saturday.

Mr. Hugh McKay is still lamenting the loss of his devoted friend Joy.

Berry picking is a pleasant past time for Sunday afternoons.

There is excitement in galore on the opposite shore. Tuesday evening a dance was held in the school and on the following evening amusement seekers steered their barks to the banks opposite to witness the moving of a mowing machine.

We should be very proud of our Main River. It attracts the eye of the stranger from the States who enthusiastically term it the "beautiful ocean."

A dance in honor of the departure of a young friend, was held at Norman McAuley's.

Of late a number of carriages have been traversing Main River Road, especially one drawn by a horse with a white face. We wonder what tax receipts are delivered on Sunday.

Bass River folks were grieved to miss a certain young lady from her accustomed seat in church and in the carriage where we thought she had a monopoly.

Mr. Hugh McKay drove to Buctouche Saturday.

Mr. William Fahey, accompanied by his cousin, Miss Donovan, arrived here last week.

Mr. William Wilt and Mr. James Fahey are at present in Main River.

The Catholic Church picnic given at Bass River was a decided success. Dinner and tea were served and the supplies for the refreshment counter were almost inexhaustible. Dancing was indulged in, and a person who could hold a place in a set was considered very fortunate; for both old and young were partakers of the amusement.

The Misses McLeary leave to-day for Moncton.

Not wishing to outdo even the one who forged my name, I will close my communication.

WILD MAN OF BORNEO

NICE WORM MEDICINE

Mrs. Wm. Graham, Sheppardton, Ont., writes: "I have given my boy Dr. Low's Worm Syrup, and find it an excellent worm medicine. It is nice to take and does not make the child sick." Price 25c.

VIEW FIELD NOTES.

As there has been very much showery weather lately, it is very discouraging to the hay makers.

Miss S. Scott, of Kingston, and Mr. John Livingston, of Liverpool, England, spent Sunday in View Field.

While Mr. William McMichael was shingling his house, the stage gave way and Mr. McMichael fell about twenty feet. We are glad to say no bones were broken.

Some of our young folk spent a very enjoyable evening at the White House last Wednesday. Songs and games were the chief amusement, and when the hour came for retiring, they all left in couples well satisfied with the evening's enjoyment. Many thanks were rendered the two Miss Smith's.

Mr. Harry Stevenson and Mr. W. A. Cowperthwaite, of Richibucto, were in View Field fishing grounds last Saturday.

Mr. John Blanchard, of St. Ann's has bought the Murray farm, and had as many as ten teams of horses and a large number of men making hay on it last week. We wish the young man much happiness and good success.

Mr. Albert Glendenning, of Boston, and his mother, of Kingston, called on Mr. John Parkhill last week.

As news are scarce I will bring my notes to a close.

Works thousands of cures annually. Endorsed by the best breeders and horsemen everywhere. Price, $1.00 per bottle. As a liniment for family use it has no equal. West Lorne, Ontario, Can., Dec. 14, 1898. DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.

The Advantage in Gambling.

"In all gambling games," said an old time sport, "there is a percentage in favor of the 'house.' Anybody, except a born fool, knows that a man couldn't afford to equip an establishment, hire help, pay rent and defray all the hundred and one incidental expenses unless he derived a profit that was based on some fixed principle and not dependent on mere luck or chance. Just where the profit comes in, however, is something that very few people understand. Most of them imagine it is derived from some slight advantage in the arrangement of the game, such as the 'zero' numbers in roulette or the 'splits' in faro, but they are very much mistaken. It really depends on a principle that applies to all games alike and might be termed the 'percentage of capital.'"

"Strange as it may seem, I could take a capital of $1,000 and begin pitching nickels, in which the chances are perfectly even, letting the players guess either way they wanted to, and I would make a steady profit day in and day out. The secret is this: The average player has only a limited amount of money, and a slight run of bad luck wipes him out. He is obliged to quit, and somebody else takes his place, while the house keeps right on through good luck and bad, continually swelling its reserve with the cash of the broken players. That principle of the percentage of capital is at the bottom of the profits of every gaming house in the world from Monaco to Long Branch."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

He Scored on Lincoln.

In 1858 Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas had a joint debate on the college grounds of Knox college, Galesburg. It was a great meeting, and I shall never forget the tremendous enthusiasm that was manifested by the respective partisans of each of these great men. Mr. Douglas had the opening and conclusion, and he got in one shot on Mr. Lincoln that was so pat that even the adherents of that gentleman had to join in the laughter.

Mr. Lincoln, in the course of his remarks, twitted his opponent with making only one speech—a set oration which he delivered to each new audience, the suggestion being that he was incapable of changing his stock address.

In reply Mr. Douglas said that he admitted the charge, and conceded that his rival knew in advance what he was going to say. He wished that he could foretell with the same exactness what Mr. Lincoln was going to say, but alas! that was impossible, since he changed his argument to suit his audiences, making a fierce abolition talk in communities where that sentiment was strongly entertained, as at Galesburg, but in southern Illinois ignoring abolition and standing up squarely as an old time Whig.

A Good Natured Dog.

A very ordinary looking farm horse harnessed to an old wagon stood by the curb, and on the board that served for a seat lay a small dog of such mixed blood that no guess could be made as to his breed.

As a delivery wagon passed on the opposite side of the street a large red apple fell off. Before it stopped rolling the dog bounded across the street, picked it up with his teeth and with tail wagging rushed back to the horse, in front of which he stood up on his hind legs while the apple was taken from his mouth.

As the horse munched the apple he made the peculiar little noise that horses make when petted, and doggie replied with throaty little barks which plainly told what a pleasure it had been to go after that apple. Then he went back to his nap on the wagon seat.—Burlington Free Press.

How It Happened.

"Poor fellow! I fear he was badly hurt."

"He was."

"Well, I suppose he carried some accident insurance?"

"Not a bit of it. He wanted to take out a policy, but in view of his business the companies declined on the ground that he was an extra hazardous risk."

"What was his business?"

"He was a canvasser for an accident insurance company."—Chicago Post.

Death and the Doctor.

Death and the doctor met at the door.

"Well, I've got him!" exclaimed Death banteringly.

The doctor was furious, of course.

"Oh, yes," he cried, with much heat, "but you didn't dare make a square issue of it and get him with the disease I was treating him for!"

Hereupon Death laughed affectedly, saying nothing.—Detroit Journal.

Compliments.

"How, for instance," asked the inquisitive boarder, "would you define a compliment?"

"In love's warfare," replied the dialectic boarder, "a compliment is a skirmisher sent out for the purpose of bringing on an engagement."—Chicago Tribune.

The Oldest Tree.

The oldest tree on earth with an authenticated history is the great bho tree of Burma. For 20 centuries it has been held sacred to the Buddha, and no person is allowed to touch the trunk. When the leaves fall, they are carried away as relics by pilgrims.

Lovely Hands.

Lovely hands are more uncommon than pretty faces, yet a little silver sand, a deep basin, a stiff nailbrush, good soap and two good little implements (file and orangewood sticks) will transform ugliness to lasting beauty in a month.

Had Nerve as Well as Weight.

In one of the newspaper composing rooms in this city there is a typesetting machine operator who is a great lover of horse racing. A good share of his wages goes to the bookmakers at the local tracks during the racing season, although for some reason he never acquired the poolroom habit and has always refused to put down a bet unless he was "there to see how the dogs ran. He is fully six feet tall and weighs about 200 pounds. His size suggested a joke to one of his friends during the racing season last summer.

"Going to Sheephead Bay today?" the friend asked.

"I'd like to, but if I go I won't have much left to bet with."

"I can give you a jockey's badge," said the friend.

"Gimme it," replied the printer eagerly, never realizing the ridiculous contrast between his size and that of even the heavyweight jockeys. Armed with the jockey's badge he presented himself at the race track gate and showed his badge. The ticket taker looked at him in astonishment.

"Great Scott!" he finally blurted out. "Wot do you ride, the elephant?"

"There's one entered in the fifth race," was the reply. And his nerve so paralyzed the gatekeeper that he was admitted.

Hot Times.

"I can remember a good many years back," said a Detroit veteran in politics, "and whatever may be said as to the integrity of our present statesmen, campaigns are conducted in a great deal more moderate tone than they used to be. Then it was the usual thing to indulge in the strongest possible abuse of men and parties."

"I once heard a joint debate between a couple of candidates for our legislature that will serve to illustrate. They taunted and berated each other till all other questions were lost sight of in the popular anxiety to see which excelled in this style of warfare."

"Finally the hotter headed of the two burst out in an announcement that he would whip his rival or any of his friends."

"That reminds me," said the other coolly, "of a dog my father used to have that could whip any dog in the neighborhood or any that came that way with the teamsters."

"What's the application, sir?" roared the other. "I'll stand no innuendoes, sir. Make your application, if you dare."

"It is simply this, my pugnacious friend—no one ever thought of sending father's dog to the legislature."

The fire eater remained at home.—Detroit Free Press.

A Beetle That Cuts Metal.

There is no use trying to keep in confinement a curious little creature known as the metal cutting beetle.

Not long ago an entomologist caught one of these beetles and, unaware of its peculiar ability for sawing through anything in its way put it in a cardboard box. Soon tiring of solitary confinement or probably thinking its captor had forgotten to provide it with a door, the beetle cut one for itself and crawled out.

It was captured and put in a wooden box, and as soon as the novelty of its new home wore off, again the persevering insect cut a hole in the box and escaped.

The next time the escaped prisoner was caught it was put in a small glass jar with a tight fitting pewter cover punctured to let in air. But the metal cutting beetle from Mexico scorned to live in a pepper box and gnawed a hole big enough to allow it to creep out into the big world again. And this time it was not caught.

Primitive Pipes.

The earliest Indian pipes were simply tubes, in one end of which the tobacco or dried leaves were put. It has been found that the pipes used by the ancient Romans were made on the same plan, the bowl being an invention reserved for a comparatively recent day. It is worthy mentioning incidentally that the cigarette is really an invention of the Indians. They made cigarettes just like those now in use, with wrappers of the thinnest corn husks.

There is a popular notion by the way that paper used for modern cigarettes is destructive to health and apt to be saturated with drugs. Facts do not warrant this idea, inasmuch as the best cigarette paper is quite harmless, being made out of new linen rags, from the refuse left over in the manufacture of shirts and other linen garments.

There is no such thing as rice paper. What is known as such is the pith of a plant cut in thin slices used by the Chinese for painting pictures.—Science Sitings.

Ireland Called Many Names.

Few countries have suffered so many changes of name as Ireland. In the time of Ptolemy the island was known as Scotia. Diodorus Siculus calls the island Irs, or Iris in the "De Mundo. Credited by some scholars to Aristotle, it is called Irenne in the "Argonautica of Orpheus it appears as Irtius. Strabo calls it Irene. Caesar, Tacitus and Pliny mention it as Hibernia. Mela called it Juverna. The native names in Celtic are Ir, Eri, or Erin. Plutarch mentions it under the name of Ogygia. The name Ireland is no doubt derived from the native Ir or Eri, but when it came into general use is a question concerning which scholars are much at variance.

Judicial Levity.

The police justice, who had the reputation of being a strictly upright and honest officer of the law and had little business in consequence, looked indignantly at the frayed edges of the judicial coat.

"I am sorry," he said, "but I shall have to bind you over."—Chicago Tribune.

Dizzy Spells and Headache

Weak, Nervous, and Run Down, would Shake with Nervousness—A Terrible Case—A Remarkable Cure.

Mrs. Chas. H. Jones, Pierceton, Que., writes:—"For years I have been a great sufferer with my heart and nerves. I would take shaking spells and a dizzy, swimming feeling would come over me. Night after night I would never close my eyes, and my head would ache as though it would burst. At last I had to keep to my bed, and though my doctor attended me from fall until spring, his medicine did not help me."

"I have now taken five boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it has done me more good than I ever believed a medicine could do. Words fail to express my gratitude for the wonderful cure brought about by this treatment."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food makes pale, weak, nervous men, women, and children strong, healthy, and happy. In pill form, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

The bondholders of the Jamaica railway have abandoned the line and Thursday the governor of the island took possession.
