VIEW FIELD NOTES.

It is with pleasure that your old note writer has once more raised his pen to line a few notes to your worthy paper and to let the world know that View Field is a more flourishing little place than you would think by the last few batches of notes, but as it was a new hand at the pen it seems that she left out a few very interesting items.

Our school has once more reopened after a lengthy term of holidays, under the skilful management of Miss Viola Murray. We wish her a very pleasant and successful term with her pupils.

Mr. William McMichael is progressing rapidly in the finishing of his new house.

Mr. William Parkhill is building a large woodshed and other outbuildings which adds greatly to the appearance of his place.

Mr. Edward Smith and Mr. John Parkhill are getting their barns shingled up in first class style.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh, of Black River, visited Mr. Edward Smith last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sinton spent Sunday at W. McMichael's.

Miss Nina Girvan is talking of returning to the hardwoods, where she will settle down for the present.

Rumor says there are going to be two weddings here this Autumn. If so, a cold winter may be expected.

Miss Nettie Smith spent last week in Kingston, and Jardineville.

Mr. John Beaven returned home to Somerville, Mass., after spending his vacation with friends in Galloway and Kingston. His wife and children will return later.

Miss Gertrude Parkhill is spending a few days with friends in Butouche.

Now, as my pen is scratching the bottom of the ink bottle, I will have to bring my notes to a close, hoping to hear from "Nobody's Girl" soon again.

WOMAN AND HOME.

MRS. FOSTER, THE FAIR APOSTLE OF PHYSICAL CULTURE.

Etiquette of Introductions—Wisdom in Marketing—A Woman's Impulsiveness—Admonishing Children. Bags of Perfume.

Some years ago Mrs. William C. Foster projected among the society women of Minneapolis a physical culture club, of which she was made president. This club claims to be the only one of the kind in the country in that it is strictly non-professional. It is the out of the ordinary duty of the president to instruct the members, without one penny of pay, in the art of both physical and vocal culture. In the absence of the president this work devolves on the vice president.

The club—it is called the Students' club—meets fortnightly for the training of the body. There are no papers, but a most excellent course in physical culture.

MRS. WILLIAM C. FOSTER.

which is carried out systematically. There are no dues, the amount needed for expenses being met by a two-thirds vote of the club. The members are required to practice in their homes three minutes every night and morning.

Mrs. Foster is an Alabama woman by birth and received the finishing touches to her education in Chicago. She attended the Chicago Conservatory of Oratory and because of her gifts as a reader won the personal esteem of Edwin Booth and John McCullough. Having won one of the international prizes in oratory, she has entered into the Paris Conservatory and Trinity college, Dublin, both of which she took advantage of during her recent sojourn in France and Great Britain. In appearance Mrs. Foster is attractive. She is a commanding looking brunette, with a face full of animation. As a woman of intellectual attainments she has delved deeply not only into the physical but the psychical side of her work.

"The physical depends so greatly upon the psychical," is her declaration, "that all of the wonders wrought by careful and persistent exercising are largely due to the mental strength of the student."

Etiquette of Introductions.

It is very important that discrimination should be used in introducing people to one another; for an undesired introduction compels the person to whom it is welcome to treat the other with the greatest coldness or to continue an undesired acquaintance. As a general rule, it is better to introduce too little than too much, for one's friends can ask one to introduce them to one another, so that one's shortcomings in this respect may always be made good. Should the smallest doubt exist as to whether a meditated introduction will be agreeable one should consult the wishes of both persons concerned before introducing them.

The unvarying rule in making an introduction is that the gentleman should be presented to the lady without reference to rank. This is a privilege of sex, and disregarding it shows at once a want of social knowledge.

When the introduction has been made, it is usual for the lady and gentleman or the two ladies to bow and to make some little remark. It is not usual to shake hands, but there are many occasions when this would be quite correct. For instance, it is always right to shake hands with every new acquaintance in one's own house, and if one were to introduce two of one's intimate friends one would naturally expect them to shake hands.

It is the privilege of a lady to be the first to offer to shake hands when a gentleman is introduced to her. When two ladies are introduced and one is of higher rank than the other, it would be an act of friendliness on the part of the lady of higher rank to offer to shake hands.

At dinner parties the hostess uses her discretion as to the introductions she thinks proper to make. In this case it is not necessary to ask a lady whether she may introduce to her the gentleman who is to take her down to dinner, supposing they are not acquainted. It is enough for her to say, "Mrs. Dash, Mr. Blank will take you in to dinner." It is not necessary to introduce wholesale at a dinner party, but when the majority are acquainted the host and hostess should introduce some of the most important guests to one another before they enter the dining room. After the dinner is over the hostess may introduce ladies to each other in the drawing room if she thinks it advisable to do so.—Omaha World-Herald.

THE TRAIN BELL CORD.

An Old Engineer Tells the Story of Its Invention.

In old cars the bellcord ran over the top and was wound on a reel, says Mr. George in "Forty Years on the Rail," and the brakeman had to climb up to the top of the cars, no matter how fast the train was running, to use the cord or adjust it in case of mishap. An old engineer of the Erie road tells how the bell cord was invented.

Sometimes the conductor wished to stop a train between stations, but as there was no means of letting the engineer know his wishes except by sending word by a brakeman, who had to climb and scramble over a dozen freight cars before he could attract the engineer's attention, there was often a vexatious delay.

"Pappy" Ayres, the pioneer Erie conductor, hit upon an expedient for signaling to the engineer. He tied a stick of wood to a long rope, hung the stick in the engine cab and carried the rope over the car tops to the rear of the train. His plan was to pull the rope and rattle the stick when he wished the train stopped.

The engineer of Conductor Ayres' train was conservative—"sulky," the conductor called him—and did not see fit to recognize such an innovation.

"Why didn't you stop the train when I pulled that rope?" thundered the conductor after a flagrant refusal to notice the stick of wood signal.

"Cause no one told me to stop it," was the engineer's surly answer.

"Well, I tell you to stop it hereafter when I pull on that stick of wood," said the conductor. "If you don't"—He turned away muttering some sort of threat.

The very next run the conductor's vigorous pull on the rope was unheeded by the engineer. At the close of the day Conductor Ayres met the engineer with the words:

"See here! I've stood all the nonsense I'm going to! Just come out here, and I'll give you a good licking!"

There was fire in his eye, and the engineer, noting it, turned mild at once.

"All right," he answered amiably. "I'm willing to wrestle with ye, an if ye can throw me I'll notice any signal, if 'tain't more'n a bumblebee's buzzin, provided ye can harness him so's to buzz when ye want the train stopped."

A wrestling match followed, in which "Pappy" laid the engineer low. Therop and stick worked to a charm after that and soon led to the introduction of the now universal bell and cord system of signaling.

More than half the total number of Mowers used on earth bear the name of

McCORMICK!

WHY? Because farmers have discovered that the McCormick Mower has the lightest draft, the simplest gearing, the longest and strongest pitman and the most excellent cutterbar. That it is the only mower with a real rolling tilt and that it has a direct draft from the team to the cutterbar. They have also discovered that it draws easier, lasts longer and costs less for repairs than any other mower. For sale in Kent County only at my warehouse, Kingston, or by the following agents:—
