CANADIAN LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., U. S. A., June 21. -There has been a recrudesence in interest in the Boer war here of late, arising probably from the recent captures made by the Boers, who were generally sup. posed to be past such accomplishments. and by the publication of the report of Captain Reichmad, of the 17th Infantry, who was the United States Military At tache during the earlier seven months of the war. Captain Reichman says that the ages of the Boer soldiers were from 18 to 59, that the Transvaal army numbered 25,411, and the Orange Free State 14,834 The Boer Burgher, he says has not trained [Carleton Place, Baby walker; F. Wilks, as a soldier and his fighting methods are | Otonabee Township, combined coffee the outcome of Lis environment and personal character. The Boers he found to be a reserved and dignified people, who made few comments, even when they heard of the destruction of their homes and property by the British. As to the j Of such serious diseases as Scrofula, Old branches of civilize | war with which they | are charged, Captain Reichman says they were due to ignorance or accident. Upon the whole, he found very good dicipline was maintained in the Boer army. The soldiers were equipped with good arms and plenty of ammunition. Bayonets were not used. Captain Reichman says that volunteers played a considerable part in the South African war. There was a small company of American scouts with the Boers under Captain Hassel. These had dwindled to a few men at the time of the capture of Pretoria. There recently passed through this city. Captain J. H. Smith of Baden-Powell's mounted police of South Africa. He is on a five months' furlough and flying visit to his sister in Florida. Captain Smith has seen much active service in South Africa. He was for a time on the long it will continue, for, despite the in 10 and 25c. sizes. energy and perseverance of our troops, the enemy when attacked, persists in its gnerrilla tactics of breaking up into small bands and scattering over a wide area. Lord Kitchener fully realizes this situation and declines to exhaust his best troops in a will-o'-the-wisp chase after bards of the enemy who are always on the run, and who, with the sympathy of the local Dutch, can easily evade our pursuit. The process of 'hustling,' however, goes on steadily, and, against an enemy that refuses to stand and fight, 'hustling' is perhaps, the only effective offensive method."

sador, who as the most important tritish official in America ought surely to ! e correctly designated. Although he was aised to the peerage in 1899 under the title of Lord Pauncefote of Preston, many f the leading American dailies and week Les continue to refer, to him as "Sit Inlian Pauncefote." Even metropolitan apers have recently referred to him only , this title, which has been wholly super se ed in correct usage by the higher de gnation. "If I were J. Pierpont Morgan, I would licker a little for some English railways," and Mr. Roberto F. Bevan, of Maiaga, Spain, who is in this city, and who is tamiliar with business and industrial conitions in Great Britain and on the conment. "He could get that kind of property just now cheap," added Mr. Bevau. 'The railroads leading into London are simply swamped with traffic. Their tracks are inadequate to the demands, but the owners have no money to pay for the expensive purchases of land. The rolling stock is poor and the trains, accommodating the local traffic into London, arrive all he way from a half hour to an hour and a half late. English railroad stocks are regarded over there as good as railroad bonds are in the United States, but the rices of the stocks have been going steadly downward. They organized their raffic some years ago on the basis of cheap labor and chear coal. The unions have forced up the price of labor, and coal, m. tead of being obtainable at from 8 shill. ings to 10 shillings, went as high as 25 hillings. All business in England has been bad. In the course of time, however, the country will recover from the present lepression."

THE REVIEW RICHIBUCTO N. B. JUNE 27, 1901.

Polson Proof People. There are entire communities of poison proof people who partake of doses white arsenic with as much zest as of the average person partakes of a meal. Chief among these singularly gifted people are the Styrian and Corinthian shepherds who inhabit the districts of Lamprecht, Salzburg, Hartberg, Leoben, Oberzeirung and the Erzgebirge mountains. The sturdy mountaineers consider that arsenic improves their wind for chamois climbing.

Some years ago Dr. Knapp put two of these men through their paces before the German Society of Physicians assembled at Gratz. The one ate six grains of white arsenic, or enough to kill three men, without experiencing the slightest inconvenience. The other partook of four grains of yellow arsenic, or orpiment, with equal impunity. It was explained that, seeing the good effect of the drug upon the coats and condition of their flocks, many of these. shepherds start the practice under the impression that taken in moderation it is good for human beings also.

Usually started with a small weekly dose spread upon bread and butter, the embryo arsenic eater has to undergo a very severe test of his devotion to the drug. Violent sickness and burning pains accompany its first use, and the drug speedily asserts its fatal power over its devotee.

Any attempt to leave off the drug is generally fatal. The women of these arsenic eating districts are famous for their beautiful complexions and luxuriant tresses.

The Missing Turk.

Sarah Bernhardt was once playing at Marseilles in a spectacular play in which she made her entree accompanied by six Turkish slaves. A line on the programme announced that these six Turks would accompany Mme. Bernhardt, but when the time came for them to go on one of the youngsters had disappeared. Sarah mustered the five in order and made her entrance with a grand flourish. The house was crowded, but not a hand clap greeted her as she appeared. Then a still, small voice in the gallery murmured something in an indignant tone. Fifty voices immediately took up the strain, and in ten seconds more the whole house was shouting the same phrase. Bernhardt strained every nerve to catch what they were complaining about. She knew the phrase began with "Manque," but the rest of it was lost in the general hubbub. For a full minute the tumult continued. Then Sarah, muttering things below her breath, rushed like a fury down to the footlights. In the front row the actress had spotted one man who was not taking part in the hullabaloo. Pointing at him, the actress exclaimed sternly: "You seem to be the only sensible person in the house. Tell me what on earth they are kicking up this row for?" The man rose, bowed to the actress and remarked in very bad American-French, "Madame, you are shy one Turk."

The Deer's Eyes. A Canadian hunter tells this incident of how he once came face to face with his quarry and hadn't the heart to fire: "It wasn't a case of 'buck fever,' such as a novice might experience, for I had been a hunter for many years, and had killed a good many deer. This was a particularly fine buck that I had followed for three days. A strong man can run any deer to earth in time, and at last I had my prey tired out. From the top of a hill I sighted him a few miles away. He had given up the fight, and had stretched himself out on the snow. As I stalked him, he changed his position and took shelter behind a bowlder, and, using the same bowlder for a shelter, I came suddenly face to face with him. He didn't attempt to run away, but stood there looking at me with the most piteous pair of eyes I ever saw. "Shoot? I could have no more shot him than I could have shot a child. Had the chance come from a distance of 100 yards. I would have shot him down and carried his antlers home in triumph, but once having looked into those eyes it would have been nothing less than murder. I have hunted deer since then, but I find the sport affords me little pleasure. Whenever I draw a bead, the picture of those mute, appealing eyes comes before me, and, though it has not prevented me from pulling the trigger, I have always felt glad somehow when my bullet failed to find its mark."

For Those Who Smoke.

The great point in pipe smoking is to learn to smoke slowly. When this habit is acquired, the full flavor of the tobacco will always be enjoyed, every smoke will be a cool one, and tongue burning will be unknown. It is, however, very hard for nervous people to smoke slowly. We know of cases where smokers have tried for a score of years to check their smoking speed without success. They probably did not begin to make the effort early enough in their smoking careers. With good tobacco and a root pipe the slow smoker attains a degree of pleasurable enjoyment in smoking of which the rapid smoker has not an inkling.

Perhaps all smokers do not know that it makes no difference in the flavor of General Greene's Discipline.

General Francis Vinton Greene was one of the strictest disciplinarians in all the army that went out to fight Spain. He was in command of the Seventy-first regiment, N. G. N. Y., at Camp Black, near Hempstead, N. Y. As the regiment was breaking camp on the way to the front an old gentle- lent. man interrupted General Greene, who was talking with the writer.

"Sir," he said, "will you grant a brief leave of absence to Mr. Blank, a private in this regiment? He is a son of the late Colonel Blank of the army. His mother is dying, and she is asking for her boy. He will join his command at Tampa."

"I am very sorry, sir," replied General Greene, "but it will be impossible to deviate in any case from the rule by which we are all bound. My own father lies dying at home, yet I cannot go to him."

And General Greene, as a matter of fact, did not for many weeks see his father, who died before the Spanish war was ended.

Missed His Chance.

During his lecture to children at the Society of Arts Mr. E. Walter Maunder told his audience an instructive story. A certain lecturer on astronomy observed that some of the students were not paying due attention. "Mr. So-andso," he called out to one of them, "will you be good enough to tell us of what the corona is composed?" The student addressed hesitated for a moment and then blurted out, "I did know, sir, but I've forgotten." The professor looked at him and then exclaimed: "What a calamity! Here we have the only man who ever knew the composition of the corona, and he has forgotten!"-London Chronicle.

Juvenile Logic.

Norman's mamma was something of a stickler for propriety, and she was not a little annoyed that it seemed impossible to make the boy give his uncle's name the customary handle. One day after the little fellow had met with a severer reproof than usual for this shortcoming of his he said: "I mean to be good, mamma, but I don't see why I should say Uncle Harry. 1 don't say Uncle Papa, do 1?"-New York Mail and Express.

pipe tobacco how many times a pipe goes out. A cigar which is allowed to go out once has its flavor ruined and is most appreciably termed a butt. A pipe, however, tastes, if anything, better for going out.

Fastidious smokers always have at least two pipes at hand and never fill one until it has entirely cooled off. This is a help toward cool smoking and reasonable life in a pipe. A good test by which to tell if you are smoking too fast is to hold the bowl in your hand. If it is too hot to do so, then you may know your speed is too great. -Exchange.

The Slav and Woman.

Abhorrent even to the strongest "Slavophile" is the position occupied by woman in the family and in social life. To escape the charge of prejudice I shall quote a few proverbs current among the southern Slavs-a few out of many hundreds:

The man is the head; the woman is grass. One man is worth more than ten women. A man of straw is worth more than a woman of gold. Let the dog bark, but let the woman keep si-

He who does not beat his wife is no man. "What shall I get when I marry?" asks a boy of his father. "For your wife a stick; for your children a switch.

Twice in ms life is a man happy-once when he marries and once when he buries his wife. And the woman sings, in the Russian folksong which I have freely translated, Love me true and love me quick,

Pull my hair and use the stick.

Although there are love songs of another kind, in which woman is praised for her charms, she becomes virtually a slave as soon as she marries, and the little poetry of the folksong does not accompany her even to the marriage altar. She is valued only for the work she can do in a household and for the children she can bear, and should this latter blessing be denied her her lot becomes doubly pitiable, and she often seeks release by suicide.
