WILMOT BROWN. General Manager and Lessee. Richibucto, June 10th, 1900.

Shrewd Peter the Great. Peter the Great adopted rather a novel means to convince his subjects that they should change their clothes to conform with the modern costumes of western Europe. Believing, as is well known historically, that the future greatness of Russia depended upon the facility with which it was made to assimilate all that was best in other countries, he had succeeded in introducing some important innovations into the half civilized region over which he held sway. At length he had patterns of cloth hung up at the gates of the towns, and those who did not conform to the fashions thus set were docked publicly, albeit this was done in as pleasant a manner as possible, for Peter believed in being good natured with his people. They, on the other hand, Russel obtained a license to marry Molly loudly demurred and used the argument that what was good enough for their forefathers was good enough for them.

"Very well," said the sagacious Pe ter. In 1703 he gave a dinner at Moscow to celebrate the marriage of one of his jesters and insisted that it should ancient usage. There had formerly been a superstitious custom of not lighting a fire on a wedding. So Peter made them do without a fire, although it was very cold. He wouldn't give them any wine, because their forefathers never drank it. When they remonstrated, he reminded them that it was a poor rule which did not work all around, and thus by his good natured greatness wheedled his people into new coats, about the bardest thing that can be done with humanity.

Dartmoor Superstitions.

In no part of England is superstition so rife as in the west of England, and especially so on that tract of barren land known as Dartmoor. One angler who had great luck on the river Dart discovered this last year. He made a big catch, but it was made on Easter Sunday. It consisted of 56 trout, the largest 11/2 pounds and three of one pound each, besides several of half a appears to be rather rough on the men, pound, a phenomenal catch for the upper Dart. When he tried to have some cooked at the farmhouse where he was staying, the old moorland cook refused to have anything to do with them, deeming them "devil's fish" or "vishe," as she pronounced it.

MONCTON AND BUCTOUCHE Another superstition is that if one picks a piece of broom while fishing that one will assuredly be drowned before the day is out. It is general for the moormen when doing a quiet poach when the streams are in flood to spit on their first worm for luck. It is thought unlucky to look into the water before making a $\begin{array}{c} 15.15 & 19.00 \\ 17.15 & 19.50 \end{array}$ cast. The most curious superstition is that if one is fishing and for some time catches nothing some one is wishing him ill, and the only way to counteract the "ill wishing" is to kneel or "sit on your knees," as they say on Dartmoor, and bite off the top of a young bracken fern. The fish then will be found to bite with most peculiar and surprising avidity.

THE WORLD OVER.

LONDON, June 20 -- When the case of i amy against Earl Ru-sel was called a representative of the public prosecutor aid the prisoner was charged with feloni ously marrying Molly Cook in America n April 15, 1900, while his wife, Mabel, Countess Eussell, was alive. The prosecution proceeded to outline the Earl's marriage to Mabel Scatt (the first coun tess), the separation, his subsequent disappearance from England with a neighbor Mrs. Somerville, and that the discovery that he and Mrs. Somerville were togeth. er in Nevada. On April 14, 1900, Earl Cooke, otherwise Mrs. Somerville, and a judge performed the ceremony on April 15. Counsel for the Earl pointed out that the prosecution omitted mention of the divorce proceedings instituted by his lordship in America. In the event of a conviction the case will be taken to the be conducted in strict conformity with House of Lords as Earl Russell is entitled to a trial by his peers. The presecution announced that the Nevada district judge Mr. Koelher, and witnesses of the marrisge, had arrived in England to prove the ceremony. Counsel for the defendant intimated that Earl Russell baving secured a divorce in America, believed his subsequent marriage was legal.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 21 .- A special to the constitution from Waynesboro last night says: A. M. Leary and J. L. Davis engaged in a duel yesterday in which both were instantly killed. The trouble was the result of a family feud. Davis, who owned a big distillery, opened fire on Leary with a pistol. He fired three times. After being shot down Leary fired a shot, killing Davis.

PORTLAND, June 21.-William Hands, the negro, who has been a conspicuous figure in the Mosher murder case and on whose confession the state mainly relied in its prosecution of Edward Graffam, in in the Superior Court, Tuesday, pleaded guilty to manslaughter and was sentenced ten years in state prison, the maximum penalty for the crime. The court room attendance Tuesday was small compared with the crush at every session of the Graffam trial but nearly all who took part in that trial were present among them nearly all the relatives of the Mosh er family, the attorneys in the case and nine of the 12 jurors. When the court was ready to proceed, George Libby, counsel for the prisoner, said the negro wished to retract his previous plea of not guilty and would tender to the court a plea of guilty of manslaughter. This plea was accepted and Hands was sentenced to serve ten years in the State prison. In accepting the plea of Attorney General Seiders said that while he appreciated the testimony given by Hands he must insist that the full penalty for the crime of manslaughter be imposed. NEW YORK, June 21.-A census of the consumptives in this state is to be begun in about a week by Dr. Daniel Lewis, commissioner of the state board of health. It will be the first census of the kind ever undertaken by this state. The census is for the purpose of learning the number of consumptives in the state as far as possible and the revealing of other facts relating to the disease. It is expected that question of what the state should do for the care of those within its borders who are afflicted with consumption, and who cannot afford to pay for treatment at the private hospitals. About eighteen or twenty months after this census is com. pleted another one will be made, and the a good basis for comparison. The result sioner of health and to the public whether
