NEWS OF DEWET AT LAST

HE IS BADLY DEFEATED BY BRITISH UNDER ELLIOT.

LONDON, June 15.—Lord Kitchener reports to the war office from Pretoria: "During the march from Vrede, General Elliot's column engaged DeWet near Reitz, June 6. After severe fighting they captured 71 loaded wagons, 45 prisoners, 58 rifles, 10,000 rounds of ammunition and 4,000 cattle. The Boers left 17 killed and three wounded. Our casualties were three officers and 17 men killed and one officer and 24 men wounded."

LONDON, June 16.—Lord Kitchener has cabled from Pretoria under date: "Near Wellmansrus, 20 miles south of Middelburg, 250 Victorian Mounted Rifles from General Beaton's column, were surprised in camp at Steenkopspruit by a superior force of Boers at 7:30 p. m. June 12. The enemy crept up to within short range and poured a deadly fire into the camp, killing two officers and 16 men, and wounding four officers and 38 men, of whom 28 were slightly wounded. Only two officers and 50 men escaped to General Beaton's camp. The remainder were taken prisoners and later released. Two plain boys were captured by the enemy. Full details have not yet been received."

LONDON, June 16.—The serious reverse which Lord Kitchener reports as the first accident of the kind that has happened to the Australian contingent, and it is supposed to be due to neglect of proper picketing. Although it is offset by the defeat inflicted upon DeWet, the loss of the guns is regarded as a serious matter, which will encourage the Boers to continue the struggle.

More or less fanciful accounts are published on the continent of alleged peace negotiations, but there is nothing in them and nothing has come of the interview between Mrs. Botha and Mr. Kruger, beyond revealing the fact that Mr. Kruger will listen to no proposals unless they are accompanied with a guarantee of the independence of the republic.

The Daily Mail's Cape Town correspondent says that Cecil Rhodes speaking at Bulawayo Saturday, predicted that a federation of South African states would come in three or four years but he contended that to grant self-government to the republics before federation would render federation impossible.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 14.—A murder case in which the defendants are mere boys, one of them in short trousers began in Arkansas city, Kan. It is believed the state will have to make an unusually strong case to convince the jury of the guilt of the prisoners, on account of their age and the fact that they are boys of good reputation. The accused are Charles Betts, Jr., fourteen year old. The former is a son of Charles Betts, a former policeman of Arkansas City. Moore is the son of William Moore a machinist. They are charged with the murder of C. S. Wiltberger who was a wealthy farmer, was on the way home after selling a load of wheat when he was shot from behind. Several checks were stolen from him and his body was thrown into the wagon. The State offered a reward of $300 for the discovery of the murderer and the relatives of the victim offered $500. The boys were arrested about two weeks later.

CANADIAN LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., U. S. A., June 15, 1901.—Lord Pauncefoot has arrived in London, and has said to a newspaper man that he has high hopes of the ultimate ratification of the treaty which is about to be made between Great Britain and the United States in regard to the Nicaraguan Canal. Meanwhile, the impression is strong in this country that unless some arrangement is reached that will be satisfactory to the United States, serious trouble is likely to ensue when Congress meets again. Just what will be satisfactory to the United States apparently, turns on the name of the man who is to be selected as chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate. There are now two candidates for the honor, and a third, Senator Frye, who can get it in preference to either of them if he wants it; the chances are, however, that he will prefer to remain where he is, leaving the contest to Senators Cullom of Illinois, and Lodge of Massachusetts. Cullom is entitled to the preference by right of seniority and undoubtedly wants the place, but may, nevertheless, be forced to give way to Lodge. The point of the matter is that Cullom is strongly in favor of the ratification of the reciprocity treaties which are supported by the Administration but are antagonized by the Republican leaders in the Senate. Lodge is opposed to the treaties and thus has the preference of the most powerful senators. On the other hand, Cullom is in favor of going slow and trusting to negotiation with Great Britain to get through a Canal treaty, while Lodge is in favor of abrogating the Clayton-Bulwer treaty without delay, hurling defiance at Great Britain, and generally wrapping the Monroe Doctrine around him. The President is, of course, opposed to this, presenting a situation where the Administration and the leading senators are strongly opposed to each other on the question as to which of the two men shall be selected.

The British authorities have taken steps to secure the extradition to England of F. von Berger, arrested in New York last Monday for alleged irregularities in obtaining money from an English woman of means.

C. Arthur Pearson, owner and editor of the London Daily Express, has just arrived in the United States to make a study of the latest mechanical and editorial developments in metropolitan journalism. Mr. Pearson is a believer in American methods. He has welcomed the American invasion of England, believing that only by such an object lesson can his people be made to awake. "Wake up England," is the daily admonition of the Express. He is now arranging for the publication of the Express in all the leading cities of the British Empire. His ambition is to own and direct a British Empire newspaper whose editions will, like the drum beat of the British army, follow the sunrise around the globe. When the Pacific cable is laid Mr. Pearson will have a leased wire service all around the globe. Mr. Pearson is now managing thirty successful publications, chief among which are the Daily Express, published simultaneously at London, Newcastle and Crewe; Pearson's Magazine, M. A. P.; Pearson's Weekly, Short Stories, the Royal Magazine and the Ladies' Magazine. Under the management of Mr. Pearson the Daily Express has in thirteen months reached a daily circulation of more than half a million, and is a formidable rival of Harmsworth's Daily Mail.

1899 1900. George K. McLeod, $19 50 $20 70. JAMES SMITH, Collector, No. 1, Carleton. Dated at Kouchibouguac, N. B., this 20th day of May, 1901.

The Plucky Rector.

Dr. W. S. Rainsford had started a mission school in the back rooms of a saloon on Avenue A and at one of the first sessions found a big ruffian in possession, greatly to the discomfort of the teacher. Told to go out, the fellow informed Dr. Rainsford with an oath that he would see him further first. The doctor talked peaceably enough to the blackguard, hoping to avoid a disturbance, but when he swore at him again gave him his own medicine in a blow that felled him like an ox. The fellow arose, dazed and groping, to fling the doctor standing over him, ready to have it out.

"Have you got enough?" he asked. The man cried quits and went his way. The Sunday school session proceeded. A week later there was another fight. The rector started in to clear the room, persuasion having failed, and found the burly ruffian of the previous encounter at his elbow.

"I thought I was in for it," he said, telling of it, "and that they had come to clean me out. I made sure my back was free and turned upon them. Imagine my surprise when I saw my customer of the week before grab the other by the neck and rush him to the door.

"Here," he said, firing him out, "the rector and I can clean out this saloon! That was the last fight we had."

His Sad Blunder.

Yes, it was a sad blunder. He thought the children were in the other room, but it so happened that it was occupied by his wife and a lachrymose neighbor. We all know these sensitive women who weep on the slightest provocation, who begin to sniffle when they talk of their woes, this being really little more than a bid for words of comfort, and this woman was one of them. What had happened is quite immaterial. Something had been said or done that had completely upset her, and in her appeal for solace she sniffled.

As before remarked, he thought the children were in the other room, and one of the children had been suffering from cold in the head. Of course every one knows how annoying a youngster with a cold in the head can be, and he was not in the best of humor anyway.

"For heaven's sake, blow your nose!" he cried at last. Oh, yes; it was a sad blunder, but even blunders have their compensations. The lachrymose one does not come to that house for sympathy as she formerly did.

A Friend Collector Snubbed.

Collectors of autographs, postcards, etc., are not always conscious of the impertunacy of their demands, and the following anecdote, which comes from Trieste, gives a striking example of their failing and of the humorous way in which the intended victim treated his tormentor. An Italian painter received a letter in the following tenor:

Dear Sir—I should like to ask you a great favor and hope you will excuse the liberty I take. I am making a collection of painted postcards and should feel myself highly flattered if you would kindly send me one, with a little picture painted on it by yourself. It will certainly be the most treasured card of my collection, as I should be able to say that you were one of the first to honor me in this way. Hoping to receive one, I beg to thank you in advance.

Bread and Cheese.

A couple advanced in years got married lately. The husband had a room in the house securely locked, the inside of which his wife had never seen, and, being curious as to its contents, she begged again and again to see the room.

At last he consented, and, lo and behold, the room was full of whole cheeses! He explained matters by telling her that for every sweetheart he had in his young days he bought a cheese.

Wheels and Wheels.

The woman who had been abroad was describing some of the sights of her trip to her friends. "But what pleased me as much as anything," she continued, "was the wonderful clock at Strassburg."

"Oh, how I should love to see it!" gushed the girl in pink. "I am so interested in such things. And did you see the celebrated watch on the Rhine too?"

Remembered Whole Books.

Walter Savage Landor carried his library in his head. When he had read a book, he always gave it away on principle, having, as he said, observed that with such a purpose in his mind he was sure to retain of a book all that was worth keeping. In his old age Landor was furious if he did not at once remember any passage of a book or any name or date.

Short and Sour.

There had been a small bank failure, and the bank had gone into the hands of a receiver. The receiver had proved to be dishonest and had absconded with what remained of the funds of the institution. Expert detectives, however, were on his track, and he was run to earth in a mountain town and taken back to the scene of his financial exploits.

It was after midnight when the detectives arrived with their prisoner, and Mr. Means, the principal depositor in the bank and therefore the principal loser, was awakened at his home and informed by telephone of the capture.

He expressed his gratification and went back to bed. Shortly afterward he was aroused to receive another telephone message to the same effect from a different source. "Thanks," he said, "but I had heard of it already. Good night!"

And again he sought his couch. About 2 o'clock he was awakened a third time. The telephone bell was ringing. In no gentle frame of mind he answered it. "Hello!" he said. "Hello!" responded a voice through the telephone. "Is this Mr. Means?" "Yes. What do you want?" "Mr. Means, this is Deputy Sheriff Jones. We've caught that runaway receiver. Is there anything you'd like to have me do personally in the matter?" "Yes!" roared Mr. Means. "Hang up the receiver!" And he was not disturbed again.

Mark Twain and the Serpent's Tooth.

Mark Twain's daughter, Miss Clara L. Clemens, in entering upon her career as a concert singer, had a long conference with a manager. Many matters were discussed, plans made and details settled. Miss Clemens dictating her own ideas. The young singer, who had experienced considerable difficulty in obtaining parental consent to a public career, showed her earnestness by the businesslike manner in which she looked into affairs.

When matters had been fully considered and the manager was about to leave, Miss Clemens said, with the large determination that small bodies not infrequently possess: "I wish it distinctly understood that my father's name is not to be mentioned at all in connection with my singing in public."

Mark Twain, who had been sitting in the room during the interview, in which, however, he had taken no part, looked up quizzically and said, with a twinkle in his eyes: "You see what it is to have a thankless child."

Did They?

There is nothing much more distressing than an unfinished story. A number of people in a London drawing room were conversing about capital punishment when a lady remarked: "How strange it must seem to be sentenced to death!"

"Not so very, very strange, I assure you. I was myself once condemned to death in Africa," said a returned African explorer. "Indeed!" exclaimed the lady. "And were you—did they?" "Did they what, madame?" "Why, did they execute you, you know?"—Exchange.

When Corks Float Upright.

A cork which is longer than it is broad, which is the case with all ordinary corks, floats upon its side, so to speak. How can we make it float upon its head? Place one on end upon a table and around it place six others. Seize them all together and plunge them under water so as to wet them completely. Then remove your hand gently and let them take their own position in the water, when you will find that they will stand upright, as if supporting one another. This is because the water that penetrates the cork will make them cling together.

Railroading in Ireland.

A somewhat nervous English tourist vouchers for the genuineness of the following incident of Irish traveling: The train arrived some 20 minutes late at a small station, and the engine driver inquired of the station master, "Did the express go by yet, Tim?" "It did not," was the answer. There was in decision on the part of the engine driver for a moment when he cheerfully exclaimed, "Ah, well; we must chance it!" as he blew the whistle and started off on the single line.

Boiled Water in Ancient Times.

Now that the use of boiled drinking water has become common, it is interesting to be reminded that a similar method of guarding against disease was practiced in ancient times. Herodotus tells how Cyrus had his drinking water boiled and carried in silver vessels, and Pliny the elder relates that Nero had water boiled and afterward cooled for drinking by placing it in glass flasks surrounded with snow.

Laureate Nonsense.

Tennyson is said to have been fond of foolish fun, that ever delightful sort of fun which is not wit, but nonsense. One day, at Burlington House, he asked the guests a conundrum which he had just made: "Who are the greatest women in the world?"

Very Grave.
