MARITIME PROVINCE NOTES.

Chatham Commercial: With bared head Judge Wilkinson, comfortably seated in his sleigh, and Mr. Warren C. Winslow modestly standing alongside with Bible in hand, attracted considerable attention on Water street Saturday afternoon. Some thought one thing and some another, but on enquiry it was learned that the venerable judge was administering the oath of allegiance to Mr. Winslow. After the ceremony their heads were again uncovered and His Honor requested the lawyer to kiss the Bible a second time, we suppose just to make sure that everything was all right. It was a novel ceremony, and, we believe, the only one of its kind on record.

Woodstock Dispatch: Charles L. Smith postmaster of Woodstock, is the owner of an interesting old document, a royal grant of 24,150 acres of land extending from Woodstock down to old Fort Meductic. The grant is dated 1774, and is made to Robert Brown and 121 others, all being British soldiers. The land is quoted as lying, as it did at that time, in the county of Sunbury, province of Nova Scotia. It is signed by John Parr, Captain General of Nova Scotia. To the document are attached two huge seals, one of sealing wax, now badly broken, and the other of beeswax, the latter being four and a half inches in diameter and about three-eighths of an inch thick. Captain Jacob Smith, a great-uncle of Charles L. Smith, was one of the grantees under the deed.

It is understood Dr. James Hannay of St. John has been or will be engaged to report the proceedings of the Legislative Assembly. No more competent man for the work could be secured for Dr. Hannay has a thorough knowledge of what is required, and has had lengthy experience in the newspaper business. It is intended to make an important departure this year, viz., in addition to giving a summary of the speeches a resume of the business of the Legislature will be furnished.

A Woodstock despatch to the St. John Globe says: While P. E. G. Rice, C. P. R. telegrapher, was in the act of digging a scuttle of coal in his office stove he noticed something yellow, which, upon investigation, turned out to be a piece of stick of frozen dynamite. The balance of the stick was found in the coal bin, where it had been cut in two by the shovel. It is supposed to be a stick from four tons which the G. T. R. authorities report as still missing from the car of dynamite wrecked in the collision at the station a few days ago. It is believed some boy, becoming afraid of his burden, dropped it through the cellar window. Most of the missing explosive is supposed to be distributed through the town, and there is great anxiety as to where it will next turn up.

Woodstock Despatch: George Glew, of Woodstock, a member of the Carleton County quota of the second Canadian contingent for service in South Africa, has GENUINE BARGAINS. Big Reduction in Prices of Winter Goods.

By GENUINE BARGAINS we mean GOOD GOODS at LOW PRICES. We have not reduced the prices for any fault that has been found with the goods. The goods are first-class in every respect and we are simply reducing prices to clear out the balance of our winter goods to make room for a large stock of spring goods which we expect will arrive very soon. Among the goods which we consider exceptionally good bargains will be found the following:

Men's Ulsters, Overcoats, Sheepskin-lined Coats, Homespun Jackets, Flannel Shirts, Knitted Shirts, Flannel Shirts with sweater collars, Sweaters, Cardigan Jackets, Knitted Wool Underwear, Fleece-lined Underwear, Imitation Lamb Caps, Fur Caps, Lumbermen's Oversox, Wool Sox, Wool-lined Kid Gloves, Wool-lined Mocha Gloves, Ladies' Cloth Coats, Fur Collars, Muffs, Wool Underwear, Hose, Dress Goods.

The first prices we had on above mentioned goods were low, but with our latest reduction it puts them at prices below anything yet thought of. Do not miss this chance of getting a bargain, as it may be some time before you get such an opportunity again.

A. & R. LOGGIE

been informed that there is small likelihood of his getting his share of the Patriotic Fund: When Mr. Glew applied for enlistment Major Good already had his quota of eighteen men made up. Major Good telegraphed to Major Ogilvie, asking him to take Mr. Glew as orderly room clerk. Major Ogilvie replied to let Mr. Glew go to Halifax and enlist as a gunner and take his chance of getting the clerkship. Mr. Glew went to Halifax on the strength of this telegram, he enlisted as a gunner and went through the campaign and was on duty every day. For some reason Gunner Glew's name was not placed on the list of men entitled to a share of the Patriotic Fund. He went to the front as the other men did, he performed his duties faithfully, and why he should be deprived of his rightful share of this fund his friends would like to know. Mr. Glew's share of the fund would be $117.

Isaac Newton Hayden, who died recently in Honolulu, intestate, was the son of William Hayden, of Prince Edward Island, deceased. One of William's two brothers was George Hayden, who died at Douglastown, N. B., leaving a son, John Hayden, a deaf man, and two or three daughters, one of whom is now a widow, Mrs. Peter Trainer. The Miramichi heirs are supposed to be entitled to about $200,000, or one-fifth of the estate left by Isaac Newton Hayden.

The Maritime Premium Company of St. John, has suspended payment, and a statement is now being prepared to be submitted to the creditors. This company was carrying on the business of selling goods on the instalment plan.

The Chatham World says: Miramichi pilots are accustomed to steering by the river lights, and when one of them started from Bay du Vin for Escuminac, the other night, on the ice, it is no wonder that he lost his bearings. He found himself on Bay du Vin Island, after a long and circuitous drive, and wisely determined to stay there till morning. He could pilot a ship over the Horseshoe at night if the beacons were alight, but was lost without them. He was seen, early next morning, steering straight for Fox Island.

Lumbermen from the backwoods districts state that the moose, caribou and deer are having a hard time of it this winter, the deep snow in the woods making it most difficult for them to pick up their living. The carcasses of several have been found in an emaciated condition and it is believed that many have died of starvation. About the country settlements game of every kind is thick while the deer are very thick about the lumber camps. All the animals except those that are carnivorous are suffering greatly from the same cause.—Moncton Times.

Campbellton Events says: A 16-year-old lad named LaBillois committed suicide at Miguasha by hanging himself to a threshing machine this week. Coroner DeWolfe, M. D., of Paspébiac, held an inquest on the body Tuesday, the jury finding that the lad was temporarily insane when the act was committed.

Moncton Times: Mr. John Johnson is cutting considerable lumber this winter with his portable mill just below Berry's Mills. Besides spruce and pine lumber of different kinds, he is also cutting a lot of hardwood boards and planks. Mr. Johnson recently sawed what is considered these days to be a pretty large pine tree. The tree in question measured 85 feet and it was topped at 12 inches. The Times' informant says there was between 3000 and 4000 feet of lumber in the stick.

The Supreme court at Fredericton Friday afternoon quashed the bogus Rothesay election list and also refused an application on behalf of Mr. Reid, of Restigouche to rescind the order of Judge McLeod extending the time for the service of the election petition on the respondent.

Moncton Transcript: On a special train from east Thursday night an Italian suddenly took crazy. He broke windows and demolished seats. At Moncton he was handed over to the police and locked up. This afternoon he was taken to the asylum at St. John by Chief Tingley.

St. John Telegraph: Little Leo Crawford, the three-year-old son of Mr. John Crawford, a mason of Main street, came near drowning last Wednesday at noon. He came so near to losing his life that his escape is certainly remarkable. He was playing about Long wharf, and wandering along the shore, espied a log laying in close. He scrambled upon it, and gradually worked his way along, until near the end, when the log, giving a quick lurch, suddenly threw him into over seven feet of water. Mrs. Charles Bridgdon, who lived close by, happened to see from her window, what she took to be a child, floating in the water, near the shore, handy to a log. She at once ran down and found she was not mistaken. She immediately crept out upon the log, and seizing young Crawford brought him ashore. The child was unconscious, and was at first supposed to be dead. He was not far from it, but with the proper treatment and stimulants, he was brought around. Mrs. Bridgdon's rescue was certainly a plucky one.

Chatham World: An event of much interest took place at the pro-cathedral at an early hour Monday morning, Feb. 18th when Rev. H. T. Joyner joined in the bonds of wedlock Miss Lizzie B. Harrington, daughter of Mr. T. M. Harrington, of Chatham, and Mr. Ed. Wilson Malone, Provincial Land Surveyor, of Stanley, N. B. The bride, gowned in a pretty suit of brown with hat to match, was assisted by her sister, Miss Agnes Harrington. Mr. Warren Malone supported the groom. A sumptuous wedding breakfast was served at the residence of Mr. Harrington, after which the happy couple left on the early train for Halifax on a wedding trip.

Mr. Joseph A. Killam, the well-known bridge contractor, died at his home in Moncton Thursday morning, after an illness of over three weeks. Mr. Killam was taken ill at Dorchester three weeks ago, having contracted a heavy cold while driving in a cold rain from West Brook, N. S. He was removed to his home in Moncton, but never left his bed after. The heavy cold developed a violent type of Bright's disease, which resulted in his death. Deceased was born at Wheaton Settlement, parish of Salisbury, and was the son of the late Joseph Killam. He was a brother of Mr. A. E. Killam, I. C. R. bridge inspector, and has two other brothers, William and John, living in the parish of Salisbury. Mr. Killam has resided in Moncton for about 12 years and has been engaged in bridge contracting, being known favorably throughout the province. He was 51 years of age and leaves a wife and two children.

The death of Mrs. John Ferguson of Middle Sackville occurred Thursday morning. She was 72 years of age and leaves five children, three daughters and one son living in Sackville, and one son in Moncton.

The will of the late Hon. Senator William J. Almon, of Halifax, appoints his son-in-law, Wm. E. Gravelly, nephew, Thomas Kitchie, and grandson, W. Bruce Almon, executors; $200 is bequeathed to Kings college. The remainder of the estate is to be divided in nine equal parts.

One share is left to Thomas B. Almon. One share to the children of the deceased Cotton M. Almon.

One share to the children of the late Mrs. Brewster.

One share to Andrew U. Almon.

One share to Mrs. Adlington.

One share to Mrs. Edward Binney.

One share to George W. R. Almon.

One share to Mary Almon; at her demise her share goes to the King's College library.

The estate is worth about $50,000.

Wm. Johnson, proprietor of the Canada House, Chatham, died Thursday forenoon of pneumonia, aged 84 years. He was formerly Harbor Master at that port. He had been identified for many years with the prohibition cause and was recognized as one of the leaders in the temperance movement in that section of the province. He was one of the best known men of the Miramichi and his hotel was in former years the leading public house in Chatham and he had entertained many prominent guests. His wife died about two years ago. He leaves one son James, who for several years has been manager of the Canada House, and one daughter, Miss Maggie Johnson.

Loss of Appetite.

A person that has lost appetite has lost something besides—vitality, vigor, tone. The way to recover appetite and all that goes with it is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla—that strengthens the stomach, perfects digestion and makes eating a pleasure.

Thousands take it for spring loss of appetite and everybody says there's nothing else so good as Hood's.

"Where is Josiah?" asked Mrs. Corntossel' uneasily.

"Well," answered her husband, as he proceeded to fill his pipe, "I won't say for certain. If the ice is as strong as he thinks it is, he's gone skatin'; and if it ain't, he's gone swimmin'."

NOTES FROM THE CLYDE.

The spectacle of a family in mourning is a sad one. At present we have to contemplate the saddest spectacle the world has ever seen—the British nation mourning the loss of their beloved Queen. When the news of the Queen's illness came it was at once realized that she was sick unto death. A great hush seemed to fall over the whole land. In large cities this was specially noticeable. Here in Glasgow the rush and roar of the multitudes seemed stilled in awe awaiting the dread message which was so soon to come. When the news came "The Queen is dead, "God save the King" there was not a single note of jubilation in the latter part of the announcement. How different this was from the former occasions when her predecessors died. The deep love which she had inspired in the hearts of all made itself plain in the genuine grief shown on all sides. Mourning is so general that it may truly be said "the mourners go about the streets." A colored dress, unless it be a purple one, is hardly seen. Many of the places of business have been draped with black and purple.

The proclamation of King Edward took place here on the Saturday following the Queen's death. It was to have been held at the Cross, but the day was very snowy so the performance took place in front of the Municipal buildings in George Square. There was no pomp or display about it. The thousands of people who crowded round were very quiet and there were none of the usual noises heard in great gatherings. After the reading of the proclamation and the sounding of the trumpets three cheers were given for the King and the national anthem was played. There was no great enthusiasm. This does not show any want of love for King Edward, but it was as it should be.

Last Saturday was a day of universal mourning. All the shops were shut, and the streets were very quiet. The churches were open and services held. There was a procession from the Municipal buildings to the Cathedral where a memorial service was held, while the great procession was taking place in London. On Monday the last sad rites were performed and her sorrowing relatives deposited the body beside that of her loved husband.

Somehow or other it is difficult to realize that the Queen is dead. She was queen when the vast majority of her subjects were born and one came to look upon her as the head of the British nation for all time. Like the rest of us she was only mortal and had to go when the call came. That her successor will fulfil the high duties of the office to which he has been called we have every reason to expect with confidence. As Prince of Wales he occupied a very trying position. He never lent himself to any party or intrigue, and it may truly be said of him that he never was guilty of trying on the crown as a former Prince of Wales was. He was popular as the Prince of Wales, as King Edward he bids fair to be even more popular. May he long be spared to reign over devoted and loyal people.

For the last ten days we have had a touch of winter. There has been some snow but not enough to block the streets at all. Today it has begun to rain so possibly we have reached the end of the cold snap.

Smallpox has been on the increase and there is somewhat of a panic at present. There are over 300 cases in one hospital and as many as 50 new cases have occurred in one day. The disease is so mild in type that many people are going about with it on them without their being aware. Revaccination has become the order of the day and in many of the larger works it has been made compulsory by refusing to allow the men to work unless they get vaccinated. Some of the medical men are reaping a rich harvest. Universal revaccination will soon stamp it out and not a minute too soon in the interest of the forthcoming exhibition. Somebody is to blame for having allowed the epidemic to get out of hand, but who that somebody is it will be difficult to decide.

HOW THEY SANG.

The editor of "Catholic Book Notes" says that a convent school chapel, when visited, was found to be filled with little girls of ages ranging from six to sixteen with fresh sweet voices, in childish accents singing:

"Of our passions we are weary—
Weary of the yoke of sin."

A convict prison chapel, when visited, was found, with a select and exclusive congregation of forgers, burglars, wife-beaters, etc., in stentorian tones giving tongue to:

"Dear angel, ever at my side,
How loving Thou must be,
To leave thy home in heaven to guide
A little child like me."

A SURPRISE TO EVERYBODY
