WHERE ARE WE?

No system known in history ever equalled as a wicked compromise with iniquity the license system of this hour. Christian governments! Christian citizens! stand self-confessed, self-convicted criminals guilty of wholesale murder, guilty of fraud, guilty of hypocrisy. Truly, to those who are not besotted victims of blinding superstition, of stupefying partisanship, or of insatiate greed, the words of the late Cardinal Manning are words of terrific import-"while men are legislating the foundations of the state are sinking." Busy citizen! pilgrim of eternity! pause amid the trivialities of ephemeral interests, and, taking your bearings, gaze away into the infinite beyond, realize duty to self, posterity; earthly and eternal endowments of influence and responsibility.

Blinded by inherited falsehood, or false conceptions of the relations of cause and effect, easy-going legislators counsel delay while every hour of its existence intensifies the malignant power of the cancerous excrescence, defacing, deforming, defaming the institutions bearing the prefix Christian. ## PIMPLES.

These Troublesome, Disfiguring Blemishes can be Removed by the all Powerful Blood Purifying Burdock Blood Bitters.

The nasty little pimples that come on the face and other parts of the body are simply indications that the blood is out of order and requires purifying.

They are little irritating reminders to you that you need a course of treatment with Burdock Blood Bit-

When B.B.B. makes your blood pure then the pimples will vanish and your skin become soft and clear. Here is evidence worth consider-

Mrs. Morrice Ketch, Bristol, Carleton Co., N.B., writes: "I take great pleasure in recommending Burdock Blood Bitters to every one troubled with pimples. I was for years that I would break out with them at times on my face and back. I tried all sorts of remedies, including doctors' medicine, but everything failed to cure me.

At last I heard of B.B.B. and thought I would try it.

'When I had finished taking two bottles I felt a great deal better, so kept on using it until I had taken in all six bottles. It has completely and permanently removed every pimple from my body and I never felt better in my life than I do at the present time.

"I was run down and nervous, so got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and they proved of great benefit to me. My mother also wishes to say that they were of great value to her."-P. HILLIER London.

QUEEN VICTOTIA'S RING.

The wedding ring of Queen Victoria was, by her own wish, buried with her. As a matter of fact, it had been her inseparable "wear" for more than sixty years. The rule of her married life had never been to remove it, and, once, when a cast of her hand was taken, her great alarm was that the ring might be displaced with the plaster. With the single exception of its enforced removal in later years for a few hours to be enlarged, so as to accommodate it to the increased girth of the finger, the ring was worn incessantly for over sixty years.

Of all her inumerable rings next to her wedding ring Queen Victoria most valued a very simple one, indeed. It was made of gold and enamel, and had a very small diamond as its central ornament. Its market value was slight enough, as well might be, for it was bought by a boy's pocket money. It was, in fact, the first present made by Prince Albert to the Princess Victoria when, at the age of sixteen, he visited the future country of his adoption. The actual emerald serpent ring, which he gave her afterward as the formal engagement ring, was never quite so precious to her majesty as this humble predecessor, which stood as the first token of this memorable affair of the

The Conductor's Ready Answer, The Metropolitan Street Railway company has in its employ a philosopher in the person of a Broadway conductor. It was late in the evening, and his car on its up town trip had reached the vicinity of the city hail. As it passed one of the taller office buildings a stout woman, clutching him by the arm, exclaimed:

"Oh, conductor, how many stories high is that building?" "'Leven," laconically replied the conductor, without so much as an upward glance. The woman sank back with a sigh of satisfaction.

Just then a small man with a large traveling bag rushed in almost out of

"I say, conductor," he gasped, "what time can I get to the Grand Central

"'Leven," was the quiet reply. "That's good," commented the small man, evidently relieved.

At this juncture another man climbed aboard that wanted to know about what time the car would reach the Gllsey House.

"'Leven," again replied the conductor, with a weary look. When questioned as to the uniformity of his answers, he replied: "Yes. You see, if you hesitate about answering 'em, they git worried, but if you have an answer ready they're satisfied. Now, about this time of night, I always say 'Leven.' It's a good, handy number, easy to say. Other times I use other numbers. I allus have a lot of stock answers on hand. It saves time and trouble.

The Queen and Jenny Lind.

There is a pretty story told of Queen Victoria and Jenny Lind which shows how the modesty of two women, the queen of England and the queen of song, caused a momentary awkwardness which the gentle tact of the singer

It was on a night when Jenny Lind was to sing at Her Majesty's Opera House that the queen made her first public appearance after the memorable Chartist day.

For the great artist, too, this was a first appearance, for it was the beginning of her season at a place where the ment that the prima donna stepped upon the stage. Instantly a tumult of acclamation burst forth.

Jenny Lind modestly retired to the back of the stage, waiting till the demonstration of loyalty to the sovereign with them. The receipts for the past year should subside. The queen, refusing to appropriate to herself that which she imagined to be intended for the artist, made no acknowledgment.

At length, when the situation became embarrassing, Jenny Lind, with ready tact, ran forward to the footlights and sang "God Save the Queen," which was caught up at the end of the solo by the orchestra, chorus and audience. The queen then came to the front of her box and bowed, and the opera was resumed.

Why Roads Are Crooked In China. The Chinese road is private property, a strip taken from somebody's land. This is done much against the will of the owner, since he not only loses the use of it, but also still has to pay taxes

One consequence is that it is wide enough for only one vehicle, and carts can pass one another only by trespassing on the cultivated land. To prevent this the farmers dig deep ditches by the roadside. As the surface wears away and the dust blows off it gradually grows lower, and after awhile it becomes a drain for the surrounding fields. A current forms in the rainy season, which still further hollows it out, and thus has arisen the proverb that a road a thousand years old becomes a river.

Those whose lands are used for roads naturally prefer to have the roads run along the edge of their farms instead of cutting across them, and this accounts for the fact that Chinese roads are often so crooked that one may have to go a considerable distance to reach a place that is in reality but a few miles away. This always interests . Press. the stranger.

How the Car Got There. The other day at Twenty-sixth street an inspector "hopped" on the front platform of a Madison avenue electric car bound down town. He said to the motorman: "Where the dickens is this car goin?" "Why, to the Brooklyn bridge, of course."

"Get off and look at yer signs." The motorman did so and discovered car read, "One Hundred and Thirtyfifth street," the sign on the right side of the roof read, "Second avenue," and the sign on the rear hood, "Astor place." The conductor and motorman between them having adjusted the signs, the inspector permitted the car

Shaves of a Lifetime. Beard appears to grow at the same rate and to follow the same rules of personal conduct as the hair of the head. So if a man began shaving when he was 16 and lives to be 70 years old be will have cut more than a little bit off the top. If he could keep in position all he has thrown away, a head of hair 35 feet long and a beard 27 feet long, all in one bunch, would enable him to travel with a circus summers and sit in a store window to advertise a hair restorer in the winter.

In Commissioner Duell's report to Congress of the business of the Patent Office for last year, he says that to the patent system more than to any other cause are we indebted for the industrial revolution of the century just closed.
