"And let us not be weary in well-doing for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."—Galatians 6: 9.

TWO FOES.

"Lady, have you time to listen?" Tremulous the voice and low, To my ear in busy moments came the accents sad and slow, As before me stood an old man, worn and weary, bent with care,

Reverently the father's fingers loosed that faded string of blue.

"These," he said, "are Stanley's letters, he my firstborn, brave and true. Even yet I seem to see him, when the war had scarce begun,

Here are letters that will tell you hard realities of war; You will know the field of battle as you have not known before.

Here are Seven Days of Battle, Savage Station, Malvern Hill, Sultry days of weary fighting, yet my soldier cheerful still.

Ah! full well do I remember, for a fearful time had come, And the startled land re-echoed with the bugle and the drum;

Other treasures must be yielded, and the words I could not speak, Flashed in patriot zeal and courage on my Herbert's changeful cheek.

"Twas one evening we were reading Lincoln's call for volunteers, And the words grew dim before me with a sudden mist of tears.

"Father"—Herbert stood before me—"give me but your blessing now;" And I laid my hand in silence on his broad and noble brow.

He was gone. I clasped my Jamie closer to my aching heart. He was fair and young and fragile, he at least could bear no part

In the strife that claimed his brothers; he was left to be my stay In the years that would be coming when my locks would turn to gray.

"Fredericksburg! A cry of anguish ran through all the land abroad, And a message came from Herbert: 'Brother Stanley is with God.

Do not grieve for him, my father, 'tis a glorious thing to die. When you die for home and freedom underneath the open sky.'

"Herbert went with Hooker southward. Here he writes from Tennessee, Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, in the flush of victory.

But his letters—you can read them—I may not detain you here With the story of his courage, for he was not born to fear.

Oh, my boy! my noble Herbert! 'twas not given to him to die, As he bravely wrote of Stanley, underneath the open sky—

Though he died for home and freedom, 'twas within a prison cell In a far-off Southern prison, as his comrades sadly tell.

"Ah! my Jamie, frail and earnest! 'twas the year of '64 When my boy stood up before me with that look I'd seen before,

When the changing cheek of Herbert, with my Stanley's flashing eye, And I bowed upon his shoulder with a sudden bitter cry.

"Father," Jamie said so simply, 'some one should be in the field, And I know you will not falter when you have a son to yield.

You must still be represented in the closing of the war; Some one must march home to greet you when the cruel strife is o'er.

"Spoken like my gentle Jamie, he would cover up the sting, Cover up the pain and anguish that he knew his words would bring.

'Twas no use to reason with him for I knew his heart was deep, And the thought so lightly uttered was a vow his soul would keep.

Jamie! Jamie! I am living all these days again with you; I will read your letters over—Oh, my boy! they are so few.

Here is one aglow with triumph, 'Soon the land will all be free; We are marching now with Sherman, yes with Sherman to the sea.'

He was smitten with a fever; little need to tell the rest;— He was always slight and fragile o'er when taken at his best; But with battles and with marches he was worn and weary now, And resisted not when fever laid its hot hand on his brow.

Then the voice grew low and husky, "I have yet another boy— One so strong and merry-hearted that the war did not destroy.

But, O lady, God forgive me! I could wish that he were laid There to sleep beside his brother 'neath the grand old cypress shade."

Low his head sank on his bosom, feebly came the words he spoke: "I can give them up he murmured, "they who died 'mid battle smoke;

They were given for their country; theirs the glory and the fame, Theirs the laurels, fresh and fadeless, of the patriot soldier's name.

But my last, my youngest lady," and his lips were white with pain, "I have said it over, over, till it burns within my brain,

That my boy is but a drunkard. He so gay and strong and proud, Is become a jest and by-word for the common coward crowd.

Aye, my heart is bleeding, breaking! Listen to that storm-wind wild, Every night I have to face it looking for my long-lost child.

I have found him reeling, cursing, lost, amid the storm and night; I have found him weak and dying—treezing, with his home in sight.

"Oh, I gave so much, my country! could'st thou not have spared me one? Could'st thou not have wrought salvation with my last, my only son?

Lady, in God's name I pray you, take some words that may be given, Plead with him, my living lost one—lost to earth and lost to heaven."

Then, one withered hand, uplifted, as the old man ceased to speak, Wiped away a shining teardrop coursing down the furrowed cheek,

And his words burned in my spirit as I left him musing there— But there is no rhyme or story that could voice his piteous prayer.

DIGESTION WITHOUT A STOMACH.

The fact that people live and digest food after the stomach has been removed proves that the important part of digestion takes place in the intestines. Hence it comes that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so wonderfully successful in curing chronic indigestion and dyspepsia. They act directly on the kidneys, liver and intestines, making them healthy, active, and vigorous and so insure perfect digestion and prompt removal of poisonous waste matter.

LACHUTE, July 20.—Serious trouble occurred here yesterday as a result of the trackmen's strike.

The section men have been out quietly since the order was received to go on strike. The constable sent a special constable, named Ballard, to guard the tracks, and yesterday he was joined by a man named Daouft. A passing engine set fire to some grass and the pair went to put it out. They saw a young man named Diljarie near by and commanded him to bring them water. This he refused to do, and ran home, pursued by the men. They entered his mother's house and demanded water and she slammed the door in their faces. The two then drew revolvers and commanded her to carry water. She fainted away and her son fled to a neighbor's, while the men, becoming alarmed quit the neighborhood.

GAINED 9 1/2 LBS.

BY USING MILBURN'S PILLS.

VICTORIA, B.C., March 8, 1901. The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—Some time ago my daughter, aged 19 years, was troubled with bad headaches and loss of appetite.

She was tired and listless most of the time, and was losing flesh.

Her system got badly run down, so hearing your Heart and Nerve Pills highly spoken of I procured a box, and by the time she had used them she had gained 9 1/2 lbs. in weight and is now in perfect health.

Yours truly, MRS. P. H. CURTIS.

BUCTOUCHE NOTES.

JULY 22.—Hay making is now the order of the day and the farmers are taking advantage of the beautiful weather to save the timothy which is not as good a crop as last year, owing largely to the absence of rain.

The weather here of late has been very warm, the thermometer ranging between 86° and 96° in the shade and the atmosphere during the day has been decidedly oppressive although the evenings have been fairly cool. Tuesday, the 16th inst., was decidedly the hottest day that has been experienced here for some time, the mercury being 98° in the shade. In the evening a fierce electric storm set in, heavy and lowering clouds obscured the sky, the artillery of the heavens belched forth, lightning flashed and the sky presented a terrific aspect. The lightning flashes were so vivid that our village at intervals was as bright as day. The most magnificent electrical display seen in many years was witnessed. All points of the heavens were illuminated almost continuously and clouds were riven with streaked, forked and chain lightning of great brilliancy. The storm kept up for about six hours. The rain came down in torrents, accompanied by a shower of large hail stones. Fortunately no damage was done.

Dr. Horace Coates, who quite recently graduated at McGill Medical College, successfully performed a surgical operation last Tuesday morning on his father, Mr. George A. Coates, teacher of the Superior School of our village. The operation was performed in the presence of Dr. Bowser, of Rexton, Dr. King and R. A. Irving, of this place. Mr. Coates has for a number of years past been troubled with a tumor in his back near the shoulder which has been gradually enlarging, and it was only when persuaded by his son, the Doctor, that he consented to have it removed. The Drs. that witnessed the operation say that Dr. Horace is an expert with the knife, and notwithstanding that it was his first operation, did it well and in a manner that would reflect great credit on an older and more experienced practitioner. The tumor, when removed, weighed two pounds. Mr. Coates is improving rapidly from the effects of the operation and your correspondent was pleased on Friday last to see him out meandering around the garden.

The many friends of Harry Foley, youngest son of Mr. B. H. Foley, who has been home from San Francisco for the past few months, entertained him at an eyster supper at the Bay View Hotel on Monday evening last, on the eve of his return to the West. The spacious dining hall of the Hotel which was gotten up for the occasion by the genial Proprietor, Mr. Gurman, who is an expert in his line, presented a very attractive appearance. After all had partaken of the good things which existed in abundance, the usual toasts were proposed and responded to. The toast "Our Guest," brought the entire company to their feet who one and all seemed anxious to express their regret at the departure of our jolly good friend, Harry, and of their good wishes for his safe return and prosperous future. The toast was responded to by the entire crowd singing "For he's a jolly good fellow," which might have been heard in the neighbouring village if the windows and doors of the Hotel had been thrown open. The evening was a very pleasant one and broke up about eleven o'clock by singing the National Anthem. The following is a list of the names of those present: Messrs. James Barnes, M. P. P., B. H. Foley, Jude J. LeBlanc, Geo. A. Coates, O. J. Cormier, Wm. Landry, John P. McPhadden, Charles Wry, R. M. Sutton, J. D. Irving, M. L. D. Cormier, John Hutchison, Duncan McIntosh, G. S. Smith, J. A. Irving, Alex. McKee, Thadee Bastarache, Earl Barnes, Anthony McNairn, W. Potter, W. Conrade, Alfred Sheridan, G. S. Richard, Thomas McPhadden, N. J. Boudreau, R. A. Irving, John McKee, Anthony Grattan, Adam Coates and P. M. Leger.

The Feast of St. Anne will be celebrated at Buctouche on Sunday, July 28th, by the Micmacs of the lower provinces. The sermon on that occasion will be preached by Father Pacifique, of Restigouche, a capuchin Monk, in the Indian language at the morning service. In the afternoon the blessing of a very beautiful statue of St. Anne will take place. A large number of Micmacs from the neighbouring provinces are expected.

A large quantity of shipping has been done in our port this summer. It is a very common thing to see a fleet of a dozen schooners or more loading and unloading at the wharves at the same time. Your writer on one occasion counted as many as fourteen. The following is a list of the entries of the Port of Buctouche from July 1st up to 15th and of the clearance from the 1st up to the 12th inst.; also the names of the respective shippers which will give some idea of the shipping trade of the Port:

Mr. W. L. Waring was in our village last week inspecting the tug Alice which he found all O. K.

Miss Bowser, of Rexton, accompanied her brother, the Doctor, to our village on Tuesday last.

Miss Deacon, of Shediac, is spending a few days with her father at the stone quarry.

Miss Grace Gifford, of St. John, is visiting Mrs. (Conductor) McPhadden's.

Our young village blacksmith presents a very graceful attitude on the street the last few days. The peculiar attitude can only be acquired when you have a Gift for (d) it.

Miss Johnson is spending a few days in Rexton with her sister, Mrs. A. J. Girvan.

Mrs. W. H. Irving and Miss Dorris are visiting Mrs. Irving's sister, Mrs. W. Loggie, of Loggieville, N. B.

Mr. Earl Barnes, of the I. C. R. Dept. of Moncton, is spending a few days with his parents here.

Rev. H. A. Meek, of Richibucto, occupied the pulpit of the Episcopal church, yesterday. A large number were present to hear him.

Your correspondent regrets exceedingly to chronicle the death of one of our most respected citizens, Mr. David Webster, which occurred at his residence on the 9th inst. Mr. Webster was highly thought of in this community. He was always ready and desirous of assisting in all charitable and benevolent purposes. Much sympathy is expressed for his wife and family in their sad bereavement.

Mr. Neil J. Ross, of the I. C. R. offices, Moncton, spent Sunday at home.

Mrs. J. H. Abbott and daughter, Miss Lou, of Moncton, have moved in here and will remain during the hot weather. They are the guests of Mrs. J. C. Ross. Mr. Abbott will spend his Sundays here during their stay.

New Color in the Cheeks Richness in the Blood

And Health, Vigor and Strength in the Whole System When Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is Used.

Paleness of the gums, lips and inside of eyelids, nervousness, weakness, indigestion, headache and despondency are the symptoms common to chlorosis and anaemia.

These symptoms indicate that the blood is thin and watery, and does not contain sufficient nourishment—symptoms that disappear when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used to build up the body and fill the shrivelled arteries with rich, red, life-sustaining blood.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a special formula devised especially for all diseases arising from an exhausted condition of the blood and nerves, and has proved signally successful as a cure for anaemia and chlorosis.

In fact it cannot fail to cure these ailments, because it goes directly to form new red corpuscles in the blood, and so nourishes and restores the system to health and vigor.

It is of incalculable worth to women suffering from the weaknesses and irregularities peculiar to their sex, and is evidenced by the grateful testimonials published from time to time in the daily press.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative; 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Edman-son, Bates & Co., Toronto.
