Quinn was more fortunate and escaped with the loss of three teeth .- St. John Suu.

A new and dangerous counterfeit American bank note has been put into circulation lately. It has been largely passed in the American cities and is likely to find its way here. It is a reproduction of the new five dollar issue of the series of 1899, which bears the portrait of the Indian Oneppa. The counterfeit bears the check letter B and under this the plate number 20. The only way to detect the counterfeit is by its general appearance It is of lighter shade throughout. Th black ink is not so black and the blue and green are not as good colors as are used by the government.

A washout on the Shore Line Railway which runs between St. John and St Stephen, occurred Friday. It is near the St. John end and was caused by the heavy rain of Thursday night and Friday morning. The break is not very wide, but it is at a spot where a high bank over looks the Bay, and it is feared the slide may continue. Repairs will be made at

On Thursday evening a couple of young lads amused themselves at Petitcodiac by firing shots from a little air rifle. Free Beck, a young man of the place, was standing at the time on Burnham's store platform, when he suddenly felt a sting ing sensation behind one of his ears. He put up his hand and found blood flowing copiously. He went over to the office of Dr. Moore, who dressed the wound. The doctor found that one of the shots had struck Beck at the base of the skull back of the ear, had cut a small artery, struck the skull and then glanced and passed out. Beck lost considerable blood, but is feeling none the worse from the accident

SUICIDE AT ST. ANDREWS.

St. Andrews, N. B., March 23. - James Starkey, about sixty-five years old, who, in his earlier days, built ships at Robbinston, Me., and in St. Andrews, of which he was a native, committed suicide this morning by drowning off his wharf. He had evidently carefully laid plans for the commission of the rash act. He had been a victim of insomauia and melancholia and a cancer had lodgment in his mouth, which caused him to shun the society o his fellows. Last night about twelve o'clock he went out of his house an i was absent half an hour, when he returned; he sat by the fire warming himself till little more than that. The windows in about half-past one, when he again went out. His wife told him not to stay out long. Shortly after he went out Mrs Starkey heard a noise on the wharf, immediately below the house. Sne went to a neighbor, James Ross, and asked him to go and search for Starkey. Ross went down the wharf, and seeing no sign of Starkey returned to his house for a lan tern. Accompanied by his sons and others be returned and, hanging the lanter: over the wharf, saw Starkey's feet stick ing up in the water, just below the sur face. This was about two o'clock. Wait ing until the tide ebbed, the body was found with a piece of iron, part of the drawbar of a railway car, tied to the neck by a piece of rope, which was neatly se cured by three half-hitches and round the neck by two half-hitches with two feet of slack. The piece of iron weighed about fifty pounds. Dr. J. A. Wade, coroner, who had been sent for, directed to have the body taken to the house. He is of the opinion that Starkey's neck was brok en in the drop over the wharf. He de cided in the morning that an enquiry was not necessary. Dr. Grove, who was Starkey's family physician, was 1 opinion that Starkey's mind was affected and that he would soon have to be put

Doing Penanca

A member of the mining exchange tells this story of a man doing penance: "I had a wagon and was driving out of Denver, on my way to the mines. The roads were fetlock deep in dut, and the weather was hotter than hades. A young fellow halted me a few miles out and asked if he might walk behind my wagon. It was the strangest request I had ever heard,

"'Walk behind? Not Get up here on the seat and ride.' He wore a sort of sad look and replied:

"'I don't want to ride, pardner. I ain't fitten to ride and I ain't fitten to get fitten. Just let me walk behind your wagon.'

"I thought then he must be crazy and concluded to let him have his way. The dust rolled up in dense, suffocating clouds. I glanced frequently ever my shoulder, but couldn't get a glimpse of him. As the team rattled on, however, I heard his voice repeating over and over again:

"'Serve you right, confound you! Sell your claim for $10,000, win $1,500 at poker, go down to Denver, blow off the town and go dead broke! You blank blank! Ought to suff. Got to go back and start all over again! Dust too good for you! Ain't half punishment enough!'

"At the end of the journey he was nearly dead, but still bravely anxious to do penance. I hired him, and he's here in New York now, doing well."-New York Press.

A story is told of two prominent Chicago lawyers who several years ago were regarded as being among the brightest lawyers the state had produced for a long time. There was great rivalry between these men, and one day they were having a heated argument on the steps of the statehouse at Springfield.

We'll leave it to him.' "Charlie," as the man spoken of approached within hearing distance, "we want you to decide who is the best lawyer in Illinois. We agree to abide by your decision."

The Sweatshops.

It pays to own real estate where New York's laboring classes are concentrated. A man wbo owns a large, square building in the down town east side district says that it pays him more than 20 per cent net on the money invested. He never has to look for tenants and he has no trouble in collecting his rents. A prosperous saloon keeper has the ground floor, and, of course, his rent is guaranteed.

The floors above are rented for sweatshops. One man bires a floor and sublets each window to a man to work by. If at any time he shows signs of running behind with his rent a dozen window tenants are eager to take the contract in his place.

The windows rent for $5 each. This gives the man who hires the whole floor his window free, or sometimes a this particular building are especially sought after, because there is a freight elevator, by which the heavy cloth garments can be hoisted and let down from the various stories. INTERVIEW WITH THE CHIEF COMMISSION ER-HOW WORK WILL BE DONE.

(St. John Telegraph, March 23)

A Telegraph representative interviewed

Mr George Haddow, the chief census

commissioner for the province, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Haddow told of the meeting of the various commissioners from the | ible. There is also an admirable dramadifferent provinces, held in Ottawa, and also of the meeting this week of the county and district commissioners at Fredericton. At the latter conference the instructions and schedules were gone over very careful, and a school of enumeration was formed for general instruction. Mr. Haddow is well pleased with the men selected and believes that they are all well qualified for the work. The information given to the census enuemrator is strictly confidential. The chief commissioner was sworn to secrecy, and the county commissioners were sworn by Mr. Haddow. The district enumetator will be sworn by the county commissioner. No one but a sworn enumerator is permitted to do the work so that there can be no farming out of the job. In the instructions, particulars are given of the methods for taking the census in cities, towns and farming districts. The information in the majority of the schedules from 1-7 is intended to cover the year April 1, 1900, to March 31, 1901. In the remainder, the fiscal year is from January 1, 1900, until December 31, 1900. The enumerator's day shall consist of eight hours and, should he be engaged overtime, that will be allowed for at the rate of day time. The district enumerator will send his report to the county commissioner, who forwards it direct to Ottawa.

Schedule number one deals with the umbering of our population, with the name, age, sex and profession of the individual. There will also be a division of the records into rural and urban inhabit. ants. Schedule number two deals with buildings, lands, schools, scholars and at-

The third schedule will take up the deaths during the past year and the causes and thus an attempt will be made to obtain a fairly complete mortality return and the death rate in the various diseases. schedules number four to seven refers alprost entirely to buildings, land, products and agricultural values.

Number seven is a very confidential chedule and one of the most important as it treats exclusive of agricultural interests. It is the first attempt made in this country in the direction of establishing the true financial condition as well as the real commercial wealth of the farming community. The government is endeavoring, for the first time, to do for the farming industry what has been done in the past for the manufacturing industries. The information which is given the enumerator, being strictly confidential, cannot possibly be employed for taxation puroses under any circumstances so that no person need hesitate in giving the desired

Schedule number eight deals with factories. In the past census there was no clear definition of a factory, as a milliner, for example, employing no help was put on the list under head of factory. Under the new system no factory will be recognized as such which does not employ five or more persons either on the premises or mairectly with it. This schedule deals completely with the manufacturer. Under this section special enumerators may be appointed to take certain portions of the resurns and this work may be withirawn from the regular enumerator.

Schedule number nine treats of forest and forestry production; ten takes up the fisheries, and eleven the mines and mineral production. It is expected that the work will be commenced on the 1st of April and will be finished as quickly as possible. The people should assist in every way the task of the enumerator by giving the information.

Mr. Haddow stated that the local government very kindly placed at his disposal a room in the legislative buildings where the meetings of commissioner were held, and desires to thank the government for their thoughtfulness and kindness.
