THE WORLD OVER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 .- England has had one of the greenest Christmases on record says the Tribune's London correspondent, for the weather has been so mild that primroses and cornflowers are a-bloom as far north as Liverpool and Yorkshire, while Devonshire revels in a sub-tropical climate and the Isle of Wight is a garden of roses in midwinter. The London sky has been heavily clouded and the air filled with mist, while the weather has been unseasonably warm.

Since the appearance of the bubonic plague in 1898 twenty-five thousand deaths from the disease have occurred in the Mysore state.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 27 .- At the Oneida street Mission Christmas entertainment last evening blazing alcohol on a plate set fire to the tinsel, etc., behind MONCTON AND BUCTOUCHE a curtain where the tree was hidden. Instantly seventy five parents rushed for their children and grabbed them, made for the doors, which were knocked off their hinges. Women were trampled upon and there was a panic until the room was emptied. Fortunately no one was seriously injured and when the fire was put out the exercises were continued.

> It is a remarkable fact that the men who participated in the negro lynching at Akron have been arrested, tried and twenty two of them found guilty and sentenced to terms of imprisonment varying from a few days to five years. Almost invariably lynchers, whether at the North or South, have been screened by the proseeuting officers, or, if brought to trial, acquitted by the jury. In this case the almost universal rule has been reversed and most of those caught have been promptly convicted and punished.

A BRAVE LITTLE CRIPPLE.

A cripple boy looked up with bright eves as the surgeon and the hospital nurse, followed by a group of young mediccal students, approached to his bed. He knew what they were going to do. His weak, wasted, twisted leg was held rigid by a plaster cast. He saw the bowel of plaster and hig basin and the sponge which the nurse was placing near the bed, and he saw the fresh bandages and the surgeon's glittering scissors and needles. His lips closed tightly for a moment.

"You're going to change my leg again, are you doctot?" he piped in a thin voice. "No not your leg, my bov," said the surgeon cheerily; "only the plaster, for

The surgeon ran a sharp knife thron, h the cast and peeled off the plaster in gre t flakes. The yellowed, tighty clinging linen was removed, the pitifully thin leg was sponged, and fresh bandages were drawn around it, the surgeon all the time keeping up a flow of kindly, encouraging words. The little sufferer did not stir or wince once during the operation, but he gazed fixedly at the ceiling and mate a continual buzzing noise with his mouth. After the surgeon and his at endants had left the bedside the lady visitor said to the boy: "How could you bear it so bravely? It must have hurt you dread-

"Well, yes'm, it did hurt," he replied, "but I just made beleive that a bee was gtinging me Bees don't hurt very much, you know. And I kept buzzing because I was afraid I'd forget about its being a bee."

THE BOOK AGENT.

Studies Human Nature and Is Skilled . In Diplomacy

The book agent is a student of human nature. He attacks man at his weakest points. What is calculated to minister to a man's vanity more than to have a gentleman, well groomed and of pleasing address, approach and offer to sell him some literary production? The fact that the book agent is there presupposes that the man is a lover of literature, that he has leisure to read books and that he has money to spend for them. The joke about the book agent being unwelcome will have to be relegated along with the mother-in-law joke. The facts will not sustain it. The book agent approaches a man, presents himself and proceeds to business. "I am introducing a new work, Mr. Jones, something that I know you will appreciate." Is Jones going to throw a man out of the third story window who thinks he will appreciate a new book? Not much.

The agent continues: "Mr. Brown suggested that you might like to look it over. He takes a set in half morocco." The fact that Brown thinks it will interest him pleases Jones still more. He values Brown's opinion. He likes to have Brown think he appreciates good literature. Brown must also think he can afford it. He looks over the book, predisposed in its favor already. Then comes the objection that he cannot afford it. The book agent treats that excuse as a joke. His actions say: "I know you can afford it. Brown knows you can afford it." The book agent evidently believes that he is talking to a man of means, and Jones does not care to have him believe anything else. Perhaps the set of books sells for $80. He talks to Jones as if that were an insignificant sum, not worth hesitating about, although, if the truth were known, the book agent really thinks the $20 he will get as commission for making the sale is so large a sum that he can afford to lay off the rest of the day and go fish-

Jones hesitates, the book agent drops his fountain pen, Jones picks it up and

The agent folds up his prospectus and after assuring Jones he will never regret the purchase starts for the door. But a thought strikes him, and he comes back. "By the way, Mr. Jones, do you think of any of your friends who might like this work?".

MR. BOK ON HIS CRITICS

THE RAILLERY OF THE HUMOROUS WRITER A BIG FACTOR IN THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL'S SUCCESS.

"The Conductors of The Ladies Hoy

Journal have not been unconscious of fact that this periodical, its methods, its editors and its contents have been made the subject of innumeral jokes in the newspapers and periodicals of this country," confesses Edward Bok, in the January issue of the Journal, "Probably no other modern magazine has been in this respect more generously favored. And I use the words 'generously favored' because again and again when these jet have appeared, the friends of the zine have taken up arms and rallied to its defence, mistaking good-natured raillery for malicious attacks. I am free to confess that in a few instances it was pardonable to be misled. But, as a general rule, the spirit of malice was farthest from the minds of the writers; in fact, many of the writers of the jokes are numbered among the warmest admirers of the magazine and the best friends of the editors. Instead of harming the magazine they have been one of the largest factors in its success. They adopted the surest and speediest method of making the magazine widely known. More than once they have had our thanks. The objection of some of our friends has been most strenuous where allusions have been made to the policy of this magazine as being 'goody-goody.' It has seemed to these good friends of ours that moral cleanliness was thus questioned, or made light of. But never were motives more thoroughly, although honestly, misconstrewed. It has been my opportunity to meet personally the authors of scores of these paragraphs. Some are my personal friends, and not in a single instance have I ever found a desire or intent to criticise seriously the policy of this magazine so far as it applied to clean, honest reading. Newspaper writers may have their faults, but throwing mud at an honest effort to uphold moral cleanliness, when it is adhered to for the benefit of their mothers, wives and sisters, is not one of them."
