THE WRECKED ARMENIA.

ROLLED OVER ON HER SIDE AND HAD TO BE ABANDONED.

(St. John Globe, July 1st.)

S S Armenia of the Anchor Line, which was ashore at New Head, near Pisaria on the fog on Saturday morning, is a total wreck. As the tide fell the steamer listed more and more to starboard and about 2 o'clock rolled completely over on her beam ends, so that her spars and funnel were in the water even at low tide. In this condition she now lies, with great holes in her bottom, an abandoned wreck, over which the water flows at high tide. The first gale will break her up or roll her over into the deep water. The point where the steamer lies is a very difficult one of approach either from sea or shore, and there is not much likelihood that ever the wreckers will be able to get to the vessel for, as already stated, she is partly covered at low water and completely submerged at high tide, while it is impossible to work from the shore, so high is the cliff, and on the sea side there is deep water less than the steamers own distance away.

The tug that went down on Saturday brought up the officers and crew and some of the boats. The men lost everything, as after the vessel commenced to list they feared to leave the deck lest she would fall over at any minute and engulf them. Capt. Shanklin, talking with the globe

Today, gave an emphatic denial to the report published in the Telegraph that "a fisherman named Wilson had spoken the steamer off Irishtown, before she went ashore, and offered to pilot her safely to port and that his services were refused on account of him not being a pilot, and that the services of a pilot was refused before this." Capt. Shanklin said there was not a word of truth in this and added that he was eagerly on the watch for a pilot and would gladly have availed himself of the services of any competent man. The captain also denied that the chief engineer had lost £100, or that he had offered a fisherman £50 to go to his cabin and get it.

Capt. Shanklin and Purser Harrison are at the Royal Hotel. The other officers are at the Grand Union. The crew are Luscar, but of two different castes. The deckhands, 19 in number, are Calcutta men. They were taken to Richard's boarding house on Prince William Street. The other 30, Bombay men, some Mahomedans and about ten christians, were given accommodations in Costigan's boarding house at York Point. These thirty men were firemen, cooks, stewards, etc. The quartermasters, carpenters, etc., found lodging at the seamen's Missions. All are still about the city waiting to see what will be done with them.

Hundreds of people visited the scene of the wreck on Sunday and to-day and everybody felt regret that such a fine vessel had been lost.

Mr. Nish, of New York, superintendent of the Anchor Line, arrived this afternoon and at 3 o'clock left on the tug Neptune in company with Capt. Shanklin, Mr. J. T. Night and others to inspect the wreck. He will determine whether or not any effort can be made to save the hull.

WOMAN IS AS OLD AS SHE LOOKS.

It is not age but disease, weakness and ill-health that makes women look old, care-worn and wrinkled. You cannot look your best unless you feel well, strong and vigorous, with pure, rich blood and steady nerves. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food makes good looks because it makes good health, restores the healthful glow to the complexion, rounds out the form and gives elasticity to every motion of the body.

MONTREAL, June 28.—Hon. J. V. Villeneuve, who represented De Salaberry in the dominion senate, died here yesterday after a prolonged illness from Bright's disease. He was head of the firm of J. O. Villeneuve & Co., wine and spirit merchants. Hon. Joseph Octave Villeneuve was born at Ste Anne des Plaines, Quebec, 4 March, 1836. He was educated at the commercial school, Montreal, and married Susan Ann Walker, of Sorel, in 1859. He was mayor of the village of St. Jean Baptiste for 20 years and afterwards represented St. Jean Baptiste ward in the city council of Montreal. He was elected to the legislature in 1886; the election was declared void and he was re-elected in 1888. He was called to the senate 2 January, 1896. In politics he was a Conservative.

DOCK'S NEW BLOOD PILLS

THE EXPERT WITNESS.

His Dark and Dreary Way of Statting a Simple Proposition.

One of the besetting sins of the expert witness is the habit or tendency to use a lot of Latin words in describing an injury to the jury. In some exceptional cases, doubtless, this is done without affectation or for a purpose, but we have no hesitation in saying that in the majority of instances it is a very good index of the learning and capacity of the expert, on the assumption that the mere words of this sort are used the more probability there is that they cover a deficiency of knowledge and thorough grounding on the part of the user. A really able man in his profession will always accommodate himself to circumstances and, realizing the capacity of the average jury, use very different forms and methods of expression in testifying before court and jury than if he were making an address or delivering a paper on some scientific subject before an audience of his professional brethren.

A physician, for instance, who, when upon the stand, is asked to describe something to the jury and uses all the high sounding terms at his command, deserves to have very little attention paid to his testimony and usually gets his deserts. An amusing example of this truth is given in the following account of an actual happening in an English court. It is from a little book entitled "Hints on Advocacy," published first in England: "I discovered considerable ecchymosis under the left orbit, caused by extravasation of blood beneath the cuticle," said a young house surgeon in a case of assault on the assizes.

Baron Bramwell—I suppose you mean the man had a black eye? Scientific Witness—Precisely, my lord. Baron Bramwell—Perhaps if you had said so in plain English those gentlemen would better understand you. "Precisely, my lord," answered the learned surgeon, evidently delighted that the judge understood his meaning.

This incident, which might be paralleled many times in court in this country, carries its own comment. What the jury wants is to be enlightened on disputed points, and the way to do this is not to use purely technical expressions, but to explain in plain, homely language. There is no danger that in doing this the expert will be liable to detract from the general estimate of his own abilities, but rather the reverse will be the case.—Albany Law Journal.

A Historic Throne.

The biggest episcopal throne in Europe is at the Exeter cathedral. Composed of the very best oak, with magnificent carving executed by the most expert designers of the day, the throne soars upward in beautiful tapering pinnacles, which rise up to the lofty roof of the sacred edifice. The throne is not only the biggest, but one of the oldest. It was saved from destruction by the Puritans by the ingenuity of the Cavaliers, who when the Roundheads marched on Exeter pulled down the throne and divided it into 365 pieces, one for every day of the year. The pieces were safely secured in many hiding places, and when peace was restored the pieces were put together again without the aid of a single nail.

A Wily Answer.

The shah of Persia once asked a group of his courtiers whom they thought the greater man, himself or his father. At first he could get no reply to so dangerous a question, the answer to which might cost the courtiers their heads.

At last a wily old courtier said, "Your father, sire, for although you are equal to your father in all other respects in this he is superior to you, that he had a greater son than any you have."
