DOMINION NEWS.

SYDNEY, June 27.—Rhodes, Curry & Co. have been awarded the contract for building a new court house here; amount about $60,000.

OTTAWA, June 27.—Judge Forbes, of St. John, N. B., chairman of the local committee of the Victorian Order of Nurses in that city, is quoted as being strongly opposed to Lady Minto's cottage hospital scheme. He thinks it will interfere with the present work of the order, and this is so valuable that no money should be allowed to be diverted from its support to other purposes. Dr. Gibson, the secretary of the board of governors of the Victoria Order of Nurses, says this seems to him a very shortsighted objection. The cottage hospitals are doing exactly the same work as district nurses in a different way, and were contemplated from the beginning by those interested in the Victorian Order. They accomplish more with a smaller outlay and provide a nucleus for local enterprise. It is expected that they will soon become self-supporting; those at Shoal Lake and Vernon have already become so. The executive council has just made a grant of $1,500 to the Vernon hospital for a new wing, and it will be the first of the Queen Victoria cottage hospitals.

MONTREAL, June 27.—All the leading hotels of this city are already deluged with applications for rooms during the visit of the Duke and Duchess of York. Most of the applications are from Americans who desire to make their Canadian visit coincide with that of the Royal party. The applications for rooms at the Windsor have been so numerous that the manager of that hotel has written the Manufacturers' Association, which had arranged to hold its annual meeting at the hotel about the time the heir to the throne is to arrive, asking them to postpone their meeting to a future date. From present indications hundreds of people from all parts of the United States will visit Montreal to witness the welcome to be given the royal couple by the citizens of the metropolitan city of Canada, extensive preparations for which are now under way.

QUEBEC, June 27.—The union cigar-makers are out on strike. They demanded a higher rate of wages and sent notification to their employers to confer with one of their officers in St. Sauveur. The two leading factories here, H. D. Barry and the Quebec cigar, are both holding out. One of the factories is employing non-union hands and teaching them the trade.

TORONTO, June 27.—Among successful candidates at the examinations in the Toronto College of Music, whose names are published, are Ladies Ruby and Violet Elliott, daughters of Lord and Lady Minto. The former passed first year piano the latter the primary piano examination.

Hon. J. H. Turner, Minister of Finance and Agriculture, British Columbia, in the city on his way to Ottawa, says he has decided to accept the position of agent general for the province in Great Britain.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 27.—Dominion Lord's Day Alliance convention opened here on Tuesday evening in Centenary church. Rev. M. E. M. Ramsay, Ottawa, was appointed chairman. Reports presented show Ontario now has 150 branches; Manitoba has 14; Quebec 2; Nova Scotia, 10; New Brunswick, 7; N. W. T., 7, and British Columbia 12. Addresses were delivered by a number of prominent gentlemen, among them Rev. Dr. Fotheringham, St. John, N. B.

Cases of Queer Revenge.

In England, where men have more time for everything, including revenge, some queer methods of playing even have come into the courts.

Albert Bewdley of Leeds had a dog that howled at night. A naturalist next door did not like it, but had no legal recourse.

One day ants of the minute red variety began to overrun Bewdley's house. Nothing that could be done headed them off. They grew worse and worse. He had made up his mind to break his lease and move when one night he heard a noise in his dining room. Slipping down, he found the naturalist emptying a bag of ants on the floor.

In court the naturalist paid damages, but he did it smilingly.

Rowley, the late English violinist, was hard to beat on his perseverance against one who had incurred his ill will.

Rowley had a quarrel with a horse dealer named Brant. It was a trivial matter, but Rowley took the next house to Brant, set up a piano, bought a cornet and proceeded to make insomnia for Brant.

After one or two assault cases in court Brant moved. Rowley bought out the next door neighbor and followed with piano and cornet. Brant went to law, but found he could do nothing. Failing, he took a detached house. Then Rowley hired brass bands and organs and assailed him. This was actionable, and Rowley paid £1,000 for his revenge.

The Golfer's Pun.

At a recent auction sale one of the paintings had for a subject a gayly attired golf girl making a long drive. The bidding on this opened very brisk—$60, $65, $70 and finally $72.

"Seventy-two, two, two, two," cried the auctioneer.

"Fore!" shouted some one in the rear.

With the exception of the golfer in the front row, who immediately "ducked," the joke passed unnoticed.

"Four," repeated the auctioneer. "Do I hear five?"

He did not hear "five," and a cold sweat broke out on the brow of the last bidder as now, for the first time, the possibility of having to buy that picture occurred to him. Seventy-four dollars for making a pun! He made a solemn vow then and there that he would never attempt another as with a sickly grin he thought of unpaid bills. The attendant was standing at his elbow; the auctioneer had raised his hammer. "One—two—three—"

"Five!"

The ordeal was past. The auction proceeded, with the crowd unaware that the punster had received proper punishment.

For the benefit of those who do not play golf a diagram of the pun is furnished. "Fore" is the warning shouted by the player when about to drive.

How Accidents Become Habits.

As to our mannerisms, says a writer in the Baltimore Sun, at first they are accidents, and afterward they become habits. It is singular how easy it is to convince a credulous public that a misfortune is a gift, just as an eccentricity is a mark of genius. Your correspondent knows a lady who was asked in marriage by several gentlemen (for where one pastures others will follow), although she was neither beautiful nor clever nor rich, but because she was affected with a trembling of the lids. In her inmost heart she who addresses you believes the trembling began with nervousness, but it was universal, and after a little what was curious began to be regarded as fascinating. At any rate I know a well established, portly lady, married to a man who secured her, not without difficulty, whose only sorrow is the necessity of keeping up the girlish habit which procured her a spouse. He is not a sentimentalist, but he wants what he paid for. He married her because her eyelids trembled, and not unnaturally he wishes to be possessed of the same treasure.

Not Entirely Alone.

As he entered the car he saw at a glance that there was one seat with a young lady in it, and he marched straight down the aisle, deposited his overcoat, sat down and familiarly observed:

"I entirely forgot to ask your permission."

"That's of no consequence," she replied.

"Thanks. Just arrived in the city, I presume," he ventured to remark as he glanced at the bundles and grips on the floor near by.

"Not exactly."

"You're all alone, eh?"

"Almost, but not quite. My husband is the conductor on this car, the motor-man is my cousin and my father and a brother are in the seat back of us."

"Aw! Aw! I see," gasped the man, and the floor of the car suddenly became so red-hot that he lit out without another word.

Babies in Greenland.

The bed of the baby Eskimo is not always one of elder down. There are times of famine now and then when the condition of the ice makes hunting impossible, and old and young starve to death. Cases have been known on both shores of Baffin bay where babies have been eaten by starving adults, but infanticide in Greenland is unknown because of a belief that the spirit of a murdered infant turns into an evil spirit called Angiak that forever haunts the entire village and brings endless misery and distress.

When a friend is in trouble, don't ask, "Can I do anything?" Do something.

Do but half of what you can, and you will be surprised at your own diligence.

Mr. Brittain intends to put in steam power this summer, so he will be able to run the mill the whole year. The mill has a capacity of 60 bbls. a day and is considered one of the best in the province.

The Cause of Hay Fever.

Its a microbe that floats in the air, gets into the throat and lungs, develops rapidly, excites inflammation, &c. The cause is as simple as a thistle in the finger. Extract the thistle, away goes the pain. Destroy the Hay Fever germ—you get well. That's why Catarrhazone acts so marvelously in Hay Fever. Its fragrant vapour to you brings cure, but to the microbe death. Catarrhazone is as quick to act on these microscopic organisms as lightning. Prevents as well as cures, and is always successful. Poison Proof Animals.

Neither differences of organization in animals nor in the constitution of the poisonous substance generally afford any clew for interpreting an exceptional want of effect. Unaccountable is the immunity of rabbits against belladonna leaves (Atropa belladonna, deadly nightshade). You may feed them with belladonna for weeks without observing the least toxic symptoms. The meat of such animals, however, proves poisonous to any one who eats it, producing the same symptoms as the plant.

Pigeons and various other herbivora are also to some degree safe from the effects of this poison, while in warm blooded carnivora it causes paralysis and asphyxia. In frogs the effect is a different one, consisting of spasms. The meat of goats which had fed on hemlock has sometimes occasioned poisonous effects. Chickens are nearly hardy against nux vomica and the extremely dangerous alkaloid, strychnine, contained in it, while in the smallest amount it is a fatal poison to rodents.

More remarkable yet in this respect is the immunity of Cholopus hoffmanni, a kind of sloth living on the island of Ceylon, which, when given ten grains of strychnine, was not much affected. Pigeons are possessed of high immunity from morphine, the chief alkaloid of opium, as well as from belladonna. Eight grains were required to kill a pigeon, not much less than the mortal dose for a man. Cats are extremely sensitive to foxglove (Digitalis purpurea), which on the contrary may be given to rabbits and various birds in pretty large doses.

Fined For Death on Board.

"The only place, as far as law is concerned, where it costs money to die from natural causes is aboard a steamship," remarked a vessel owner. "The purpose of the law was excellent enough. There was a time when emigrants were being brought to this country in very large numbers, or 'by the shipload,' as it was termed. There is no doubt that there was crowding in the ships that brought them, and to prevent this a law was passed imposing upon the ship a fine of $10 for every death that occurred during the passage from natural causes of persons over 8 years of age. This put a stop to overcrowding, or, at least, it is supposed that it did, which is about the same thing. Ships do not fancy having to pay fines of this kind."

"Of course, in comparison with the great army of persons who are brought across the ocean from month to month, there are very few deaths, for the statisticians have been kind enough to show beyond a doubt that the steamship is the safest means of transportation in existence, but, just the same, there are a considerable number in the course of a year."

Epigrams in Fiction.

I always pray that I may never outlive my illusions or my front teeth, though all else may fail me.

The Matter of a Semicolon.

A Russian military paper tells of a lieutenant who overheard a sergeant giving a recruit a short lecture upon his duties. "The military service," said the sergeant, "requires little prayer to God and a strict attention to the orders of a superior." Somewhat astonished at this singular definition of military duty, the officer ventured to ask the sergeant for his authority, whereupon the sergeant produced an ancient volume containing the following: "The military duty requires little; prayer to God, and strict attention to the orders of a superior."

Gates of the Land of Promise.

No one can watch a load of immigrants land without being struck by the astonishing signs of hope and confidence about them all. There has never been any exaggeration of this. Incredible as it may seem to one who knows how grim is the struggle for life among the masses in America, it is evident that this is still the land of promise to the poor of Europe.—Scribner's.

DREADFUL MISTAKE
BARELY AVERTED.

Thomas Harrison, of St. Mary's, N. B., Might have been Operated on for Appendicitis.

His Case was Wrongly Diagnosed—He Realized the Fact in Time—Dodd's Kidney Pills Probably Saved His Life.

ST. MARY'S, N. B., July 1, (Special).—Thomas Harrison, of this place, considers himself a fortunate man that he is alive and well to-day. For months he was suffering as everybody thought, with appendicitis. That's what he was told and that's what he was being treated for. But he grew worse in spite of the efforts exerted to help him.

In appendicitis it is generally thought necessary to perform an operation. That Mr. Harrison was not required to undergo the surgeon's knife and that for a disease he never had, is in all probability nobody's fault but his own. For it was not appendicitis that afflicted Mr. Harrison. It was Stone in the Bladder, and it was Dodd's Kidney Pills that restored him to the perfect health and strength he enjoys to-day.

"About a year ago," he writes, "I began to suffer from pain in the back accompanied by a lethargy impossible to overcome. I employed a physician who named my disease appendicitis, but in spite of his treatment I grew worse and began to pass bloody urine."

"About this time an anxious friend advised me to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and by the time I had finished the first box I passed a stone of unusual size which is now in the doctor's possession."

"I began at once to feel better and you may judge of my gratitude for my escape thus promptly and safely. Having taken only three boxes I am happy to state I am absolutely cured with no sign of the return of my old trouble."

PROBLEMS THAT OPPRESSED.

WHY THE VIVACIOUS GIRL IS SEEKING ANOTHER ROOMMATE.

"I have led a very strenuous life this winter," said the vivacious girl in the car. "I have thought as I never thought before. I have even worn two deep lines between my brows in my efforts to solve enigmas and not to appear at a disadvantage before my roommate. My roommate is studying kindergarten and is deeply interested in psychology."

"You know that 'time is the life of the soul,'" she said to me suddenly one day.

"Eh?" said I. "O! come now Edith, don't let's ask conundrums, I want to finish this book. If you must think about riddles occupy your self with 'Why is a mouse when it spins?' or something deep of that sort, and let alone a word."

"But do you know she was in earnest and she talked to me about time being the life of the soul until my head swirled and I had to go and lie down. This, however, was only the beginning of events. Now, she would ask me if I realized that 'thought was superinduced by feeling' and anon would declare that the soul manifests itself through seeking itself."

"Sometimes, just to show that I was not quite an idiot, I would take issue with her on these important subjects and argue in a series of dizzy circles until I felt that I was in a labyrinth from which I would never be extricated by my own efforts. But the student of psychology wouldn't become either excited or confused, but would argue composedly until I left the room in despair."

"My brow is lined," said the vivacious girl, "by the strenuous life I've led this winter. Next year if I must have a roommate it is going to be some one who reads The Duchess novels and thinks 'Janice Meredith's sweet. I can't have my young life wrecked on time is the life of the soul' problem now, can I?"—Baltimore News.

SOMETHING ABOUT FAITH CURES.

What a great variety of faith cures there must be, some have faith in so called divine healers, others in certain doctors and still others in the medicine they use. Every person who has tested Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills has faith in them, but faith or no faith they cure just the same, for they act directly and specifically on the kidneys, active and vigorous. Judging from the enormous demand for these Pills there must be hosts of people that have faith in them.

OTTAWA, June 27.—Some time ago Detective Flannigan, of the city force, was reduced to the ranks; that is, he was made a plain constable. Flannigan resigned and now it is reported that he intends laying charges against the management of the police force. Chief Powell asks him to go ahead and the matter will be enquired into by the police commissioners.
