SAD ENDING OF AN ACTIVE LIFE.

NICHOLAS FLOOD BAYIN COMMITS SUICIDE AT WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19 .-- The citizens of Winnipeg were startled and shocked yes terday afternoon when it became known that Nicholas Flood Davin, the wellknown and popular ex. M. P., from Regina, had ended his life by shooting him self with a revolver.

He drive up to the Carend in liotel, where he was staying, at 3 30 o'clock, and stating his intention of taking the west train, which leaves shortly after 4 p. m. He went up stairs packed his grip and sent it down to the office by the porter.

The clerk noticing it was time for Mr. Davin to start, sent the porter up stairs to call him. The porter rapped several times at his door and not getting any response, became alarmed.

Calling the housekeeper the door was opened with a pass key, when a sad spec tacle was presented to the eyes of those present. On the bed lay the body of Mr. Davin, his eyes closed and his face as calm and peaceful as if he were but as. leep.

The bed clothes, however, showed the appalling truth, being soaked with blood. He had placed a revolver in his mouth, fired and the bullet had passed out through the back of his head. His death must have been instantaneous.

Investigation showed that deceased had gone up to his room locked the door and taking out the key laid it on the dressing table. He must have lain down on the bed and shot himself. There was nothing left by him to give an explanation of the act, and it is generally credited to despondency, caused by financial embarassment, and other troubles. He was aged 58 years and leaves a widow.

Nicholas Flood Davin was the eldest son of Nicholas Flood Davin, M. D., of the family of the Right Hon. Henry Flood, and was born at Kilfineine, county Lim erick, Ireland, on January 13, 1843. He was educated at Queen's University, Ireland, was called to the English bar in 1868, practised law in London and engaged in journalism, was correspondent for the Standard and the Irish Times during the Franco Prussian war and was wounded in the seige of Montmedy. He came to Canada in 1872, practised law in Torento, entered politics and contested the constituency of Haldimand unsuccessfully, in 1878. He was sent by the Can adian government to Washington in 1879 to enquire into the system of management of Indian industrial schools, and went to Manitoba to take evidence on the best location for such schools, his report being the subsequent basis for the present system of educating Indian children. He was secretary to the royal commission re specting the Canadian Pacific railway in 1880 81. He went to the northwest i: 1882 and established the Leader, newsp. per, at Regina in 1883. He was secretary to the commission appointed in 1884 to it. quire into the Chinese immigration ques tion and was a delegate in the same year to Ottawa to represent the requirements of the northwest before the dominio. government. He fought as a volunteer in putting down the rebellion of 1885, was elected to the House of Commons for West Assimilboia in 1887, 1891 and 1896, and became president of the Liberal Conservative Association of the territories. He was defeated in the election of 1908 by Walter Scott, the present M. P. for

WAYS OF THE NIGHT HAWK.

-Mary Matthews Adams

The Habits of This Bird Are Strangely Belied by Its Name.

The night hawk is a bird often seen and yet a bird of which little is commonly known. Its name would lead one to think that it is a night bird, but this is wrong, as it does not roam about during the night at all. Like the familiar song birds of the woods, it rests at night. It received its name on account of its habit | 550 lives a year. of appearing only during the later afternoon or on cloudy days. A proper name for this bird would be a "twilight bird," as it cannot be said to belong either to night or day.

If you have ever lived on a farm, you will recall hearing on some still, hot evening a whirring, long drawn out note high above your head, and on looking up you will remember how surprised you were to behold a small bird with big wings falling straight toward the earth, and then how much more surprised you were when the bird suddenly turned in a graceful upward curve and went straight back again into the darkness above. That was the night hawk on a hunt for its supper. After that first meeting you will remember how familiar it grew to you and yet how little you ever learned of its habits of living.

These birds winter just south of the United States. They arrive in Indiana with the heading of the oat and wheat fields and stay until September. Sometimes they summer as far north as the Hudson bay and winter as far south as Brazil. They travel from one place to another, as a rule in scattering flocks. To see these birds traveling is a sight not soon forgotten. They will follow a river or stream for miles and seem to use these natural highways as their guide from one home to another.

A hunt for the nest of this bird is a hopeless task in some localities of our state, as they do not always breed. They live in the field, and it is there you may expect to find the nest if one is to be found. It will be built on the ground, and there will not be a straw or stick or cord in the home. It will be just a hole in the ground, for this bird is, above all things, lazy, and if there is any material other than the bare earth near the home it will be because the wind blew it there or because it grew there. You will find two eggs of a dirty color in the nest, providing some snake or gopher has not made away with them. Exposed as these eggs are, it is a wonder the bird does not disappear from the face of the earth. Nearly every animal that lives eats eggs.

The night hawk lives almost entirely on bugs, bees and insects. They are so swift in their action that they have little difficulty in securing a square meal every hour they hunt. They are so marked that they can easily secure their prey. They are dark-just a twilight color-underneath, and the real distance they are from you is a matter of doubt. They have a wishbone shaped white mark on the throat by which they can always be

The noise made by this bird when descending is caused by its wings in contact with the air. Its throat cry is a squeak and unpleasant to the ear. The bird is very attractive when it flies about in the air, as its curvings are as smooth and graceful as if they had been planned and rehearsed for weeks. Such perfect control does it have over its power of flight that it can drop toward the ground with lightning rapidity and when scarcely two feet above the surface reverse its action and sail again in graceful circles toward the sky.

His Own Names.

If you think a foreigner's ways are queer, ask yourself whether their seeming queerness may not be due mostly to your want of familiarity with them.

"You have such strange names for your towns over heah." said a titled English importation to one of his new American friends; "Weehawken, Hoboken, Poughkeepsie and ever so many others. don't you know!"

"I suppose they do sound queer to English ears." said the American thoughtfully. "Do you live in London all the

The medicine which keeps labies in such a condition or which restores them to it when they are ill is certainly a priceless boon to humanity. There are many medicines which produce sleep, but their action upon the child is similar to that as a war tax. The Napoleonic wars which whiskey or opium has upon a full grown man.
