FROM STONE HAVEN TO MONT. ROSE BY CYCLE.

Montrose lies about 23 miles south of Stonehaven. The road which skirts the coast is a splendid one for cycling. There are a number of long inclines somewhat trying to ascent but giving glorious runs when coasting down them. I started out in fine weather but ere long distant growls of thunder warned me that rain would be on in a short time. As I neared Bervie the storm broke. Riding a bicycle in a thunder storm is not a pleasant nor very safe form of recreation, neither is it very safe to take shelter under a tree but of the two evils I chose the latter. By the time my pipe was empty the rain had nearly ceased and I coasted down the long hill into Bervie. The village is not very large but it seemed to me to possess more small hotels than any place of its size I had ever seen. They must be a drouthy lot in Bervie.

About two miles south the thriving fishing village of Gurdon nestles close down on the sea. The main road runs along the hill side about 200 feet above the village so one can almost look down the chimneys of the houses. In a heavy storm the waves must send their spray over the lower houses. One fine sunny afternoon three years ago I passed here on my cycle and I remember what a beautiful peaceful scene we gazed down upon. At the pier many women were busy salting and packing fish while hundreds of brown soiled boats were just putting out to sea. The last of them was just leaving the harbor and to the far away horizon we could see them all making for the haunts of the herring. All was peace and sunshine but what a different scene it would be with the boats returning in a heavy easterly gale. A few miles further on we pass John's Haven which also nestles on the shore at the foot of the hill. When I came within five miles of Montrose I was greeted with a down pour but as there was no lightning I rode on. Here I passed through St. Cyrus a small village back from the sea a bit. From here it is pretty much down hill to the North Esk which is spanned by an old stone bridge. At the end of the bridge is a large stone with an inscription written on it much like a tombstone. Passeugers are invited to pass safe and free which I duly did. My friends welcomed me and also assured me that I looked somewhat like a drowned rat. About 2 miles from Montrose there is a large Lunatic Asylum which at present is presided over by an old college friend so I paid a visit to it some days later. It is the oldest asylum in Scotland. All sorts and conditions of men and women from noblemen to paupers to the number of 700 are confined in it. The accommodation for the better class patients was quite equal to that in a first class hotel. What a difference there is in the treat ment of the insane from what it was 100 years ago. The first Montrose Asylum was founded by a Mrs. Carnegie who was very much distressed by the way the poor lunatics were treated in the town. The violent ones were locked up in the jail and their bowls were distinctly heard on the High street. The new private asylum has been called the Camegie House after the founder.

cyclists and must be ridden with caution. There are different degrees of caution. The one I adopted was to ungear my free wheel and let rip, and she did rip through the gloom.

THE ROYAL VISIT.

DUKE AND DUCHESS REACH QUEBEC. QUEBEC, Sept. 15.-The Duke and Duchess of York, on board the Ophir, are within a few miles of the harbor of Quebec. The steamer made an exceptionally quick passage around South Africa and could have landed her distinguished pas. sengers a day ahead of the scheduled time. The vessel was brought to anchor a short distance oown the river, and the Governor General, accompanied by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, left by the steamer Lord

Stanley to give the royal couple a welcome, returning to town again early in the evening.

Since an early hour Saturday strangers have been flocking into the city and it is calculated that in addition to the military force-between 3,000 and 3,500-there must be at least 25,000 people in town, with more coming by every train.

At the conclusion of service to-day rain began falling and seriously interferred with the remainder of the afternoou's programme, as it had been arranged to have the troops reviewed by Major General O'Grady-Haly, but the idea could not be carried out and orders were given for the soldiers to march back to their respective headquarters.

Monday afternoon His Royal Highness will receive an honorary degree at Laval University, and in passing through the seminary will be met in Laval University by the progessors and pupils of the university and seminary.

At 7 p. m. will be an official dinner at the citadel, to which all the chief naval officers and distinguished personages in the city have been invited. In addition to the above there will be music on the terrace by bands, also fireworks and illuminations in which the half dozen war vessels in the harbor will assist.

The Duke and Duchess are to stay in the citadel.

BASS RIVER.

SEPT. 17th, 1901 .- The weather here is beautiful since the refreshing showers of the past few days. Everybody was glad to see the "welcome rain." More is needed yet. Mr. Walker's grist mill is packed full of grain ready to be ground as soon as there is water enough. The threshing mill is the order of the day at present. The crops, as a rule, are turning out fairly well.

Miss Barnes has returned from her vaca tion.

GROWING GIRLS

OCCASIONALLY REQUIRE A TONIC MEDICINE.

It Will Keep the Blood Rich, Red and Pure, Strengthen the Nerves and Prevent Decline.

Mrs. Hiram Rinkler, the wife of a respected farmer in South Palham township, Welland county, Ontario, says:-"It is with great pleasure that I give this tri-Williams' Pink Pills. When my daughter Lena, (now thirteen years of age) began the use of your medicine, a little over a year ago, she was in a most wretched condition. In fact we were seriously alarmed lest she might not recover. The first symptoms were a feeling of languor and weakness, gradually growing worse. She bacame pale, lost flesh, had little or no appetite and was apparently going into a decline. Finally the trouble became complicated with a persistent sore throat, which gave her great difficulty in swallow. ing. I gave her several advertised medicines, but they did not benefit her. Then she was placed under the care of a doctor, who said her blood was poor and watery, and her whole system badly run down. The doctor's treatment did not help her any, and then acting on the advice of a neighbor, I began to give her Dr. Williams Pink Pills. The confidence with which this medicine was urged upon us was not misplaced, as I soon noticed a distinct improvement in my daughter's condition. The use of the pills for a few weeks longer seemed to completely restore her, and from that time she has been a cheerful, light-hearted girl, the very picture of health. I will always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to other sufferers, feeling sure they will prove quite as efficacious as they did in my daughter's case." Mothers with growing daughters will make no mistake if they insist upon the occasional use of Dr, Williams' Pink Pills; they will help them to develop properly; will make their blood rich and pure, and thus ward off disease and decline. The genuine pills are sold only in boxes bearing the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around each box. None other is genuine no matter what some self-interested dealer may say. If in doubt send direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be mailed post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2 50.

The Fredericton Gleaner says there are about 38,000,000 feet of logs in the St. John and its tributaries above the booms, and appearances suggest that the much larger quantity will not be available for the millmen this fall. There are now about 15,000,000 between Kingsclear and Kilburns, or Andover. The balance is above the Grand Falls, and on the other corporation limit. The rain of last even ing did not extend further up than Wood stock, or thereabout, and therefore had no influence in the upper waters of the St. John. Arrangements are being made at the Sugar Island boom to winter the whole of the cut now held in the river in case the fall rains do not bring it down

THE EXPERT WITNESS.

His Dark and Dreary Way of Stating a Simple Proposition.

One of the besetting sins of the expert witness is the babit or tendency to use a lot of Latin words in describing an injury correspondence, however, with the to the jury. In some exceptional cases, doubtless, this is done without affectation or for a purpose, but we have no hesitation in saying that in the majority of instances it is a very good index of the learning and capacity of the expert, on the assumption that the more words of this sort are used the more probability there is that they cover a deficiency of knowledge and thorough grounding on the part of the user. A really able man in his profession will always accommodate himself to circumstances and, realizing the capacity of the average jury, use very different forms and methods of expression in testifying before court and jury than if he were making an address or delivering a paper on some scientific subject before an audience of his professional brethren. A physician, for instance, who, when upon the stand, is asked to describe something to the jury and uses all the high sounding terms at his command, deserves to have very little attention paid to his testimony and usually gets his deserts. An amusing example of this truth is given in the following account of an actual happening in an English court. It is from a little book entitled "Hints on Advocacy." published first in England: "I discovered considerable ecchymosis under the left orbit, caused by extravasation of blood beneath the cuticle," said a young house surgeon in a case of assault at the assizes.

Baron Bramwell-I suppose you mean the man had a black eye?
