Business Men's Backs.

Too much rush and bustle, work and worry fall to the lot of the average business man. Kidney can't stand it; they fail to filter the poisons from the blood properly. Urinary trouble, general languor and pain in the back are the natural results. A man can't attend to business properly if his back aches—no use trying.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Take a hint from business men who have used them: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at the Medical Hall here, for rheumatism and pains in the small of my back, with which I have been afflicted for the past six years. They did me so much good that I heartily recommend them as an excellent medicine for rheumatic troubles and backache." CHARLES C. PILKAY, dealer in agricultural implements, Orillia, Ont. Doan's Kidney Pills cure backache, lame or weak back, Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy, gravel, sediment in the urine, too frequent risings at night, rheumatism, and weakness of the kidneys in children and old people. Remember the name, Doan's, and run from all others. The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

BLIND MOOSE SHOT.

(Bangor Commercial.) Edward Corrigan and Joseph Lambert of St. Stephen, N. B., who had been hunting in the vicinity of Enchanted lake, arrived at The Forks Sunday night with two large moose, which they had secured with little difficulty last Friday. They discovered the tracks of the two animals for some distance and finally came up with their game, one following close behind the other. Getting opposite the animals the hunters fired together and brought down one while the other stood perfectly still until they fired a second shot apiece and brought him to the ground. The hunters marvelled at the ease with which the moose had been taken and why they had not broken away when they discovered the presence of the hunters. Thus wondering, it suddenly dawned upon Lambert that one moose had been blind and when it found that its companion had been killed was unable to proceed alone. An examination of the eyes of both moose revealed that the moose which had been following had been blind, as a coating of film entirely covering the sight of the eyes was found. The last moose to be killed was the pilot, and when it found that its companion had fallen refused to leave it for safety. The blind moose weighed 760 and the pilot tipped the beam at nearly 950.

PRANKS OF SOLDIERS

INCIDENTS THAT LENT VARIETY TO THE LIFE OF THE FIGHTERS.

Times During the War Between the States When Discipline Was Forgotten and the Generals Found It Wise to Ignore the Fact.

"Discipline didn't count," said the sergeant, "in the matter of pranks. There were not better soldiers in the army than the boys of the Eighty-fifth Illinois, and none yielded more readily to discipline or ripened more rapidly in the rough school of experience. But the men of the Eighty-fifth were, after Stone River, Chickamauga, Kenesaw, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta and the march to the sea, as much given to pranks as they were in their first march in Kentucky in the summer of 1862. We arrived at Richmond on the long march from the Carolinas early in May, 1865. Our brigade was made up of seasoned soldiers, if they were any in the army, but they came north in the belief that General Halleck or Secretary Stanton had put a slight on General Sherman, and they were looking for trouble. "The march from North Carolina after the surrender of Johnston had been a sort of picnic for the boys, but discipline was as strict as it was in front of Atlanta, and it was needed when we came to Richmond. Halleck, then in command of the department of the James, directed that Sherman's army pass in review before him as it marched through Richmond. Sherman forbade the review, and Halleck refused to permit any of Sherman's men to enter the city. Ex-Confederates and citizens came and went at will, but when Sherman's men attempted to visit the city they were met at the pontoon bridge by a provost guard and turned back. "Sherman's men resented all this, and they were furious over the intimation that they were kept out of the city in the interests of good order and because they could not be trusted. The boys talked only among themselves and organized to carry out a plan to see the city. One day a large crowd of unarmed soldiers assembled at the south end of the bridge and at a given signal rushed upon the guards, pushing many of them into the river and overwhelming the others by sheer weight of numbers. In short, Sherman's men, acting without orders and without officers, seized the bridge and held it while the boys went over and looked about the fallen Confederate capital. So far as I know, Halleck made no complaint of this irregular proceeding, and Sherman did not notice it. "After the grand review at Washington the Eighty-fifth Illinois, with the other regiments of the brigade, went into camp near the Soldiers' home, and the men were permitted to roam at will over the city. One morning some of the boys discovered a soldier at Fort Slemmer walking up and down in front of an officer's tent carrying a log on his shoulder. One of the boys was sent over to investigate, and when he reported that the soldier at the fort was carrying the log as punishment for a very trivial offense the men decided to interfere. They went in force, but without arms, over to the fort, took charge, dismissed the log carrier to his quarters and joyfully informed the officer in command that the punishment was contrary to the regulations and Sherman's men didn't want him to let it occur again. "At the close of the interview they picked up the log and brought it to the head of an orderly column into our camp. At the beginning of the war such a proceeding would have thrown army headquarters into a panic. But then the war was over, and Sherman's men were in great favor, and the case was not even reported."

"I remember a case," said the major, "in which soldiers who came to frolic remained to work. One night our brigade camped at Tullahoma, and a fire called the men to the crossing of the principal streets. The boys were at first greatly amused at the efforts made by home talent to put out the fire and were free with the most absurd suggestions. But when the matter became serious and the few citizens were bewildered and helpless the soldiers fell into ranks, ordered quickly a dozen fire brigades and, under the direction of men who had fought big fires at home, worked half the night to save the property of their enemies. They checked and after a time mastered the fire, but from first to last they bore themselves like soldiers on a frolic, except that they made a business of putting out the fire. "That same brigade after the terrific battle of Jan. 2, 1863, at Stone River, returned from the last charge against Breckinridge's corps to their bivouac of the morning to find Negley's men carrying off the rails out of which they had built rude shelters the night before. Palmer's men hurriedly stacked arms and by common impulse surrounded, at a full run, the rail experts of the other division. Both divisions had participated in the charge, and had marched back in the dusk of evening with the battle spirit on them. Palmer's men came on the scene at the swinging, exultant step of victory, marching like regiments on review. But no sooner did they see Negley's men carrying off their rails than they dropped the soldier and bore down on the raiders like football players in a rush. The movement was so spontaneous and the numbers were so great that Negley's men were overwhelmed, and Palmer's men carried back the rails frolicking like mad. "The scene was as tumultuous as a hundred football struggles compressed into one and the uproar was terrific. Negley's men were forming for a counter rush when Generals Palmer and Negley came on the scene, the one bareheaded and the other disheveled. Negley complained jocularly that it was a pretty howdy do when he couldn't concatenate rails enough to shelter his headquarters from the rain without Palmer turning out from 5,000 to 10,000 men to prevent the confiscation. Palmer replied that he had no rails himself to lend, but his men might have if they were approached in the right way, but, by the great horn spoon, nobody could steal the rails which his men had stolen with infinite trouble two days before. In this spirit the affair was settled, each general ordering his men to quarters if they could find them."

Danger to Flies. There can be little doubt that infections of serious kinds may be more or less readily conveyed by flies. Wherever they alight they must bring with them traces of the objectionable matter they may have been assisting to remove. The window open for fresh air may admit flies which have come straight from some fever stricken dwelling.

THE WORLD OVER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—"To the Public: This whole life is a farce. The same thing year after year, and it has become unbearable. I am going to end it now. This is no love case. There is no man in the world I would give two cents for." After writing this note Mrs. Stevens, who lived at No. 42 West Sixty-fourth street, drank carbolic acid and was found dead by Mrs. Thompson, the janitress. She had been told that if she did not pay the rent of her rooms she would be evicted.

WATERVILLE, Me., Nov. 28.—Willie, the 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Vaughn, of College avenue, of this city, was drowned in the Kennebec river near the college to day. The lad was skating at the time. The body has not been recovered.

BRUNSWICK, Me., Nov. 28.—Three French boys, each about 16 years old, named Emile Gauvette, Adellarde Gauvette and Adella Deschens, were skating on the Androscoggin river to day when they all broke through the thin ice. The last two were rescued, but Emile Gauvette was drowned before he could be reached. The other two were rescued by Frank St. Pierre after a hard struggle. Gauvette's body was soon recovered.

PARIS, Nov. 29.—A tragedy characteristically Parisian was committed in the heart of Paris yesterday. At the corner of the Boulevard des Capucines and the Place de l'Opera a husband shot his faithless wife and her lover in full view of hundreds of people. The opera square was filled with promenaders at lunch time, when a cab drove across the square, followed by a man running. A policeman who was regulating traffic stopped the cab in front of the Cafe de la Paix, enabling the pursuer to overtake it, when the man drew a revolver, thrust it through a window of the vehicle, and fired twice, killing the woman who was inside. Her lover opened the other door and tried to flee, but the husband sprang after him and blew out his brains before the spectators could interfere. Then the husband approached the policeman, banded him the weapon and surrendered.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 29.—It took Young Corbett, of Denver, Colorado, just one and a half rounds yesterday afternoon to wrest, by a clean knockout, the featherweight fistic championship from the hitherto unbeaten Terry McGovern, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The result was a tremendous surprise, especially to a crowd of New York sports, who came over to see their favorite dispose of one more aspirant for his fighting shoes, and who backed the Brooklyn man at odds of two and three to one. It was no chance blow that floored the old champion, for Corbett, after seeing McGovern throw caution and science to the winds, merely waited for an opening and then planted a powerful uppercut on that vulnerable spot, the tip of the jaw. McGovern struggled frantically to regain his feet, but the shock of the blow was too much for even his rugged constitution and, amid a perfect pantheon, the referee counted off the fatal numbers. At the word "ten" McGovern was only on his knees, so Corbett's seconds burst into the ring and carried the new champion in triumph from the scene.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The Duke of Teck was thrown from his horse to-day while out hunting near Nantwich, Chester, sustaining a concussion of the brain and an injury to his hip. The Duke of Teck, who succeeded to the title on the death of his father Jan. 22, 1900, is a brother of the Princess of Wales. He was born Aug. 13, 1869, and was married Dec. 12, 1894, to Lady Margaret Grosvenor, daughter of the first Duke of Westminster. The Duke of Teck's horse struck a barbed wire fence and pitched the duke violently upon his head. The attending physicians report that the duke's injuries are not alarming and hope for his recovery in a few days.

NORTH SHORE MYSTERY.

DEAD BODY OF AN UNKNOWN MAN. NEWCASTLE, N. B., Nov. 30.—On Thanksgiving day word was received here of the finding of the body of an unknown man in a barn of a farmer named McKinley, at Chelmsford, a settlement on the northwest Miramichi, about fifteen miles above Newcastle; and yesterday afternoon Coroner F. J. Desmond, M. D., and your reporter drove to the scene, and after viewing the body and interviewing several present, the coroner gave permission to remove the body to Newcastle, where an inquest is being held to-day.

Who the man is, or where he came from, is a mystery, as not one of the inhabitants who have viewed the body have recognized him or even remember having seen the man before, and there were no marks on body or clothes by which he could be identified. His pockets contained a pipe, knife, lead pencil, a purse with five matches therein, and a handkerchief. Deceased was about five feet seven inches tall, apparently about forty-eight years of age, dark complexion, black hair and full beard, also black; dark eyebrows, head slightly bald, thin face and pointed nose. He wore a pair of blue serge pants, diagonal cloth vest, and coat of Africa tweed with a check about two inches square, formed with a red stripe. He had on a black striped cotton shirt, with stock tie, heavy blue undershirt and heavy woolen socks, a pair of woolen mitts, and a soft felt hat. He wore no boots.

The body was found in a reclining position, sitting on a bundle of hay, with the head resting against another bundle. Deceased entered through the door leading into the cow stable. He was discovered by a little boy who was going in to feed cattle, and the body was cold. The general theory is that the deceased was a Frenchman who had been working in the woods and was coming home, and must have lost his way or become weary in the storm of Monday. His coat bore evidence that he had built a fire and probably had laid down to sleep, as some of the sleeve was burned and the other scorched, and his hands were blackened from extinguishing the burning. This probably awakened him, and he started for the settlement and got to the barn, into which he went and expired from the effects of his tramp. Why he did not go to the house, which is only a few steps farther, is a mystery, but perhaps in the dark and storm he did not see it.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Word has reached Newark, N. J., that William H. Jones, who, when a boy blacked boots and sold papers at the Lackawanna railroad station in that city, had died in South Africa recently and left to his sister, Mrs. Henry McCann, a fortune in mining interests and other properties. Jones many years ago located near Johannesburg and worked as a cook in the Rand for a time and later started a restaurant. Many of the mine-patronized his place, and often he accepted in payment for meals "script," which stood for interest in some of what were considered useless mines. A lot of this scrip later proved to be shares in a mine, which suddenly became a paying one. There was a rush for stock and Jones suddenly became wealthy.

NATURE REVOLTS

Because the Kidneys were over-worked and weakened and could not do their whole duty, South American Kidney Cure cleared away the impurities—killed the diseased parts—made a sick-to-death man well. One of the happiest men in the County of Huron to-day, is Mr. James McBine, of Jamestown. He was suddenly attacked with most severe Kidney disease which culminated in a complication of bladder trouble. He tried the best physicians in the County without avail. Attracted by testimony of most marvellous cures by South American Kidney Cure he procured it, and before he had used one bottle was completely cured.

HE "JUST DROPPED IN." He had been in the sanitarium for two hours, during which time the editor had been laboring along in a distracted manner. "I'm not troubling you, am I?" he said. "No," replied the editor. "You're only twisting and turning that newspaper in your hand and coughing yourself into a consumption and creaking that chair and missing that cuspidor nine times out of ten and glaring at every line I write as if you were hired to do it, that's all!"

My condition was serious when I began to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I verily believe that they have saved my life. I am now well and feel like a new man." THE KING'S CORONATION.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The World states that the provisional date fixed for the coronation of King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra is June 25. A royal banquet will be given that evening at Buckingham Palace, followed by a reception, at which princes and princesses of foreign royal families, members of the special diplomatic missions, members of the cabinet, and a few of the higher nobility will be present.

Active preparations are on foot for the coronation. The Duke of Norfolk, hereditary earl marshal, this week summoned London costume makers to Norfolk House, where specimens of the robes to be worn by the peers and peeresses at next year's great function were shown to them. This was to enable the costumers to get the exact tint of the crimson velvet and the position of the ermine and miniver and other details for the robes.

The British Museum has been besieged by persons searching the records for notes of the dresses and regulations of previous coronations.

Queen Alexandra has ordered from Delhi a quantity of the finest embroidery for her robes at the coronation. This action has produced the greatest satisfaction in India.

A "SWEET" STOMACH

Is the key-note of a happy heart. Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets make and keep the stomach sweet, because they aid digestion and prevent ferment. Stomach ferment induces indigestion. Indigestion produces distress after eating, weight in the stomach, wind on the stomach, loss of appetite, dizziness, nausea, impoverished blood, catarrh of the stomach, sick headache and many other disorders—but Dr. Von Stan's pineapple tablets nip the trouble in the bud, and prevent the seating of diseases. Eminent physicians prescribe them. Sixty tablets, 35 cents.
