CURVATURE OF THE SPINE.

Easy to Prevent and Easy to Check if Treated In Time.

In infancy and childhood lateral curvature of the spine develops very readily. In some cases, as will be presently shown, the causes are very slight, so that, to use the words of one of our most eminent medical authors, "It is really wonderful that most of us are tolerably straight."

A slight asymmetry of any one of the vertebræ of which the backbone is built up or an abnormal development or lack of development of one of the muscles which hold it upright is sufficient to preduce a deviation from its proper position.

This of itself would be of comparatively small moment if the organs contained within the trunk were not affected by any considerable change from its proper npright position. A lateral curvature cannot exist without a shortening of the trunk, just as a bow when bent measures less from tip to tip than when it is unstrung. This shortening in turn necessarily implies a crowding together of the organs contained within the trunk.

Constitutional weakness naturally tends to make lateral curvature of the spine more readily acquired. Of specific disorders which produce the same effect, rickets is perhaps the chief.

With the knowledge that lateral deviation is thus easily caused, it is not to be wondered at that causes apparently very slight are frequently the only ones discoverable to account for certain of the many cases coming under the physicians' notice. A baby can scarcely support its back before it is 3 or 4 months old. Yet the proud nurse or mother not infrequently sets it erect or carries it on her arm without a proper support at a much ear-

Children who go to school at 6 or 7 years of age are often compelled to sit on a badly shaped bench, sometimes with no support for the back, during school hours. The muscles become tired, and the child leans to one side, usually to the

A narrow space between the seat and the desk obliges the child to push between them, so that, in girls particularly, a drag is exerted on one shoulder, or the skir's form an uneven cushion, tilting the spinal column out of the perpendicular. Even in grown men and women occupations requiring a one sided muscular action affect the vertebræ and therefore the chape of the spine. In children the much softer bones are still more readily

Parents may therefore be pardoned if they insist on abundance of room and considerable lack of restraint for young children in the schoolroom.

Teachers have frequently to take the initiative in matters of school hygiene, especially when their pupils are from homes in crowded insanitary city tene-

Lateral curvature is rarely congenital. It is in most cases preventable, and cases taken in hand early are usually checked by strict observance of hygienic meas-

The Great Pitt's Last Words. The last words of great mer are always sacredly treasured, and there is some reason for the belief that in instances the words are polished and changed to suit the occasion. Various dying sentiments have been ascribed to the great William Pitt, and Disraeli was fond of telling a story which he heard from an old waiter at the house of com-

Late one night, said the waiter to Disraeli shortly after he entered parliament, I was called out of hed by a messenger in a post chaise shouting to me outside the window. "What is it?" I said.

"You're to get up and dress and bring some of your pork pies down to Mr. Pitt at Putney.'

So I went, and as we drove along the messenger told me that Mr. Pitt had not been able to take any food, but had said, "I think I could eat one of Bellamy's pork pies."

So I was sent for post haste. When I arrived, Mr. Pitt had passed away. Them were his last words: "I think I could eat one of Bellamy's pork pies."

Benefit of Travel.

Travel enlarges a man's mind and corrects many erroneous tirst impressions. Thus a man watching golf players in this country may form an impression that to play the game he requires a cleek, an extra cleek, a long cleek, a short cleek, a left hand cleek, a right hand cleek and a She-I wish you wouldn't go to sleep little behindhand cleek, a right hand slicer, a left hand slicer, a long stimmy, short stimmy and a medium stimmy, two brassies and an extra brassy, besides a right hand brassy and two medium left hand brassies. Then he goes to Scotland, the home land of golf, and sees the Scotch boys enjoying the game with hockey sticks.

All stone fruits are considered to be injurious for those who suffer from the liver and should be used cautiously.

Origin of "Whig."

Several reasons have been assigned to account for the word "Whig." universally known to all the English speaking people. By some the word is supposed to be a contraction of a longer one, "whiggamore," which in some parts of England and Scotland, especially Scotland, signifies a drover or herder. It was in 1679 that the word first became common in the British isles, when the struggle was in progress between the peasantry and the aristocracy to have or not to have the bill passed by parliament to exclude the Duke of York from the line of succession. All who were opposed to placing the duke in the line of succession were derisively called "whiggamores," or "drovers." just as the city dude of today speakers of the "grangers," the "grays," the "chin whiskers" and the "hayseeders."

But Scotch tradition gives altogether a different reason for the existence of the word. It is this: During the early religious wars in Scotland the weakest of the factions used the words "We Hope In God" as a motto. The initials of these words were placed on their banners thus, "W. H. I. G.," and soon all the followers of that clan were given the title of "Whig." which was afterward attached as a party nickname.

Journalistic Errors.

I do not allude to what are obviously mere misprints, such as when The Morning Post announced at the head of its fashlonable intelligence that Lord Palmerston had gone down into Hamppeasants, but I refer to blunders due to crass ignorance of a pretentious order. Perhaps the best instance was when one of the "young tions" of The Daily Telegraph in a leading article enumerated the great masters of Greek sculpture as Phidias, Praxiteles and Milo, ignorant of the fact that Milo is not a sculptor, but an island.

The Times was even worse when, mistaking Prussia for Austria, it devoted a whole leader to discussing why Prussia had joined the zollverein. The Saturday Review once explained at great length that the population might be nourished gratuitously on young lambs if killed unweaned before they had begun to crop grass, baving therefore cost nothing to feed. Many other instances will doubtless occur to your readers.-Notes and Queries.

A Mixed Wedding Party.

"The college roommate of a friend of mine was engaged to a lady in New York," writes the Rev. D. M. Steele in his article on "Some People I Have Married" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "His people are Congregationalists, but while at Yale he became a Unitarian. Her parents are Roman Catholics, but she was a member of the Ethical Culture society at Carnegie hall. In compliance with her mother's wish he asked five different priests to marry them, but all refused. In despair be came for me. I married them, an Episcopalian, with the ritual service in a Presbyterian chapel. The Roman Catholic brother of the bride and the Congregational sister of the groom were present. This sister acted as one witness; the other witness was a .lewess."

The Appeal to the Record. Little Tommy returned sore and trembling from the torture room. "Doesn't your papa ever thrash you?" he asked his chum, who is the son of a cabinet minister.

"I should say not!" replied the other loftily. "Every time he threatens to cane me I read him an extract from his great peace at any price speech in which he said: 'These barbarians are like wayward children, but have we on that account the right to take away their heaven sent privilege to do as they please? Let us treat them as we would our own wayward childrenplead with them, beseech them, but never coerce them with either gun or

WOMEN WILL TALK.

Can't Blame them for Telling each other about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR WEAK NETVOUS WOMEN

It's only natural that when a woman fines a remedy which cures her of nervousness and weakness, relieves her pains and aches, puts color in her cheek and vitality in her whole system, she should be anxious to let her suffering sisters know of it.

Mrs. Hannah Holmes, St. James Street, St. John, N.B., relates her experience with this remedy as follows :- " For some years I have been troubled with fluttering of the heart and dizziness, accompanied by a smothering feeling which prevented me from resting. My appetite was poor and I was much run down and debilitated.

"Since I started using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, the smothering feeling has gone, my heart beat is now regular, shire with a party of fiends to shoot the fluttering has disappeared, and I have been wonderfully built up through the tonic effect of the pills. I now feel stronger and better than for many years, and cannot say too much in praise of the remedy which restored my long lost health.'

Winding Timepieces.

"I have been doing a little figuring on time," remarked an erratic citizen yesterday, "and I have reached some rather interesting conclusions. I wanted to find out how much time man consumed in keeping tab on time, and I found that, if the whole world is considered in the computation, years would be crowded into a second of

"To illustrate what I mean, take a city where 100,000 watches are wound up every day. Now, it takes probably an average of 15 seconds to wind a watch. It would take, then, 1,500,000 seconds to wind 100,000 watches. This would mean 25,000 minutes or 530 hours and 10 minutes, or 25 days and 16 hours. I suppose there are in the city of New Orleans 100,000 watches and clocks to be wound up every day, so that nearly a month is spent in the city every day in winding watches and

"One man in a year's time would consume 5,475 seconds in winding his watch if he is prompt about it and is willing to give 15 seconds every day to this useful article. This would mean several hours during every year that he kept up the practice. Allowing 35 years as the average life, a man would spend 191,525 seconds, or 3,190 minutes and 41 seconds, or 530 hours and 10 minutes, or 22 days and 20 hours, in winding his watch."-

What She Saw.

It was at the Normal school that this happened, and the class laughed. It was a laugh on the teacher, too, but he didn't get angry, although it did break into the serious contemplation of serious studies with which he was trying to interest the students.

It was in the study of psychology, and they were discussing what ideas first entered the human mind when certain words were spoken or writtenwhether the mind thought of one certain object designated by the word or the whole general class which is embodied in that word. To experiment on this mental phenomenon in order to bring it more clearly to the attention of the students the professor said he would write a word on the board and then let one of them tell instantly what impression was made upon her mind.

He called upon one of the pupils to be ready to think quickly and tell exactly what her first thought was after she saw the word which he was about stranger to you?" asked the cross ex- to write. He stood close to the board, so that the word was hidden by his shoulders until he turned. He wrote "Sorr?" said the witness, whose stu- the word "pig," and all of the class turned, he didn't get out of her way, and she couldn't see the word. In re-"Well, no. sorr." said the witness, ply to his sharp, quick question, "Now, with a sudden gleam of enlightenment. what do you see?" she replied naively,

Advice In His Answers.

The Rev. John McNeill was holding a revival service at Cardiff, Wales, and announced that he would answer any question about the bible. At once a note was sent up to him reading as

"Dear Mr. McNeill-If you are seeking to help young men, kindly tell me who was Cain's wife."

That seemed a poser, and the audience waited with intense interest, temgood man would extricate himself. After a pause he said:

"I love young men, especially young inquirers for light, and I would give this young man a word of advice. It is this: Don't lose your soul's salvation looking after other people's wives."
