VALUABLE FIND OF AMBERGRIS AT CAMPOBELLO ISLAND.

LUBEC, Me., March 27.—What is believed to be a valuable find has been made by two Lubec citizens, Wm. Storey and Robert Mitchell, who arrived home today from the island of Campobello, bringing with them a large lump of a substance supposed to be ambergris. The lump, which was picked up on the eastern shore of the island, weighs about 75 pounds.

Ambergris is a substance of the consistence of wax, found floating in the Indian ocean and other waters, generally in the tropics, and also as a morbid secretion in the intestines of the sperm whale, which is believed to be in all cases its true origin. In color it is white, ash, gray, yellow or black and often variegated like marble. The floating masses are sometimes from 60 to 200 pounds in weight. It is highly valued in the manufacture of perfumery, and is also used in some of the ritualistic churches. Its intrinsic value varies. In this section of the country the principal supplies come from New Bedford and Provincetown, and are handled by a large Boston drug firm. This house quotes ambergris at from $25 to $40 an ounce, which would bring the value of 75 pounds at from $22,500 to $36,000 according to quality.

WANTED.—A case of Headache that KUMFORT Headache Powders will not cure within twenty minutes.

Prime Minister Seddon, of New Zealand said in a speech that as the Anglo-Japanese agreement was for the purpose of preventing Russia from becoming the controlling power in the North Pacific, he would like to increase the Australian squadron to protect the trade of the colonies.

The Whole Story in a letter: Pain-Killer (PERRY DAVIS). From Capt. F. Loye, Police Station No. 6, Montreal.—"We frequently use PERRY DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER for pains in the stomach, rheumatism, stiffness, tooth aches, chilblains, cramps, and all afflictions which beset men in our position. I have no hesitation in saying that PAIN-KILLER is the best remedy to have near at hand." Used Internally and Externally. Two Sizes, 25c. and 50c. bottles.

Couldn't Find the Corkscrew. They live pretty well out in a hand some home, but not near enough to a fire station to be "handy in case of accident." As the house is their own and their all the husband had been somewhat in terror of a blaze for some time. So he laid in a stock of hand grenades, those little glass bottles which are supposed to put out any fire that may start. One day the blaze came. The cook started it in the kitchen. Then she fled howling to her room and began to pack her trunk. The wife prides herself on her ability to keep her head, so first she stepped to the telephone and turned in the alarm, and then she went for the hand grenades. When the fire department did arrive, the men found her standing over the sidewalk rummaging through the drawers. Copious streams of water soon drowned the blaze and ruined the lower floor, and the department left. Still she rummaged. Her husband came, called by the phone girl. He saw her there. "Why, my dear girl," he said, "why didn't you use the hand grenades and stop the fire as soon as it started? Then the whole lower part of the house wouldn't have been soaked."

"John," she responded icily, "if you would just keep the corkscrew where it belongs. I could use the horrid old grenades. But it is gone and how was I to open them?" The ceremony of the Grand Medicine is an elaborate ritual, covering several days, the endless number of gods and spirits being called upon to minister to the sick man and to lengthen his life. The several degrees of the Grand Medicine teach the use of incantations, of medicines and poisons, and the requirements necessary to constitute a brave. When a young man seeks admission to the Grand Medicine lodge, he first fasts until he sees in his dream some animal, the mink, beaver, otter and fisher being most common, which he hunts and kills. The skin is then ornamented with beads or porcupine quills, and the spirit of the animal becomes the friend and companion of the man. The medicine men have only a limited knowledge of herbs, but they are expert in dressing wounds, and the art of extracting barbed arrows from the flesh can be learned from them.

In olden times—yes, to within the memory of living Ojibways—the medicine man at the funeral ceremony thus addressed the departed: "Dear friend, you will not feel lonely while pursuing your journey toward the setting sun. I have killed for you a Sioux, [hated enemy of the Ojibways], and I have scalped him. He will accompany you and provide for you, hunting your food as you need it. The scalp I have taken—use it for your moccasins."

When Mayor Meets Mayor. Civic characters of local fame imbued with a sense of their own importance are not wholly unknown in this country, a fact which may account for the familiar ring of the following story found in "Highways and Byways in East Anglia." Mayor Wakefield one day set out for the next town with a load of hay. On the way a truss fell from the load, and he applied to a passerby for assistance in replacing it. The man addressed, instead of rendering willing aid, drew himself up to rather more than his normal height and said: "Are you aware that you are addressing the mayor of Lynn?" "Man," replied Wakefield, "that don't make no odds. I'm the mayor of Cattle Rising. Now will you lend a hand?" "With pleasure," replied the mayor of Lynn.

Antique Clocks. A common trick of clock makers and repairers of years ago, when the craze for antique "grandfather" clocks first showed itself, was to alter the names and dates of the original makers on such of these clocks as came to them. This trick has made it difficult to prove the exact age of an old clock now, even by experts, and still more difficult to learn the name of the real maker. Reputable repairers do not follow the practice in these days, having realized that it results in the end in injury to the business. Lions and Tigers. There is nothing odd or peculiar about the sleep of the lions and tigers. In captivity they show the same indifference to danger that they manifest in the jungles and by day or night will slumber through an unusual tumult, unmindful or unconscious of the noise. Their sleep is commonly heavy and peaceful. She Believed. Hester—I hope you don't believe what Fred Saunders says. He has been in love with every girl in town, first and last. Bertba—That's why I value his judgment, you know. A man of his experience may be trusted to know a good thing when he sees it. Not Needed. He was obviously anxious, and she seemed almost willing. "I shall refer you to papa," said she, with a becoming blush, "before giving you a final answer. "But I am perfectly willing to take you without any reference," said he magnanimously. No Possibility. "Are you never afraid, Uncle Rastus," asked one of the scoffers, "of falling from grace?" "Cunne!" replied Uncle Rastus, "how kin a pussion fall 'm de bedrock?"—Chicago Tribune.

Refuse of the Universe. "It was a Beothuk Indian legend that when God made the world he swept the universe of the refuse and cast it into the sea, and when the white men came from the rising place of the sun they called the heap Newfoundland and chose it for a dwelling place," says Norman Duncan in Ainslee's. "It may be so. In its remoter parts Newfoundland might easily be taken for the leavings and rejected materials of the work of creation, there cast away. It is as fertile as an ash heap, which, moreover, it resembles in that it contains scraps of everything which entered into the making of the world—iron, copper, coal, gold and all other treasures under the ground. The interior is a soggy, rock strewn barren, an interminably vast waste, where not so much as a shrub is to be seen—and no man chooses to live. Stunted forests fringe coast, a skinny growth of pine and spruce and birch, through which you may walk miles in vain search for a schooner's spar. The shore line is rock, in some places swept by flood and fire bare of all soil—grim, naked rock. To many a Newfoundland a sandy beach would be as great a wonder as a horse."

Meerschaum Cost In Making. A fire in a pipemaker's shop the other day spoiled the proprietor's stock of meerschaum and incidentally disposed of the idea, common in most smokers' minds, that this commodity is very expensive. Meerschaum itself is not expensive. That used by the manufacturers in this country is imported as raw material from Austria, but most of it is obtained in Asia Minor. Usually there are three or four different grades, running from the rough and mixed to the pure and finely grained article. There is no duty upon it. The chunks, not unlike candle coal in shape, are packed in oblong boxes, about two feet and a half long, a foot wide and a foot high. The raw material is quite brittle and has to be soaked in water before it is used for modeling. Meerschaum pipes are expensive because much of the material from which the bowls are made has to be thrown away before a piece is found that has no flaws in it. The shavings, however, are never wasted. They are used to make a cheaper grade of pipes which are known as chip meerschaums.

Control Your Temper. There are three reasons why one ought to control his temper, and the first is self respect. When one loses command of himself and throws the reins upon the neck of passion, he may have for the moment a certain enjoyment in the license, but there must surely come a reaction of regret. When he is calm again and the fit has passed away, every serious person must be ashamed of what he said and what he did, of the manner in which he gave himself away and the exhibition he made of himself. He will recall the amazement on the faces of his friends and the silence which they adopted as a protective measure and the soothing language which they used, as if they were speaking with a baby, and the glances which passed between them. He will not soon hold again with them as strong as he did before this outburst, nor will he have the same claim upon their confidence as a sound and clear headed man. He has acted like a fretful, peevish child and has for the time forfeited his title to manhood and the place of a man.

Woodworms Can't Stand Benzine. Woodworms can be destroyed in books and woodwork by benzine. Books are locked up in a cupboard with a saucer of benzine. The insects, as well as their larvae and eggs, soon die off. Furniture and carvings are similarly placed in a room with a dish of benzine and kept closed up for several weeks, the time required for the complete destruction of the insects varying according to the thickness of the wood. New woodwork can be protected against their entry by a coating of glue, as, living on vegetable substances, they do not touch animal products. Amusing Superstitions. If you count warts, you will increase their number, or to handle a toad will cause warts. If two persons wash in the same water or dry their hands on the same towel, they will shortly quarrel. To bore a hole in the door frame and put in it the hair of a colored person is supposed to cure whooping cough. The rattle of a rattlesnake, if carried in the pocket, will prevent rheumatism or, if placed in the bureau drawer, will keep away moths.

The Shrew. The shrew was originally the shrew mouse, which, when her young were helpless, would fight desperately in their defense, and so well known was the courage of this little animal, which would even go out of its way to seek an enemy at times when the nest needed protection, that the word became applied to a woman who was ever ready to seek a quarrel. He Objected. "No, sub, Mistah Doctahman," objected the gentleman of color—"no, sub; doan' yoh go ahead en vacumate dat ole 'ooman er mine. Doan' yoh do hit. Des plunk dat air stuff in my bofe arms, but doan' fix huh so she gwine hab er so'er arm en cain' ten' ter de white folks' washin', kase of yoh do I'ze 'pintedly got ter go ter wuk!"

IN THIS LOCALITY.

The medicine dealers in this place say that there is no preparation on the market to-day that has anything like such an enormous sale as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Would this extraordinary demand for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills continue and gradually increase if people were not being benefited and cured by their use? Certainly not. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.
