Feeding and Management of Colts.

By F. W. HODSON, LIVE STOCK COMMISSIONER.

Many people think that a mare should rest from work for several weeks before foaling. This is not so. If a brood mare has been accustomed to farm work, let her continue at such work until a few days before she is due to foal. Moderate work is not only harmless, but beneficial to mares in foal, provided proper care be taken not to overload them. It is certainly better than keeping them tied up in the stable, or permitting them to run at large in the fields with other horses. In the former case they suffer from want of exercise, and in the latter they are very liable to accidents from racing, playing or fighting with one another. After the foal is dropped the mare should have a few days rest, not only for her own sake, but for that of the foal as well. When the time of foaling approaches the dam should be turned loose in a large box stall, or if the weather be mild in a paddock. When the mare is a valuable one, and the prospective foal is looked for with a good deal of interest, it is well to watch her closely, as many valuable animals have been lost, which by a little attention at the right moment might have been saved. About the best time for foaling is the latter part of May, as there is then an abundance of grass, and the heat is not excessive. Autumn colts will do well if carefully wintered. Colts born in midsummer—fly time—should be housed during the days, and the mare fed green feed. These extra cares are an objection to this time of breeding. For a considerable period before foaling the mare should be fed on soft food, so as to keep her bowels open and stimulate the flow of milk. The foods that have been found useful in increasing the flow of milk in the cow, will have the same effect upon the mare. Wheat bran is particularly desirable, fed in the form of a mash; oats, clover, hay and carrots are all good, but plenty of good fresh grass is probably the best aid to healthy and abundant nutrition, for both mare and foal.

It is of the highest importance that the young horse should start life in full health and vigor, and to this end he should very soon after birth take a good draught of the colostrum or first milk of the dam. Colostrum has a purgative effect which is necessary in order to cause the bowels to assume their natural functions. If this is not accomplished naturally, a gentle purgative of castor oil should be given. If the foal is born in the foetal membranes, it must be liberated at once, or it will suffocate. If the navel cord is not ruptured, it may be tied tightly in two places near together and cut between the cordings, or it may be severed by scraping it with a dull knife about two inches from the navel. Colts will bleed to death if the umbilical cord is severed too close to the body, and too soon after the colt is born; careful watching is better than luck at such times. Foals are very subject to

A. & R. LOGGIE

A disease called joint evil, which is almost always fatal, and when not actually fatal, renders the foal not worth raising. Recent investigations have shown that this disease is caused by blood poisoning, the poisonous matter entering through the newly severed navel cord, from the litter or some other injurious substance touching the wound, and that by carefully disinfecting the navel the disease can be avoided in most cases. A weak solution of carbolic acid is very good for the purpose. Among the other common troubles of young colts, are diarrhoea and constipation. The former is usually caused by over feeding, or exposure to inclement weather, and should be checked at once by the use of such correctives as parched flour, rice, meal gruel, and boiled milk. Constipation on the other hand may be relieved by the use of castor oil, and by injections of warm water to which soap has been added. In all cases of derangement, it is well to at once lessen the amount of feed of both dam and foal, thus assisting nature to restore the digestive tract to its proper condition.

At two or three months old the foal will begin to nibble grain from the mother's feed box, and by the time it has reached the age of five or six months it should be accustomed to eat all sorts of food. The weaning of the foal should be done gradually and when it has grown used to eating it should be confined in a loose box where there is nothing in which it can become entangled, and fed on soft feed. The dam should then be put on dry feed and given moderate work. The milk must be removed occasionally, but it is better not to milk dry, as the secretion will cease sooner. As soon as the foal is properly weaned, he should have the run of a good pasture, as there is no food better than grass, no medicine as good as exercise, fresh air and sunlight. As the weather grows colder the foal should be put in the stable at night, and fed a little oats or bran. As soon as the winter sets in he should if possible have a loose box and be let out every day for an hour or two for exercise, feeding a little bran mash, a few carrots and clover hay. With such care he will come out in good shape in the spring.

Whenever it is practicable the colt should be broken to halter while yet a suckling, and the earlier in life this process is commenced the more easily it will be accomplished. He may soon be led by the side of the dam without difficulty, and when once accustomed to being guided by the halter, it will be an easy matter to lead him anywhere. By the time he is weaned, he will lead like an old horse, and when the time comes to break him to harness he will give little trouble; in fact he is already broken. When a colt is two and one half years old, hitch him alongside of a steady aged horse, and he will become accustomed to work. Use him to do light work the first winter and so prepare him to take a share of the spring seeding on the farm. Always be careful not to put him to the hardest work until he is fully developed, and capable of taking his side at anything that is to be done on a farm.

WHY CROUP IS FAT L

When croup attacks your child you must be ready for it. It comes as an accompaniment to any ordinary cough, or it may attack without warning. All children develop quickly, and when any kind of cough appears there should be something at hand to stop it with promptness. Many a child has choked to death with croup because the right remedy was not convenient. Every one should know that the right safeguard for a child's cough or any cough is Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. With this soothing compound in the house, croup is always easily checked and relieved. To give a child a "cough mixture" containing a narcotic is a very serious matter, yet most preparations contain something of this kind. Adamson's Botanic Balsam is prepared from the purest extracts of barks and roots and gums of trees, and is health giving in every component part of it. Wherever it touches an inflamed surface, it soothes and heals it. Nothing ever compounded for cough is so harmless, and nothing so efficacious. Adamson's Balsam is an old remedy and it has never lost a friend through failure to help. Keep it in the house. Try it on your own cough and do your child a good turn by being ready for any emergency. Price 25c. at any druggists.

One Common Cause of Headache.

Perhaps the most general cause of headache and pain across the eyes is nasal catarrh. The simplest cure is to inhale the medicated vapour of Catarrhoxone which traverses every air cell and air passage of the throat, lungs and nose. It kills myriads of germs at every breath, clears away mucous discharges, preserves and heals the membrane. Catarrhoxone is just a splendid remedy for headache, and its action is certain and unfailing in diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Deafness, Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh. A trial will convince the most sceptical that Catarrhoxone is all right. Large size, $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont. Sold by R. O'Leary.

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS CURE CONSTIPATION.

DISCOVERY OF A NEW BRUNSWICKER.

W. H. RUSSELL, OF MIRAMICHI, CLAIMS PRACTICALLY TO HAVE SOLVED PERPETUAL MOTION.

W. H. Russell, a native of Miramichi, (N. B.), at present residing in Sydney, holds the patent rights in the United States and Canada on an invention which, if it proves workable, will revolutionize the industries of the world. Mr. Russell claims to be able to harness hydraulic jacks, automatic, into power. In short, by means of a number of hydraulic jacks he will develop a power which will run machinery or do anything required of it.

All that is necessary is to place the jacks in the starting position. Then they will run themselves. No steam or electric power will be required. It is the old story of perpetual motion, and Mr. Russell believes he has solved the problem. He states that he has submitted the plans of his patent to many competent engineers and none of them could find a flaw or see any reason why the scheme was not workable. In addition to his great invention, Mr. Russell holds patents on a number of inventions in connection with the machinery used in the running of electric railroads. Among these are a patent trolley wheel, which will carry a month's oil and run for six months, while the ordinary life of a trolley wheel is but six weeks. There is also a clipper ear for an overhead wire holder, and a curve taking trolley harp. These articles have all been manufactured and a number of them are in use on various roads, where they are giving the best satisfaction. Mr. Russell holds recommendations from the superintendents of the Lexington and Boston and Newton street railroads, in whose employ he has been.

The inventor is now working at Glace Bay, where he has had charge of erecting one of the towers for the Marconi station. —Sydney Record.

SPRING POETRY

Oh, would I were a boy again when the robins begin to sing, and the beetles hum and the bumblebees hum and the bullfrogs ker jugg-de-ging. I would make a raid with the rusty spade on the home of the angle worm, and down by the brook with my little hook I'd make the angle squirm. I would sit me down by the pasture fence and slip off my heavy shoes; my tender feet would get the treat of a bath in the soft mud's ooze. My mouth would drool for the close of school and the seductive game of "I spy," on the grass I would roll, play "penny in the hole," nor note the hours fly. O'er the lee I would dance with a rip in my pants, out of which stuck my little shirt tail, like a flag at half mast or a signal cast from a sloop in the face of a gale. I would be at the bat without coat or hat; I would help the stray dog to can. I would whoop with glee his movement to see and the manner in which he ran. With a dirty nose and mud on my clothes my days would be filled with glee. At night I'd come in with a sheepish grin and mother'd attend to me. Oh, let me sing of the glad spring, when I was a ripenoting boy; when the days were sweet and bare were my feet and the time was full of joy. When on the picnic ground in merry round, we passed the time in glee, till the busy ants crawled under my pants and the way they nipped. Oh, Gee!—Field and Farm.

THANKS FOR BOTH.

French Gentleman Gracefully Expresses His Own and His Wife's Gratitude.

A Strong Letter Written with the Noble Purpose of Trying to Benefit Some One Else.

St. Hippolyte, Que., June 2 (Special)—Mr. L. A. Paquin of this village has written for publication the following letter. In it he speaks for both himself and his wife. The letter reads:

"After much sufferings I had become unable to work. I had Kidney Trouble which gave me great pain.

"My wife had used a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills for a similar trouble some time before and as they had completely restored her to good health I made up my mind to take a treatment myself.

"I was not disappointed, and I can now say that I have tried and proved Dodd's Kidney Pills to be the greatest medicine in the world.

"We are now both quite well, and able to do our work as well as ever.

"We have found Dodd's Kidney Pills to be a remedy, which saves us the pains and trouble which we so often see in others, who are languished and incapable of attending to their work.

"We keep Dodd's Kidney Pills constantly on hand, and use them occasionally if we feel the slightest indisposition. We have used altogether between us six boxes.

"Perhaps I should explain why I write this letter. It is because I feel there may be many others who have not heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, or who having heard, have not yet given them a trial, and to such I would say 'Give Dodd's Kidney Pills a fair trial and you will agree with my wife and myself that there is not any other such medicine to be had.'

What Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for Mr. Paquin and his good wife, they will do for any man or woman who suffers from Kidney Disease in any form.
