

Locals.

—Dr. J. L. McWilliams will be away from his office at Rexton during the month of June.

—License has been granted C. B. Deacon to search for minerals on several miles of the Cocagne River.

—Quite a large number from town visited Rexton to hear the San Francisco Minstrels. It was a clean show, and all were well-pleased.

—In thoughtful consideration of his clerks, R. O'Leary has decided to close his store at six o'clock except on Thursday and Saturday evenings.

—Several townsmen who are pasturing their cows on the streets are complaining about the state of the sidewalks as they are afraid some of the cows will be getting their legs broken.

—The great distribution of $400 in cash among the holders of UNION BLEND TEA Keys will take place shortly before Christmas. Return your Keys about the first of December.

—Thomas Harrison McWilliams, of Mill Branch, Kent Co., graduated B. A. from Mt. Allison last week, at the closing exercises he gave an interesting address on political corruption.

—With the consent of the other storekeepers, the store belonging to the Estate of W. W. Short will remain open every night during the summer. Ice cream and soda water during warm weather.

—Correspondents should try to get manuscripts to THE REVIEW office not later than Tuesday of each week. Last week, one communication was crowded out and two others received too late.

—On May 23rd, the colonial secretary notified His Excellency, the Governor General, that Martin Conway, of the S. A. C., is dangerously ill from enteric fever. Mr. Conway is from Rexton, Kent.

—The Norwegian bark Adela, which arrived last week, brought a dory and two fishermen, picked up off the banks of Newfoundland. The fishermen had been separated from their vessel for seven hours when rescued.

—The members of the I. O. F., are requested to meet in the Temperance Hall at Richibucto, on Sunday June 23rd, at ten o'clock (sharp), for the purpose of attending the annual service, which will be preached in the Episcopal Church, by Rev. Bro. H. A. Meek.

—The attention of the road commissioner is called to the rubbish and other matter which, not only, is an eye sore, but is a street obstruction on Queen Street in front of the store of A. Sayre. The commissioner should impress upon some storekeepers the necessity of keeping waste paper and straw off the streets.

—On June 15th, by act of the provincial legislature, Atlantic Standard time becomes the official time of the province, all the railways have adopted the same time. It is one hour faster than Eastern Standard time now in vogue on our railways. The purpose is to make a uniform time throughout the whole province.

—How long are the citizens willing to endure without taking some action concerning our sidewalks. At the present rate of deterioration, pedestrians will be forced to the ditches or must "keep in the middle of the road." The cows walking upon the sidewalks have destroyed many planks and as a plank becomes loosened some fellow, to be smarter than his neighbor, throws it in the ditch.

—J. A. Leger graduated from the U. N. B. last week, receiving the degree of bachelor of engineering, he was in the first division, taking honors in mathematics and physics, receiving the distinction certificate in experimental physics, and taking honors with distinction in practical mechanics and designing. Mr. Leger is the son of Sheriff Leger, and his many town friends are pleased to learn of his creditable graduation.

—The King vs. Maillet came before Judge Forbes at St. John Monday morning. The defendant is from St. Mary, Kent Co., and is under arrest for contempt of court. After examining the defendant, his honor ordered that if he paid the sheriff's fees in cash and gave a six month's note for the costs of suit in which he was arrested he should be discharged from custody, otherwise he would have to serve out the time in jail. Scott E. Morrell appeared for P. S. MacNutt, the complainant in this suit.

—Tenders are being called for the Isidore Barreille Brook Bridge in the parish of St. Louis, they will be received until June 9th, plan and specification to be seen at Public Works Department, residence of U. Johnson, M. P. P., the post office, St. Louis, and the post office, Richibucto. Tenders are also being called for Sebastian Babineau Bridge, over Kouchibouguac river, Acadieville. They will be received until June 16th, plans, etc., can be seen at the store of Cliff Atkinson, Kouchibouguac, and all the above-mentioned places except Richibucto post office.

Gray Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over thirty years. It has kept my scalp free from dandruff and has prevented my hair from turning gray." — Mrs. F. A. Soule, Billings, Mont.

There is this peculiar thing about Ayer's Hair Vigor—it is a hair food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn black, look dead and lifeless. But gradually the old color comes back,—all the rich, dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists. If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

—Spray your cattle and horses with Eureka Fly Kutter. The only remedy that is sure death to the horn fly. Just try it. W. E. FORBES, sole agent.

—The hot weather of Sunday and Monday has been followed by a cold rain that sends the shivers through those who have changed their winter flannels.

—It is reported that mackerel have arrived on our coast. The catches further south are very large. The fish are said to be large but thin.

—Uncle Josh Simpkins Co. played to a good house in the Temperance Hall on Monday and its Bucouche on Tuesday. The Scotch specialties were good.

—Dr. T. J. Bourque, Chairman of the Board of Health, has received a telegram from Dr. Bourque of Moncton, stating that there are three cases of smallpox at Notre Dame in the County of Kent. Dr. Bourque at once wired Dr. D. V. Landry of Bucouche, to proceed to Notre Dame and take steps to isolate the infected premises.

—Lodge St. Andrew, No. 16. A. F. and A. M., had an official visit from the officers of the Grand Lodge of New Brunswick. The grand officers present were, Grand Master Arthur I. Trueman, R. C., Judge of Probates, and the Grand Secretary, Major J. Twining Hart, of St. John, Deputy Grand Master D. C. Firth, of Campbellton and Past Deputy Grand Master I. W. Doherty, M. D., Rexton. After the work of the evening was concluded the lodge adjourned to Hotel LeBlanc where the grand officers were banquetted.

—In the case of Elzear J. LeBlanc vs. the Manchester Insurance Co., the plaintiff having signed interlocutory judgment and issued a writ of inquiry to the sheriff of Kent Co., to assess the damages, Mr. J. H. A. Lee Fairweather, on behalf of C. J. Coster, counsel for the defendant, moved before C. J. Tuck at St. John Saturday, to set aside the judgment and for leave to come in and plead. His Honor granted the order as asked for, allowing the defendant to come in and plead on or before the 4th of July on payment of all costs.

—In another column will be found the obituary of Mrs. Nathaniel Hutchinson, of Rexton, N. B. She has been a resident of Truro for some years, living with her daughter, Mrs. John R. Patton, Queen Street. She was an intelligent, well-read, christian Scotch lady, and was beloved by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. The remains will be taken to New Brunswick for interment. Funeral from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. John R. Patton, Queen Street, to-morrow, Thursday, at 2.30 to the station.—Truro Sun.

—The following common motions were made before the Supreme Court at Fredericton Tuesday.

Ex parte George Long—J. D. Phinney, K. C., moves for certiorari to bring up conviction made by Robt. H. Davis stipendiary magistrate of Richibucto, on complaint of Allen D. Irving for seaman's wages on the ground that there is no sufficient complaint to found conviction and because it awards costs of conviction and conveying to jail: Rule absolute for certiorari and rule nisi to quash.

Ex parte Geo. W. Robertson—J. D. Phinney, K. C., moves for certiorari and rule nisi to quash an assessment of the parish of Richibucto for 1902 on the ground that the assessors refused to deduct debts due by applicant: Rule absolute for certiorari and rule nisi to quash.

There is no form of kidney trouble, from a backache down to Bright's disease, that DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS will not relieve or cure.

If you are troubled with any kind of kidney complaint, use Doan's Kidney Pills.

C. T. Swaine, natter, of Halifax, has assigned with liabilities of $6000 and assets of about $2000, and Toronto, Montreal and Quebec firms are interested.

Personal.

Miss Nell Clark, daughter of G. N. Clark, of Rexton, has returned from Mt. Allison Ladies' College, she intends opening a music class in Rexton in a few days. Her sister, Miss Nan, has returned from the U. N. B., Fredericton.

Gordon Bowser of the Royal Bank of Canada, Rexton, has been promoted to the Bank's branch at Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, and leaves this week to assume his new duties.

H. H. Warman, Moncton, was in town last Thursday.

Councillor A. Pineau of Acadieville, was in town Saturday.

Mrs. G. W. Robertson left this week to visit her sister, Mrs. Mersereau, Doaktown.

J. A. Leger, who has been attending the U. N. B., returned home on Monday.

Wilnot Brown, Esq., has been on a trip up through the rural portion of Quebec.

Geo. A. Day, government engineer of public works, Chatham, was in town Tuesday.

Mrs. C. H. Cowperthwaite left on Wednesday for Montreal, she expects to where remain for several weeks.

Mrs. Adolphe LeBlanc, who has been sick at her old home Barachois, Westmorland, arrived home on Saturday.

Mr. Geo. Irving, of the I. C. R., has been granted three months leave of absence.

The following are those who have registered at the Kent Hotel the past week: A. T. Gorman, New York; Fred S. Hutchinson, St. Stephen; W. L. Blair, J. T. Grant, Halifax; Bonar Law, John Malley, Percy Little, Rexton; W. H. Minihinnick, T. Ellis, W. B. Scovill, Arthur I. Trueman, J. Twining Hart, St. John; Tom Foley, Newcastle; Young Brothers, Chatham; John R. Gorman and wife, B. Grossman, S. E. Fisher, Gordon Wrighter, Major West, Chas. Kenny and wife, H. J. LeVigne, Robt. Wilson, Ernest Rice and wife, Joshua Simpkins Co.; D. C. Firth Campbellton; Geo. Jardine, Walter M. Jardine, Kouchibouguac; R. A. Irving Bucouche.

When you ask for Headache Powders be sure you get KUMFORT. Never accept a substitute. It is better to be safe than sorry and you may be sure that KUMFORT are the best. All Druggists in 10 and 25c. sizes.

Death's Harvest.

Daniel Young, a former resident of Galloway, died of heart failure at Chatham on Friday. Rev. G. M. Young, of Charlottetown, came over from the Island on Saturday to attend the funeral of his father. Deceased was 80 years and 5 months of age. The remains were brought to Rexton on Sunday and interred in the Presbyterian cemetery.

Death of Mrs. Nathaniel Hutchinson.

It is with a sense of deepest regret that we learn of the sudden demise, by pneumonia, of Margaret, relict of Mr. Nathaniel M. Hutchinson, which occurred at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. J. R. Patton, at Truro, N. S., on the 28th ult., at the advanced age of seventy-seven years. Deceased lady was born in Dumfries, Scotland, in 1825, and came to America with her uncle, the late Capt. Simon Graham, at the early age of seventeen. She remained a member of his family for nine years, then returned to Scotland. After a period of three years she came back to this country and was married to Mr. Hutchinson in 1854. Their married life was spent in Kent Co. Their family consists of four daughters and one son, Mrs. J. R. Patton, of Truro, Mrs. R. L. Lennox, Mrs. Jas. L. Hutchinson and Miss Nan Hutchinson, of Rexton, and William, all of whom, excepting the son who for the past four years has been in the Klondyke, were present at the funeral which took place on the arrival of the train at Rexton on Friday afternoon last. Interment was made in the graveyard in connection with St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. Donald Fraser, ably officiating. Besides her family, Mrs. Hutchinson leaves one brother, retired Master Mariner, of Liverpool, England. Mrs. Hutchinson was a person of the highest type of christian character, as exemplified in her daily life. She endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact, old and young alike, but especially to the youth, with whose ambitions and pleasures she ever evinced a ready sympathy. Many a word of advice, most lovingly bestowed, the art of giving which seemed to be her mission in the latter years of her life, stimulated a discouraged one to greater effort. It was rather a strange coincidence that the remains returned to Rexton on the anniversary (seventh) of the day on which Mrs. Hutchinson removed to Truro. The pall bearers were: John A. Cameron, R. W. Mitchell, T. C. Burns, John Jardine, Wm. J. Brait and Robt. Phinney.

I know that safe with Him remains Protected by His power What I've committed to His trust Till the decisive hour.

Stops the Cough and works off the Cold. Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No cure No Pay. Price 25 cents.

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. CLEVER KENT COUNTY MAN IN THE BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]

Andrew Bonar Law. Among the native Canadians who have seats in the British House of Commons the name of Andrew Bonar Law has not been prominently mentioned, and yet he promises to shed considerable lustre on his native land. Mr. Law was born in New Brunswick in 1858, the son of Rev. James Law, M. A., a Presbyterian minister. He was educated partly in his native province and afterwards at the Glasgow High School. Mr. Law is now a prominent iron merchant in Glasgow, chairman of the Scotch Pig-Iron Association, and ex-chairman of the Glasgow Iron Trade Association. He entered parliament at the last general election as representative of the Blackfriars division of Glasgow, defeating by a thousand votes A. D. Provand, who had represented the division as a Gladstonian and a radical since 1886. It is rather creditable that the two leading cities of Scotland should have among their representatives at Westminster two Canadians, Mr. Law, a conservative from Glasgow, and Geo. M. Brown, a liberal from Edinburgh. Mr. Law took part in the recent discussion on the budget, and The London Sketch says of his speech:—"One of the hits of the budget discussion was made by Andrew Bonar Law, an iron merchant from Glasgow. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Canada, and everyone familiar with ecclesiastical affairs in Scotland has heard of Andrew Bonar. Mr. Bonar Law is only 44, and is a new member with a grave face and bright eyes, and with head well set on shoulders. Scotchmen are familiar with economic questions, and Mr. Law held the house with his eloquent and easy treatment of the corn duty. Although he supported the budget, his speech was warmly praised, even by liberals, and unless he is a one-speech man he will make his mark." [Mr. Law is a brother of the late Robert Law, of Rexton.—Ed.]