A HORRIBLE DEATH.

A Kent County Boy's Death Under Tragic Conditions.

Last week's issue contained a mention of the death of Melbourne Betts, at West Newton, and the interment of the body at Bass River. Since, the full particulars have reached this office, and are given below, being a copy of a letter received by the father of the deceased from the proprietor of the Wauwinet Farm, on which deceased was engaged. David Melbourne Betts, was the youngest child of David T. Betts, of Main River, and was 20 years, 2 months and 14 days old, he died on March 11th in the Newton Hospital, Newton Lower Falls, Mass.

"It is my painful task to supplement our telegram of last evening with fuller information of the lamentable accident through which your son, Melbourne, lost his life.

"Of the actual occurence, almost nothing can be learned beyond the bare fact, that hearing a call for help, two or three of our men ran to the stall and found your son on his back holding fast to the ring in the bull's nose, the bull standing over him and inflicting the injury from which the young man died some two hours or more later, without having been able to tell anything of how the accident occurred. Before he was removed from the stall, while evidently trying to say something, he was incoherent, and soon lapsed into unconsciousness, continuing so for some time. Regaining consciousness long enough to ask for ice water, and a friend and to answer some questions about his spirtual welfare. In an almost incredibly short time medical attendance was secured and the lad taken to the hospital, where everything that skill and sympathy could suggest was done without avail. Post Mortem examination disclosed that the bull's horn had penetrated the wall of the abdomen and punctured the femoral artery, inducing death by hemorrhage, and as painle sly as almost any death could be.

"It is fair that you should know that we raised this bull, that for nearly nine years we have used him, and in no case have we considered him a dangerous bull to handle, in fact we know him to be less dangerous than the average of bulls. We had several times, as is our custom with men hardling our bulls, cautioned Melbourne against over confidence in the good disposition of the bulls, and had told him that as a rule it was with the quiet and good bulls that unfortunate accidents and injuries to attendants most often resulted. Less than a week ago the herdsman accompanied Mell to the stall, and seeing him pet and fondle the bull, advised him strongly against doing so, told him of an experience in which he (the herdsman) barely escaped injury, and that however kind a bull might seem to be, it was not safe or right to give him any chance to get the advantage of one. Melbourne's general manner of handling the bulls, was a a most ex cellent combination of kindness and firm. ness. They were most friendly to him and thoroughly obedient. We are unable to account for the accident except in the boy's over confidence, he was not as careful as usual, a movement of playfulness or fright by the bull, a struggle and the end. The fact that when my son with two of the servants, in response to Mell's calls, went into the stall to help him, they were not attacked by the bull, had no attended to, lead to consumption. trouble in hooking the staff into his ring and leading him out would suggest that the bull had not been viciously excited.

"It may be a grain of comfort for you to know that Melbourne had conducted himself in our employ in a way to secure our good will, esteem and confidence. We had marked him for a position that would give him a considerable increase in wages. We had talked with him about it, had told him of some of the essentials in character and habit requisite for advancement with any employer and were gratified by the manner with which our counsel was received, and the good effect manifested in attention to his duties and observance of our wishes. He was a good boy and in his intelligence and general conduct honored his father and mother.

"At this writing we are waiting to have the wishes of the relatives in regard to disposition of the body. After some delay and considerable effort we obtained communication by telephone with your sonin-law, Mr. Hughes.

"Since writing the above your daughter, Miss Bette, and Mr. Hugheshave been here. While waiting to hear from you in reply to our telegram and as to your wishes at the suggestion of Miss Betts we assume that you would like to have the body sent home for burial, the expense of which will be borne by the proprietor.

"Preparations will be made accordingly and unless we hear something from you or the relatives to the contrary it will start to-morrow the 13th inst.

"Yours very sincerely. (Sgd) "GEORGE T VAN NORMAN."

EVERY WOMAN NEEDS IT

There are times when every woman is tormented by itching skin and would give anything for relief. There is a preparation, known as Dr. Chase's Ointment, which is a prompt relief for these sufferings. Women prize it for their own use and for its wonderful effectiveness in curing Baby Eczema, scald head chafing, and the various skin diseases of childhood.

BASS RIVER NOTES

Bass River is rather dull at present but all indications go to show that spring is coming early.
