A BALLOON TRIP.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Count De la Vaulx is preparing for an attempt to cross the Mediterranean in a balloon. He proposes to make the trip about September 13.

M. Santos Dumont will, it is understood, go to Switzerland on his arrival in Europe and will continue his airship experiments at Geneva. The Count De la Vaulx made an attempt to cross the Mediterranean in October last but had to abandon his intention in consequence of adverse weather. He started from Toulon, accompanied by the French cruiser Du Chavay, which eventually brought both him and his balloon back to France.

M. Santos Dumont left New York abruptly on Thursday last on the French liner La Touraine for Europe.

HOME NURSING.

We have recently received a book entitled "Home Nursing" published by the Davis & Lawrence Co., Ltd., Montreal. This publication contains practical information for the performance of all office-pertaining to the sick. It tells what to do in case of accidents, treats with nearly all the diseases to which human flesh is heir, as well as containing many receipts for preparing solid and liquid food for the sick. No home should be without a copy of it. It is a very attractive book of about 50 pages, and can be obtained upon application to the publishers, Davis & Lawrence Co., Ltd., Montreal, enclosing to them 5c in stamps to cover the expense of mailing, etc.

BACKACHE, swelling of feet and ankles puffing under eyes, frequent thirst, scanty, cloudy, highly colored urine and all urinary troubles lead to Bright's disease, dropsy, diabetes etc. Doan's Kidney Pills are a sure cure.

J. Pierpont Morgan said the other day that the era of great trusts had just begun, and that more gigantic corporations are stored in the near future, some of which may overshadow the steel trust.

The metal polishers, buffers, brass-rounder and brass workers passed a resolution at Bridgport, Conn., Thursday, providing for the expulsion of any member who joins the militia or permits his son to do so.

Jas. Hudson was arrested at Bridge-water, Thursday, for setting fire to a building there. He says he also caused two buildings to be destroyed by fire in Canada two years ago.

The Cause of Woman's Ills

In almost every case where woman suffers from ills peculiarly feminine the cause is to be found in a weakened and exhausted condition of the system. The nerves are depleted and the blood thin and watery. If medicines have failed to cure, it is because the wrong treatment has been used.

Mrs. Henry Clark, Port Hope, Ont., states:—"I have used seven boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervousness and a completely run down system, and can heartily recommend it as a wonderfully effective treatment. Before using this remedy I had been in very poor health for some months. I seemed to have no energy or ambition, felt tired and listless most of the time, and could scarcely drag myself about the house. I was weak, irritable and nervous, could not sleep well, and felt discouraged about my health. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has taken away these symptoms and given back my usual health and vigor, consequently I endorse it fully."

AUTHORS' BLUNDERS.

Some Mistakes in Which the Moon, Sun and Wind Figure.

The moon proves a terrible pitfall to most writers. Wilkie Collins once performed the marvelous feat of making it rise in the west. Rider Haggard, in "King Solomon's Mines," relies for the effective rendering of one of his most thrilling scenes upon an eclipse of the new moon.

Coleridge placed a star between the horns of the crescent moon, forgetting that to be visible in such a position the star would have to be between the earth and the moon or, say, 230,000 miles away only.

Next to the moon perhaps the sun is responsible for more glaring errors than any single concrete cause. At the beginning of a certain famous novel, the title of which a few years back was in everybody's mouth, an invalid character's room was said to have been lighted by one window looking directly toward the east. Yet at the end of the book, when the invalid dies, the author, wishing to make him depart this life in a flood of glory, suffuses this eastern windowed room with "the red glare of the setting sun."

Kingsley, too, made one of his heroes row out into the eastern ocean after the setting sun. But even this glaring absurdity has been capped. In a novel published by a well known firm there occurs the following passage, the scene being laid on board a big sailing ship: "How's the wind?" asked the skipper. "East-northeast," replied the mate, glancing at the masthead pennant, which was streaming blithely in the direction indicated. So that in the world, according to novelists, we should not only find the sun setting in the east, but pennants would "stream" against the direction of the prevailing wind.

A TOSPY TURVY ROOM.

A Frenchman Who Plays Practical Jokes on His Guests.

A "tospy turvy room," writes a correspondent, not illusory, but actually so built, existed near Paris some years ago and may still exist. One who saw it thus describes it and the use to which it was put: "I was the guest of the owner of the house," he says, "from Saturday to Monday. He was a bachelor, very convivial in his tastes, and we were a very jolly party of men. When we woke up, about 2 o'clock on the Sunday morning, one of our number, sound asleep on the couch in the billiard room, was carried out like a log by a couple of servants. My host gave me a solemn wink and told me that if a sudden summons came I was to rush from my bedroom or else I might miss a sight worth seeing. I wanted nothing but sleep and was relieved when the summons came to find that it was broad daylight.

"Yawning, I followed the valet and found myself, with four others, silently peeping through little holes in the wall. The scene was absurd, ridiculous. A dazed man slowly waking to full consciousness was lying on a plastered floor, looking up in horror at a carpeted ceiling. Two heavy couches, an easy chair, chairs and tables securely fastened stared down at him from above. The man's eyes at last rested on a flowerpot directly over his head, from which a flaming rose, apparently real, was blooming. He gave a cry and, rolling over, grasped with frenzied hands the stem of the chandelier, which came up through the floor. The host burst into the room, with a loud laugh. 'They all do it,' he cried. 'They fear they will fall up to the ceiling.'"

"Sit" and "Set."

Some one who believes in teaching by example has concocted a lesson in the use of two little words which have been a source of mortification and trouble to many well meaning persons. A man or woman either can set a hen, although they cannot sit her; neither can they set on her, although the hen might sit on them by the hour if they would allow it.

A man cannot set on the wash bench, but he could set the basin on it, and neither the basin nor the grammarians would object. He could sit on the dog's tail if the dog were willing or he might set his foot on it. But if he should set on the aforesaid tail or sit his foot there the grammarians as well as the dog would howl, metaphorically at least.

And yet the man might set the tail aside and then sit down and be assailed neither by the dog nor by the grammarians.

Not Worry, but Slumber.

They were discussing suicides and the proneness of different peoples to depart in that way when one of those engaged in the conversation turned to a colored man and asked, "Why is it that so few of your people take their own lives?"

After scratching his head a moment the person addressed responded, "Well, I tell you, boss; when a nigger sits down he don't worry, but goes to sleep."

Envy the Other Boy.

Johnny—I wish I was Tommy Jones. Mother—Why? You are stronger than he is, you have a better home, more toys and more pocket money. Johnny—Yes, I know, but he can wiggle his ears.

Experience the Only Reason.

She—There's really no reason for married folks to quarrel. He—No, except that they generally need a few quarrels to find that out.

The man who has the most to say about charity, beginning at home is generally the one who thinks that reform ought to begin on the other side of the world.

The Mokkine.

The Japanese mokkine is a xylophone of sixteen wooden keys, and it is beaten with two drumsticks.

Warlike Chinese.

The Chinese are commonly supposed to be peace loving and harmless. The Zeitschrift fur Missionskunde, however, declares that China is the greatest warlike nation in Asia and that they are in warfare worse than the Huns.

Alaska Salmon.

There are seven species of salmon in the Taku river, Alaska. Each has its date of arrival from the sea at the spawning grounds.

Beethoven and the Mandolin.

That so great a musical genius as Beethoven wrote several pieces for the mandolin seems to be a great source of pride to the lovers of this instrument. They are also fond of recalling the fact that Mozart indicated the mandolin in the score of "Don Giovanni" in his famous serenade.

Shakespeare.

Among the odd ways Shakespeare's name used to be spelled are Shakspeyr, Shaksyper, Shaxper, Shexpere, Shaker and Shaxspear.

Insanity.

A medical expert says that notwithstanding the great improvements made within the last thirty years in the treatment of the insane no more people are now discharged cured from asylums than formerly.

Whetstones.

In the United States rocks suitable for making whetstones are found in nearly all the states east of the Mississippi and in a number of those to the west of that river, but the supply is obtained from Arkansas, Indiana, Ohio, New York, Vermont and New Hampshire.

Boiling Water.

Use boiling water as soon as it boils or the gases escape and the water becomes flat.

Toast.

Bread for toast should be stale, should not be cut too thick and should be before the fire long enough to get heated through before it begins to brown. Then let it take a rich creole complexion.

Fish Caught on the Premises.

In some of the big restaurants of Russia there is a pool of water in which various kinds of fish swim about. A patron of the restaurant who desires fish goes to the pool, points out the particular one he wishes, and in an instant the waiter has captured it with a dip net and sent it to the chef.

Smoked Salmon.

Salmon intended for smoking are first scrubbed and dried, after which they are hung up in the smokehouse, where a slow fire is kept burning. One week is required for the smoking process.

On the Links.

Pedestrian (anxious for his safety)—Now, which way are you going to hit the ball? Worried Beginner—Only wish to goodness I knew myself.—Punch.

He Set It All Right.

Bill Collector—You say you intend to pay this bill some time. Can't you set a certain day? Lawyer Furst—Yes; judgment day.

Injuring Innocence.

Mr. R. Bassinton—No, Meddows, all I want is a little of the milk of human kindness.

Hopi Courtship.

When a Hopi maiden decides which of the eligible young men of the tribe she wishes to marry, she goes and sits in his house and grinds corn until he is sufficiently impressed by her industry to marry her.

After the ceremony, which is an elaborate one, the couple go to live in the wife's house. If she tires of her husband, she can obtain a divorce by merely throwing his saddle out of the house. After marriage the house, fields and all their property except the herds belong to the wife.

The Hopis are indulgent parents. The right of the children to do as they please is never questioned.

How a Woman Gets a Seat.

"I will tell you how to work it," said a woman, whose figure showed she would be tired by standing, to a companion in a Broadway car. "When there is no vacant seat, watch for two men who are in conversation and stand right in front of them."

"Each one will want his friend to think he is very polite, so both of them will jump right up and offer their seats. That's the way I do, and it never fails."
