Where has our Peabody correspondent gone to? Not having seen any items from here for some time I will endeavor to write a few.

We are having beautiful weather here at present and this has been the coolest summer for many years.

A large number of our friends have gone to the Provinces, among them being Mr. J. Anderson and daughter, of Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Rayfuse left here for Nova Scotia. After visiting there for some time they anticipate spending a few weeks with relatives in N. B.

Will Baldwin and his brother Joe left here for P. E. I. with the intention of purchasing two fine trawling horses.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Baldwin are spending a few weeks in N. B.

Miss Agnes Thompson and Miss Laura and Nancy Spencer are spending the summer months at Old Orchard Beach, Maine.

Miss Minnie Baldwin and Albert Fearon spent Sunday with her aunt on Ober street. We are sorry to say that Albert has taken a flying visit to his home in Kent Co.

Miss Mary Fearon is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Anderson. We are glad to learn that her health is much improved.

A number of Lynnfield folks enjoyed the 4th at the Willows, the favorite summer resort. Among them were Miss Ceila Little, B. Smallwood, Claude Phinady, Ernest Hetherington and a number of others.

Miss Maggie Little of Lynn, is visiting her sister in Salem.

E. B. Baldwin has returned from his trip west.

Rumor says that Fred Shute of Lynn, and Alex. Smith of this town anticipate visiting Old Orchard soon. We wish them a pleasant time.

WEST BRANCH.

Our summer visitors have arrived and are arriving. Mrs. Thorrott of Fall River City, Mrs. Wm. Murray and children of Moncton, Mr. and Mrs. R. McMichael and daughter of Harcourt, Mrs. H. McMichael and son of Mortimore, Miss Anna Lennox and the Misses Mitchell of Rexton are visiting friends here.

Haying has commenced and the farmers are more than flying round.

A few of our young friends enjoyed a picnic to the Cape. The numbers were few but the lack of quantity was gained in quality.

Mr. Alfred Irving has again contracted for carrying mail from here to Harcourt. He is on time as usual and makes things buzz, but Broncho is not in it this season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morton are to spend the Sabbath with friends here.

Mr. R. N. Doherty has just passed through en route for St. John.

RICHIBUCTO VILLAGE.

Mr. Pierre Boucher, son of Placide Boucher, who had been in the States for a few years, is back on a visit to his old home.

Miss Dina Bastarache, daughter of the late Maxime Bastarache, is on a visit to her relatives here. She intends going back to Fitchburg, Mass., in a few weeks.

Rev. Father Pelletier was on a visit to Father Martineau last week and officiated on Sunday.

Mr. Urbain L. Breaux and Miss Julianne Breaux of St. Anthony, paid P. R. Richard a visit last week.

Mrs. U. J. Richard went to Cocagne last week on a visit to her aged father Lazare Hebert, who is nearly one hundred years old and is said to be the oldest man from here to Shediac, N. B.

THOUGHTS AND SIGHTS

On Leaving Richibucto for the Lower Part of the Province.

Leaving Richibucto via the Kent Northern Railway, we had on board a number of returning fishermen. They apparently had a pleasant outing but did not have much success with the fish as the water was too high. As they were talking among themselves, they told the plain truth. We paid but slight attention to these matters at the time but had occasion to remember them later. Nothing out of the ordinary occurred on the trip to Moncton. Looking out of the window nothing is to be seen but scraggy brush and barren waste with an occasional farmhouse or small village and our mind reverts to the time of the building of the I. C. R. and regrets the mistake of the promoters of an Intercolonial Railway. What a great benefit to the north shore through Westmorland and Kent if the road had been built along the coast. One promoter says "If the country was to be invaded by a foreign foe they would seize a coast railway." We have had the road for a third of a century and no foreign foe has invaded our shores. We have had to build branch lines to reach the coast and the coast has reaped but slight benefit from the road, while a number have dared the forest waste and attempted settlement along the I. C. R., in some cases meeting with good success, as for example, our prosperous village of Harcourt. But look at the fortunes destroyed in the loss of our forests caused by forest fires from this same railway. And the road has been built too near the coast to let us hope for a coast railway. Another of the promoters said, "Let us build our Intercolonial Railway up the St. John valley and we will benefit the best farming section of the province." Still that same old bugbear, the fear of invasion, kills that project. If the United States were to go to war with us the valley of the St. John is so near the border that they would seize that road and our soldiers could not use it. And so the fear of war sent our road through the primeval forests. St. John valley is still crying for its railway and soon it will come, but the coast of Kent will long suffer without the faults of the fathers of confederation being remedied. But the losses of one section is the gain of another. What Kent and other places lost, Moncton has gained and the B. and N. of our fathers' time is the city of Moncton and the centre of our railway system today through the mistakes of thirty or forty years ago.

Moncton was found in her usual business activity. A false alarm of fire during the afternoon brought out her fire-engine and showed her visitors how quickly a dense swarm of boys can pack one of her streets. In the bright moonlight evening fully one thousand of her citizens were found meandering her wharves waiting for the Peticoodiac bore which was due to arrive at 8.52 p. m. "Time and tide wait for no man," the bore arrived at 8.50 p. m. On the Coverdale side of the river down at the bend, what looked in the moonlight like a white-cap of sea, first came in view and soon the whole width of the river was flaked in foam three or four feet in height. Presently there seemed to be a breeze rustling the trees somewhere, but no trees are in sight, then the sound of your neighbor's voice becomes indistinct, then there is a swish of rushing waters and the bore is past. In a few minutes the wharves are deserted.

Leaving Moncton by eleven o'clock express, in a couple of hours the writer is quietly sleeping in bed in Sussex. After breakfast we take a stroll with Foreman Johnson to Trout Creek railway bridge at the east end of town and here we find two crowds of men of about fifteen in each row hard to work passing a new bed in the bridge. In ten hours the whole bed of the bridge has been taken upon and a new bed passed down and being down on Sunday, no train was delayed.

Early Monday morning the writer was aroused from his bed to see a large bull of a cow moose leisurely passing down through the meadow only a stone's throw from the house and pass down across the interval, cross the Kennebecas river, up the southern slope and take to the woods. Big game of all kind is reported more numerous this year than ever before.

For several days it has been cold and wet. To day the sun is shining once more. A general onslaught will be made upon the hay within the next few days.

HE NEVER SPOKE AGAIN.

The Dog That Served the Purpose of a Ventriloquist.

The following story is told of a ventriloquist, now famous, but at the time of this happening so hard up he used to walk between the cities where he was to appear. On one of these tours he came to Philadelphia on foot, and on the road he picked up a miserable little dog "because it looked so much like he came of the dog."

The first house he came to was a saloon, and of course he wanted a drink. He had no money, but went in anyhow to see what he could do. The proprietor, a German, said:

"Well, what will you have?"

He said, "I'll take a little whisky," and then, turning to the dog, he asked:

"What will you have?"

The answer came very promptly:

"I'll take a ham sandwich."

The German was so surprised he almost fainted. He looked at the dog a moment and then asked:

"What did you say?"

The dog replied:

"I said a ham sandwich."

Hans thought it wonderful that a dog should be able to talk and asked who had trained him, how long it had taken, etc., and wound up with:

"How much you take for him?"

"Oh," said Mr. Ventriloquist, "I wouldn't sell him at any price, but I am a little hard up now, and if you will lend me $50 I'll leave him with you till I bring back the money."

"All right," said Hans. "I just want him for a little while so I can show him to some smart people I know around here."

So everything was settled, the money paid, etc., and as the ventriloquist went out he turned and waved his hand to the dog and said:

"Well, goodbye, Jack. I'll come back soon."

The dog looked at him and said:

"You mean son of a gun, to sell me for $50 after all I've done for you! So help me Moses, I'll never speak another word as long as I live!"

And he didn't.

FLOWER AND TREE.

There is a pink variety of lily of the valley which is often grown in England, though seldom seen with us.

A palm tree which grows on the banks of the Amazon has leaves thirty to fifty feet in length and ten to twelve feet in breadth.

Standard and "stand by" plants and varieties should be the rule of the beginner. Experiment with new flowers and varieties only in a small way.

Study color effects if you would have a really beautiful garden. The loveliest colors often neutralize each other sadly. Clear reds and magentas, for instance, should not be close neighbors.

Know the plants as you would people if you would have them respond fully. Find out their habits, their likes and dislikes. The study is one of unending pleasure, and it pays rich interest in perpetual bloom.

Linnia plants are good for low hedges. Plants a foot and a half apart will soon run branches together, and the foliage is dense from the ground up. The flowers are almost as brilliant as those of the dahlias and are produced freely from July to late October.

"You object to Mormonism and other forms of polygamy on moral grounds, I suppose?"

"Well, partly, partly, but not entirely."

"What else should make it offensive to you?"

"What else! Why, great mackerel, think of coming home late from the club and having to make explanations to ten or fifteen wives!"

Too Strenuous For Him.

Mr. Petronius de Hamme, the eminent tragedian, was compelled by the exigencies of the play to carry the heroine up a rocky defile night after night.

Mr. de Hamme was not so sturdy as he used to be, and when the management cast Miss Vera Hervigh, who tipped the scales at 310 pounds, for the heroine his spirit rose within him.

That night he made one mighty effort to carry her up the rocky defile and then advanced to the footlights. In an apologetic tone he inquired, "Is there a piano mover in the audience?"

Died in Place of a Younger Man.

A charge was made at a wall lined with French infantry. Sergeant McQuade of an English regiment saw two Frenchmen level their muskets on rests against a gap in a bank, awaiting the appearance of an enemy.

Sir George Brown, then a lad of sixteen, started to ascend at the fatal point. "You are too young, sir, to be killed," said McQuade, pulling him back and stepping into his place. He fell dead, pierced with both bullets.
