TO TELL GOOD CIGARS.

Judges of Their Fine Points Few and Far Between.

The judges of good cigars in this country are few and far between, says an expert. The great difficulty with the people who think they know cigars is that they lay too much stress on the color of the weed. The color makes not the slightest difference, and you are just as likely to find one of the rankest kind of cigars with the deep black color of the genuine Havana as you are to find a bad one among those that are yellow as straw.

The best way to tell a cigar is by the feel of it. Take a cigar in your hands and give it a gentle pressure, holding it close to the ear. If the cigar is a good one, it will be just the least little bit flexible, and the fingers will sink into the wrapper. It gives forth General Manager and Lessee, no perceptible sound. If the cigar is hard and close rolled and when placed to the ear sounds as though you were pressing straw together, beware. The best cigars are made of the same leaf as the wrapper and are closely rolled. The common cigars are what is known as filled and contain all kinds of refuse from the tables where the good cigars are made. There are some filled cigars that are good smokes, but you seldom find a Havana or a Manila or good Cuban or Key West smoke that is not rolled. Many people who go into a cigar store to get an imported smoke do not follow up the salesman when he takes the cigars from the case and are consequently often fooled. They are given domestic brands and are charged imported prices for them. These "good cigar judges" cannot tell the difference when there is all the difference in the world. If you must have an imported smoke, make the ing today?" clerk hand you the box and look closely at the revenue stamp. The stamps on domestic goods are green and white, while those on the imported boxes are all yellow and white. Look into the next cigar cases you see before purchasing an imported eigar. If they have no boxes in the case to which is attached a yellow and white stamp, don't attempt to make a purchase. The clerk will sell you a cigar he calls imported, but it will not be the real ar-

A Little Misunderstanding. Soon after the convening of a new session of congress announcement was made of the approaching marriage of and G. McCook, who was then secetary of the senate. The Tall Gentleman.

A Frenchman visiting a fashionable concert garden in St. Petersburg some vears ago stopped a passing Russian officer and asked for a light for his eigar, which had gone out. The officer, after a moment's hesitation, handed his own cigar to the Frenchman and looked on with a smile of resignation at the latter's frantic efforts to get a light. "You are French, I believe?" said the

"Not only French, but from Tou-

"Ah, now I understand why you did not salute the tall gentleman in uniform who was with me when you asked me for a light." "The tall gentleman? I did not notice him. Who is he?"

"The emperor," replied the officer, at last regaining possession of his cigar.

"Are you sure?" "Perfectly. He happens to be my father."

Fox's Wit.

The following is one of the many stories told about Charles James Fox, the English statesman and orator:

Mr. Hare, envoy to the court of Poland, occupied rooms in the statesman's "diggings." He was a great personalfriend and indeed a man of very similar tastes. They were each the objects of continual inquiry on the part of tradesmen and others. One day Fox. looking out of the upper window, descried two men watching the house and waiting. With a genial smile, he shouted, "Pray, gentlemen, will you tell me, are you Fox hunting or Hare hunt-

Snakes Used by Charmers. Cobras are selected by the so called snake charmers of both Egypt and India for their performances. The Egyptian charmers sometimes pretend to change the serpent into a rod, and, according to Geoffrey St. Hilaire, this appearance can be induced by giving a strong squeeze to the animal's neck, which induces a convulsive rigidity from which the animal soon recovers. It need hardly be said that the snake charmers always carefully extract the fangs of the snakes they use.

Death Superstitions.

Death superstitions are rife in the West Indies. To the people there everything out of the ordinary is a "sign." It is as bad to slave at work as to In Cuba a person with a sore or wound of any kind will not look upon a dead person, fearing that the spot will become incurable. The rum used in washing a dead body is, however, regarded as a sure cure for all eye troubles. If the light from a candle or lamp falls on the face of the dead, death will shortly chief use of it is to cut off the tops of come to him or her who was carrying the light.

Although the silk cotton tree is a native of South America, there is one specimen of it in Nassau, Bahama islands, that has flourished wonderfully and is one of the greatest curiosities on the island. It was planted more than 200 years ago by John Miller. The roots seem to be unable to find their way down after the manner of ordinary roots and so swell up like great buttresses radiating round the trunk of the tree, rising from the ground to a height of from six to twelve feet. They reach out to irregular distances, gnarled and twisted in the most curious fashion. They turn and bend and double a point in all sorts of unexpected ways and make dark hollows and ravines, where the darkies believe the elves and gnomes make their home.

The great seed pods are filled with a fine, soft fleece of silk, which the natives use for filling their pillows and mattresses. There are several specimens of the tree on the island of New Providence, but this one is monarch of them all.

A Fly That Kills Horses.

All white men who visit regions in Africa infested by the tsetse fly have much to say about it. There is now evidence that the tsetse is moving gradually to more northern regions, and the cause is supposed to be that South Africa is depleted of its large game, much of which is moving northward to get away from hunters, and the tsetse fly is going with it.

The insect is only a little larger than the ordinary house fly, and it resembless the honeybee. Its sting is hardly as annoying as that of the mosquito, but near the base of the proboscis is a little bag which contains its poison. It lives on the blood of animals, and only a few species are fatally affected by its bite. Cattle, horses and dogs, however, cannot live when bitten by the tsetse fly. Natives who herd cattle and travelers who depend on horses and oxen must avoid the fly regions or lose their stock. For human beings its bite has no serious consequences.

To Promote Marriages.

It is a superstition in some parts of England that after a young couple have departed for their honeymoon hot water should be poured on the threshold in order that other marriages may follow. With this end in view the bride's girl friends will sometimes drench the doorstep with boiling water from kettles heated for the purpose of keeping the threshold warm, says Home Notes.

In Iceland another plan is in vogue. There the bride, on reaching her husband's house, has to give a dinner cooked with her own hands to show how well she has been instructed in the parental home. If she succeed in pleasing the guests, her skill does not only redound to her own honor, but also to that of her whole family, and her sisters, having shared in her educational advantages, are considered likely to make good wives.

A Menace to Vessels.

The fiction of the mysterious loadstone mountain which drew the nails out of ships that approached near enough has a certain foundation in fact, says the Siecle, only the fact has suffered by expansion. On the coast of Norway, near Joedern, there is a sand dune of nearly three-quarters of a mile in length. The sand is mixed with particles of loadstone, and when a ship comes in the vicinity the compass becomes irregular, and the vessel is entangled in a kind of whirlpool and thrown ashore.

Lavoisier's Death.

Without the contrasted patience of moral and physical pain there are men of high intellect for whom the latter has no terrors. The chemist Lavoisier was summoned during the reign of terror in France to his death. He calmly requested a few days in order to see the result of some experiments which he had in progress-in vain. This great philosopher of his day fell an immediate martyr to the political necessities of the ruthless tyrant Robespierre.

Turtle Eggs.

Turtle eggs are an acquired taste with most people, although they are not so with bears. They have a rough, yellow yolk and a white like any other egg, but you can cook them for a year and the white part will remain liquid. Notice a curious dimple in the side of each one. If you squeeze it out, the dimple appears on the other side, and you can never get hold of a turtle egg which masn't got a dimple in it.

The Maddening Printer.

"I wish to say to the congregation," said a country clergyman lately, "that the pulpit is not responsible for the error of the printer on the tickets for the concert in the Sunday school room. The concert is for the benefit of the arch fund, not for the arch fiend."

Resentful Man, "What did he say when you promised to be a sister to him?"

"He looked at me earnestly for a moment or two and then said that it would be much more consistent if I would make it an aunt."

He Stooped.

A little girl's father had a round bald spot on top of his head. Kissing him at bedtime not long ago, she said: "Stoop down, popsy, dear; I want to kiss the place where the lining shows."

INOCULATION IN ENGLAND.

It Was Lady Mary Wortley Montagu Who Introduced It.

It was Lady Mary Wortley Montagu who first introduced inoculation for smallpox in England. While residing in Belgrade in 1717 she saw the Turks practice "engrafting," as they called it, to produce a mild form of smallpox and stay its ravages. She examined the process and, being convinced of its efficacy, applied it to her three-year old son. On her return to England she introduced it in London. At that time it was computed that one person in every seven died of the smallpox. Yet she was opposed by the entire medical faculty. By order of government an experiment was made upon five persons then under sentence of death, and it proved perfectly successful.

But instead of Lady Mary being acknowledged as a public benefactor she was persecuted with the most relentless hostility. The faculty rose to a man against her. Even the clergy descanted on the awful impiety of seeking to take events out of the hands of Providence. The common people were urged to hoot her as an unnatural mother who had risked the lives of her own children. However, the Princess of Wales, afterward Queen Caroline, stood her friend, and truth and reason finally prevailed. It was about the year 1752 that Lady Montagu was honored by a monument erected to commemorate England's gratitude to her for introducing inoculation.

Dr. Edward Jenner substituted cowpox inoculation in 1799. He lived to be rewarded by parliament by a grant of £10,000 and later by a second grant of £20,000, and in 1858 a statue was erected to him in London. Only a bare credit was vouchsafed to Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, who bore all the persecution without any of the pecuniary reward she was entitled to and by no means a fair share of the glory.

PRETTY DISTRUSTFUL.

Case Where Suspicion Might Be Carried Too Far.

"I told the postmaster of a town at the foot of the Cumberland mountains that I proposed a two weeks' trip couldn't give me a writing of some sort met with moonshiners.

"'Yes; I could write something, but I'm afeared it would do no good,' he replied. 'They might read the letter and know I wrote it, but they'd still be suspicious.' " 'Suspicious of what?'

"'Suspicious that you was a spy. They'd be so suspicious that they'd probably draw you up to a limb with a rope around your neck and let you hang for a minit.'

"'Then they'd let me down and believe I was all right, wouldn't they?' "'I'm afeared not. I'm afeared they'd still be suspicious of you.' " 'Suspicious of what?' "'Suspicious that you was a revenoo man. Then they'd draw you up again, and it might be two minits befo' they let you down this time. Two minits is a purty long time to be kickin' and chokin'.'

"'But they would finally let me down?' I asked.

"'Yes; I reckon so.' "'And be convinced that I was no revenue man? "'Yes; they might, but that wouldn't end it. They'd still be suspicious.'

" 'Of what?' "That you was a blamed fule fur bein' up thar at all, and this time they'd pull you up and leave you hangin' fur the best part of a week."

A Rainy Day In Japan.

In the houses, the streets and the gardens, the places of public resort, everywhere in Japan, is to be found the all pervading element of art and beauty. A rainy day in Japan is not as in London a day of gloom and horror, but a day of absolute fascination. What a joy is the spectacle of all those lovely yellow paper umbrellas unfurling themselves beneath a shower like flowers before the sun! PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

The Great Spring Health Giver Makes Sick People Well.

When spring comes with its gentle showers, its balmy air, its bright sunshine and bursting buds, it too often brings to our homes scenes of suffering and physical decay. The seeds of disease which were imperceptibly germinating during the winter months, have developed and planted in the system dangers that now demand our instant care and attention. Neglect and procrastination will only deepen existing perils and lead to death. Before the advent of spring, you must have noted symptoms, perhaps of rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, kidney disease, liver complaint, functional irregularities or nervous disorders. If you have experienced pains in the joints, muscles or limbs, lacerating pains in face or head, stomach derangements, bile, dislike of food, pains in back and loins, swelling of hands or feet, frequent urinating, with highly colored urine, loss of energy, torpid liver, vomiting or impure blood-any of these are warnings of dis-

Take warning sufferers! Delay not another day; hesitation and indecision on your part may forever seal your fate. If you have already made efforts to banish your troubles by the use of other meatcines and the treatment of physicians, and these have failed, we counsel you to put your full trust in that neverfailing disease banisher, Paine's Celery Compound. 1 s use for a week or two will convince you that you have truly commenced a new existence; it will assuredly give you the health you need for the enjoyment of true life. Mr. A. Daignault, St. Hyacinthe, Que., writes as follows:

"I desire to say, that had it not been for Paine's Celery Compound I would not be among the sights and scenes of the big | living to day. Five years ago I was taken hills," said a Detroiter who roams all sick, and suffered from dyspepsia and over the country, "and asked him if he catarrh. For three years I was unable to work, and would loose consciousness severthat would be a safe conduct in case I | al times a day. I was tired of life, and could realize that death was my only deliverer from suffering. At that time one of my friends urged me to use Paine's Celery Compound, as all other medicines had failed. After the use of six bottles I am as well as ever before in my life, and can do a full day's work. My triends say my cure is a miracle, as I was surely condemned to die. I thank you for your wonderful life-giving medicine."

Every Mother A Doctor

It is an anxious time for mothers when the little ones get their feet cold and wet, and come home hoarse and coughing, or awaken in the night victims of deadly croup. Then it is that mothers turn gratefully to Dr. Chase, who, through his great Recipe Book and famous family remedies, has time and again saved the little ones and older ones, too, from suffering and death.

It is truly surprising how promptly Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine brings relief when the throat is sore and irritated, when the cold is tight in the chest, and the cough painful and distressing. It allays the infiammation, heals the sore and torn membranes, soothes the nerves and clears the air passages.

People who know of the singular virtues of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine do not think of accepting the cheap substitutes which many druggists offer in its place; 25 cents. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

AGOLDMINE ON YOUR FARM.

The SPRAMOTOR was awarded the only Gold Medal on spraying machines at the Pan-American Exhibition.

The Canadian Government awarded it first place over eleven others in actual contest. It can be used equally well for spraying Fruit Trees and Crops, and painting with oil and water paints or whitewash. With it a man and boy can do the work of twenty men with brushes. There are plenty of Spray-pumps, but only one Spramotor.

I have secured the agency for Kent Co., and will mail free on application a copy of 80 page Treatise on the diseases of fruit trees and their remedies.

As usual a full stock of Carriages, Express Wagons, Harness, Plows, Harrows, Churns, Cultivators, Dore's combined Seeder and Harrow, McCormick Harvesting Machinery, Organs, Pianos, Sewing Machines, etc. Terms easy, prices right.
