SWINE RAISING IN THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

For some years the farmers of the Maritime provinces have been complaining that they could not sell their pigs at profitable prices although at the same time large quantities of pork and pork products were being brought into these provinces from outside sources to meet the needs, not only of the lumbermen, but of the city dealers in high class groceries. A few packing houses have been started, but owing to a variety of causes, they have not met with the prosperity that they should, considering the suitability of the country for the production of swine. It evidently requires the combined efforts of the farmers and the packers to remedy the anomalous state of affairs at present existing. On the part of the farmers it will be necessary to agree to furnish a certain number of pigs monthly, or better still, weekly, so that the packers will be kept busy the entire season, not rushed with business two or three months and then forced to remain idle the rest of the year. The packers should guarantee to take so many pigs per week, should buy them on foot, grade them according to quality, and pay prices to correspond with the grade. The pigs should be properly killed, dressed, and cured, so as to make the class of meats demanded by the best markets. Only first class becon that can compete with the best Irish and Danish goods should be exported to England; the re

To turn out the best class of goods parti cular attention must be given to the sort of pig grown, and the method of feeding the same. To produce the highest grade of Wiltshire bacon for export, the packers require a long, deep, smooth pig, possessing a light head and shoulder and even back, not too broad, but well covered with flesh, not fat; at the same time he must not be a razor back. The sides from ham to back of shoulder must be long and deep, the underline straight and free from flabbiness, the ham smooth and tapering, with the greatest amount of flesh on the outside. The pig should be healthy, vigorous, and a good feeder, weighing when ready for market from 175 to 200 lbs. It is generally conceded that Yorkshires produce the greatest proportion of pigs of this type, with the Tamworths next. The thick fat American or lard breeds are not wanted by packers. Pigs should be fed wholesome and carefully selected food:skimmed milk, barley, pease, cooked potatoes, roots, green food, &:., in a properly balanced ration.

mainder should be marketed in America.

I have recently received from Mr. Wm. Lilley, Sr., of St. John, N. B., a letter which summarizes the situation in the lower provinces so accurately that it is worthy of widespread publicity. Mr. Lilley says: -- "My reasons for writing you are:- I am interested in the pork packing busir as, have learned the trade in all its det. a ha England, and am thoroughly acquainted with the way pork is handled in that country, and what is required for the English markets, so as to successfully compete with the Danish and Irish products. I am also convinced from acquaintance with the trade in the Maritime provinces, and the ideas prevailing among the farmers about the raising of hogs, feeding, &c., that they will have to be gradually educated to it. My idea is that instead of making the capital $100,000 to $125, 000 the pork packing business should be come aced on a small scale, as far as the Mariame provinces are concerned; this would give a chance to get clear of the bye-products in the local markets. As an instance, I would mention one that was started in Middleton, N. S.; the promoters put up a big ice house and filled it with ice at a cost that would half build small factor, , and the result was that while the concern could probably handle the hogs, the farmers were unable to, or unwilling to furnish them, and the company went into liquidation. While no doubt you are correct in saying that a large concern will minimize the expenses, yet there is the farmer, and his education to be considered, especially in the Maritime provinces, where the matter of pork raising is in its infancy, and will have to be care fully nursed.

Nearly all the English concerns com menced on a small scale, with a small factory. All kinds of hogs could be used at first, only the choice and sizable pro ducts sent to England, and the others dis posed of in the local market. Then gradually impress upon the farmers the necessity and importance of attending more to the better culture and feeding of the pig, so as to come up to the Danish and Irish hog.

I see some difficulty too in getting farm. ers in the Maritime provinces to put a large amount of money into co-operative pork packing companies. While no doubt some have money, yet it will be difficult to get them to invest it. The better way in my opinion, is for some parties who are acquainted with the business to form a small company with a capital of say $10,000, and guarantee a ready market to the farmers. This would sait the farmers of the Maritime provinces, and give them a chance to go into pork raising. As it is now, some years pork is very low, and others very high, like the present one. When low and no market the farmer lets his stock die out but if he was certain of a sure market at remunerative prices he would keep up and improve his stock.

A few years ago a man named Pakingham came here from Ireland and tried to induce capitalists to invest in the starting of a pork packing concern, but the amount of capital was too large, hence the failure."

In connection with the officers of the Maritime Stock Breeders' Association, I am endeavoring to improve the condition of the swine industry in the lower provinces, and there is a prospect of better things in the near future. Messrs. F. E. Williams and Co. of St. John tell me they are willing to give a guarantee that they will be willing to take, beginning next September, at least two carloads of pigs per week, buy them on foot and pay market prices. Messrs. Williams will be prepared next year to run their factory at full blast during the whole summer if the pigs are promised. Other firms are likely to take similiar action, and if the matter is properly pushed, a good trade in bacon and other pork products should be gradually established.

M. de Coubertin says he believes that if South Africa should be attacked or Australia threatened, or if misfortune should overtake Great Britain it would be seen that blood is thicker than water, and the star-spangled banner would become the flag of the Anglo-Saxon race.

RETURNED MARRIAGE LICENSE.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 28. - James Oliver sner of marriage licenses in Windsor. received a visit on Friday from a Detroit man, who asked that the fee he paid Mr. O.iver for a license be refunded.

He explained that the young woman whom he expected to make his wife had at the last minute changed her mind and a future alliance between them was too remote to be thought of at present.

Therefore, weighted with sorrow as was the young man's heart, he could not overlook the fact that the license fee had been paid to no good purpose, and he wished it retured to him.

Mr. Oliver explained that, while he was deeply sorry for the dissapointment that had befallen the prospective bridegroom, he could not effice the sale of the licensel from his books, hence he must retain the money.

N. B. LOBSTER FISH-ERY.

The Department of Marine and Fish.

eries at Ottawa has recently addressed to those interested in the lobster fishery in the Maritime Provinces a series of seveneen questions bearing upon their industry and measures most likely to assist in the preservation of what is of so much value to the people in certain sections of the Maritime Provinces. Among the questions upon which suggestions are invited is one in regard to the setting apart of spawning reserves at intervals along the coast and another in regard to the exclusion of American canning establishments. The application of the fishermen for an extension of the present season for ten days, which was granted, appears to have stirred up the department on the everrecurring question of the possible extinction of the fishery. There appears to be an erroneous idea abroad to some extent. however, as to the causes that led the fishermen to apply for an extension this year. A leading packer in New Brunswas not due to any special failure of the weak I could scarcely stand fishery but to the bad weather in May and June, which prevented the fishermen from setting their traps and attending them after they were set. In regard to the suggestion of the department that reserves for breeding should be set apart at different points along the coast, lobster fishermen this would be as assistant to the fishery evil. The major ity of those interested say the only sure way is by the establishment of hatcheries. The Pictou hatchery has successfully planted 120,000,000 lobsters in the waters of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, particularly in Northumberland Straits, and one fisherman interviewed by a correspondent is quite positive that this institution has been of material benefit already to the fishery. He thinks, however, that other hatcheries should be established covering all the fishing centres in order that all the "berried" lobsters may be saved and applied to the propagation of the species. It is understood that the department is now considering the matter of locating other batcheries and that Pro. Prince is to visit the Provinces for the purpose of getting information in reference thereto.

The disturbance is what is known as a twister. Since the first disturbances of Lose Alamos, in the northern part of Santa Barbara county. During the last four days that section of country has been shaken by a series of earthquakes that are without precedent in the history of the Pacific coast. The most severe shock occurred this morning. Sunday night there have been more than 70 distinct shocks. A conservative estimate of the loss of property in the village is $30,000. The amount will probably be greatly increased by damage in the surrounding country.
