

PROSPECTUS OF A NEW WEEKLY PUBLICATION.

THE Periodical Publication of Biographical and Historical accounts of the numerous and diversified inmates of the Gaol, and its precincts, with all the varieties of detail in respect of the circumstances of their detention, and the strength of their claims on the public notice, it is thought would prove alike serviceable to the ends of justice, improvement, instruction, and of pleasure. It will of course be deemed advisable to enter in the columns of our Calendar, those eminent individuals, who variously contribute to the erection and maintenance of a Gaol, and the filling of it with inmates. The dignitaries of the Bench, the ORDINATES and SUB-ORDINATES of the Court, and the practitioners at the Bar, will of course claim at our hands primary notice, and our first columns shall consequently be graced with the accounts and sayings of men so illustriously conspicuous for a rigid attention to justice and mercy, for mild and unassuming manners and deportment, and for legal acuteness and critical acumen. By paying proper attention to "the powers that be," a sort of persons, indeed, for whom, (like the Baillie Macwhieble,) we always entertain unlimited respect, the publishers throw themselves with armed security on the public patronage.

In the progress of the work we shall have frequent occasion to lay before the public view, scenes like which, but few unpracticed eyes have witnessed: scenes which will harrow the hearts of the unsophisticated men, and cause them to shudder from the crown of the head to the extremity of the great toe. In executing a duty so imperiously pressing, however, galling to the feelings of the guilty, or burthensome the task to ourselves, no considerations of self-interest shall warp, nor labour deter. It is in fine our determination to expose the inside of our Bastille—that charnel-house of Northumberland, to public view, and those who choose to regale their appetites with the feast, shall have ample enjoyment—even to satiety.

The work shall be composed of entirely original matter, and our columns shall always be open to temperate complaints against public characters, be they who they may. All assistance which we may receive shall be promptly & thankfully acknowledged, with the only stipulation that we cannot promise in all instances, a VERBATIM publication of communications;—But we do bind ourselves, to embody all useful information into the general tenor of our own remarks, and gain for ourselves thereby, an extended sphere of utility. The distresses of individuals shall not be wantonly exposed to the public gaze, but all instances of oppression shall be lashed with unrelenting vigour. But we do not wish to have it imagined for one moment, that our work is to send all its readers to sleep, by a lengthened detail of dry and matter-of-fact cases: nothing is further from our thoughts. Ridicule is the best weapon to raise mankind, and we intend to use it to the very best of our power. When enemies fail, or furnish no food for our humour, we shall have no hesitation in turning on our FRIENDS.

"Laugh at our own friends, and, if our friends are sore,
So much the better,—we may laugh the more."

Nor shall our remarks be confined to men and measures at Miramichi, but, as our genius is naturally wild and exursive, we fully produce to draw liberally on the neighbouring Counties.

We must beg leave to declare, that in the excuse of our satirical observations, the real names of individuals shall never disgrace our pages. Satire is our weapon, we shall apply it leniently to promote improvement, and never so harshly as to confirm vice. Malice forms no part of our nature; and even under the influence of natural feelings of indignation at suffering, or seeing suffered injustice in its most disgusting shapes, yet we solemnly pledge ourselves to curb the violence of our pen when waged to fury; or even to spleen.

The Journal will be published at Newcastle, it is hoped, on every Thursday, and sometimes oftener, of the same size, type, and paper, as the Glenier was published, when the Proprietors were out of paper. The title of the Periodical will be—

with the motto,

"Astounding climax this for hist'ry's page,
A rich and poor; a wise and foolish age."
