Dr. Tur-Reon, assisted by the Right Rev. Archbishop Signay, assisted by the Right Rev. Dr. Bourget, Bishop of Montreal. The ceremony was a splendid one; every one who knows how per-fect the Canadian Clarus are in the knowledge bet the Canadian Clergy are in the knowledge and performance of ceremonies, can judge of the imposing spectacle the cathedral offered on this on this occasion. The three consecrating pre-lates, and the Eishop elect, with all their reti-lates, habited with all the munificence that their churches can afford—an immense concourse of People exceedingly fine weather, and the deep attention paid by the dense congregation to the ampressive rite—all was in harmony with the spirit of our holy religion, as well as with the home and gaiety with which she decks herself on these great occasions. The newly conse-cated prelate, whose dignified piety struck and dified us during the long and fatiguing cere-mony, has, it is said, chosen Fredericton for his Episcopal see. He intends to set out for his docess on Eriday, and will hear with him the cocese on Friday, and will bear with him the sympathies and affections of those who have lad the happiness to appreciate his really apostolic vision. olic virtues, and his profound humility dusing hisstay in Quebec.—Correspondent of the New York Freeman's Journal.

Saturday's Edition.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 29,

We have been favored with a copy of the speech delivered by Mr. Street at the close of the poll at Newcastle, on Thursday last, which

Gentlemen Freeholders,

Now that this protracted contest is over, I trust I shall not subject myself to the imputation of self-adulation, by congratulating you and the county at large upon the result. You have obtained a victory, Gentlemen, in which every good and peaceable member of seciety,—in which every man who wishes to see right prevail in defiance of physical force,—who wishes to see good order and the supremacy of the Law sustained, is deeply concerned, in-asthe Law sustained, is deeply concerned, in-as-much as it is the legal and constitutional rights of the people, which for the last six or eight months have been laid prostrate at the feet of a lawless and unprincipled rabble, triumphing over misrule, anarchy and confusion. Gentle-men, it is the Principle not the Individual, you have, in common with myself, been contending for in this election. Gentlemen, I feel that I, the humble instrument, must be lost sight of in the humble instrument, haust be lost sight of in the great leading cause we have been fighting for, viz: our constitutional rights,—the right of exercising our Elective Franchise according to the dictates of our consciences, without restraint or intimidation. Gentlemen, our opponents well knew they could not accomplish. their object by fair, and therefore resorted to foul play, both in their canvas and in the confoul play, both in their canvas and in the contest, whence their wanton, brutal, and outrage ous attack upon my friends and supporters, at the opening of the poll on the first day of the election—an outrage, Gentlemen, that perhaps was never before witnessed on a like occasion in any country, much less in a British colony; and in this proceeding, Gentlemen, I regret to say, that we have too much reason to believe that this lawless mad were not only countenanthat this lawless mob were not only countenanced by several of the Chatham magistrates, but by a member of the Executive Government, but by a member of the Executive Government, —by a man, Gentlemen, who cught to have been foremost in quelling outrage and sustaining the peace of the country; but who, I verily believe, has, in common with the opposing candidate, been the prime mover and cause of the whole of the disturbances that have for the last six or eight months, distracted this once happy county. Gentlemen, Mr. Williston in my opinion, came forward at this election, not only as the puppet of a mobe and tool of a party bat under the immediate suspices and counte-nance of the present Executive Government of the province; and Gentlemen, when we see a member of the Executive Government—yes, l may say two of them -- one here, and another in member of the Executive or the property of the Executive forms and another in Fredericton, demonstrating a strong feeling in his (Mr. W.'s) favor,—the one by openly canvassing for him, and the other by conduct which cannot be misunderstood;—and when we also find the reiterated representations to the Head of the Executive from the Grand Jury and General Sessions of the county, urging upon him the necessity of military aid to assist the civil authorities in preserving the peace of the county, unheeded and unnoticed, I think I am fully jestified in drawing this conclusion

Far be it from me, Gentlemen, to attribute improper motives to his Execllency the Lieutenant Governor,—I believe him, when left to himself, to be a well-disposed, well inteationed, excellent man; but Gentlemen, I do say, and I say it fearlessly, that his Execllency, by neglecting, in the first instance, to comply with the Magistrates' and Grand Jury's requisition for the military,—and in the second instance, by refusing to do so, and accompanying that refusal with the opinion of the Astorney General, as to the duty of the Sheriff in case of Riot, an opinion, Gentlemen, in my mind, as contrary to Law as to common sesse-an opinion much more likely to create than to check disturbance -has been grossly misled by his advisers, or the majority of them, and has thereby deserved ly lost the confidence of the country-a confideace I much fear, Gentlemen, he will never be able to regain, while the majority of his present advisers remain in office. Gentlemen, I conceive the peaceable and well disposed ishabitsous of this county have been greatly neglected and ill-treated by the Executive in leaving them thus exposed to the mertive in leaving them thus exposed to the mer-ciless fary and depredations of a body of mis-guided people, in defiance of all the representa-tions to His Excellency upon the subject. The consequences are that blood has been spill—life has been lost—properly destroyed—the people in-tionidated,—and but for the lauble, magnasimous manades,—and out for the audice, magnatimous of the part of my friends and supporters on the first day of the Poll, God knows, what would have been the coasequence. Gentlemen, had the Executive complied with the requisition for the Executive complied with the requisition for the Executive complied with the requisition for the coasequence. troops, do you believe any of these disturbances would have taken place, or that these consequences would have ensued? Gentlemen, believing, as I firmly do, that they would not, I do not envy the reflections of the Executive upon the subject, when they hear of the death of that worthy, but unfortunate man, James Ryan.

Gentlemen, it cannot but be gratifying to every good member of society, to witness the peaceable disposition and high moral feeling that has characterized the proceedings of the supporters of our cause throughout. Peace and fair play has been, and is still our motto, and most religiously has that motto been adhered to.
Will or can any of Mr Williston's voters say that they have met with insult or the slightest interruption in the exercise of their Elective Franchise? Has not the same measure of jus-Franchise? Has not the same measure of justice, ever since we have been masters of the field been meted out to both sides? But, Gentlemen, what has been the conduct of the opposite side?—have they not, no later than two days since, committed an outrageous assault and battery on two respectable Freeholders in the village of Chatham—and have not many of our Chatham friends and supporters been deter-red by the lawless proceedings of the rioters, from giving their votes, not from any apprehensions of immediate injury in coming to the Poll, (as that we could prevent); but for fear of the (as that we could prevent); but for lear of the consequences to themselves and their property afterwards? The outrage upon Mr James Johnson, and Mr Vondy, two days since, no doubt, was simply to show others what they might expect, if they voted for ms. Gentlemen—the whole of the past and present opposition to my election are as you well know trops on the whole of the past and present opposition to my election, arose, as you well know, from disappointed ambition and a contemptible parish faciling that Chatham cannot be represented unless the member resides in the village. And this feeling has been wrought upon by designing individuals to serve their own selfished, till they have raised up a spirit which is likely to prove highly injurious to the well-ends, bil they have raised up a spirit which is likely to prove highly injurious to the welfare of this flourishing county.

Gentlemen,—far be it from me to complain of a fair opposition at an election. I have no such intention. Had Mr. Williston or any other Candidate, come forward and contested the question fairly and constitutionally, I should be the last to complain,—on the contrary, if thesense of the County had in such case been declared of the County had in such case been declared in his favor, I should have retired from the field without the slightest feeling of hostility; but, Gentlemen, I can never consent to be bullibut, Gentlemen, I can never consent to be bullied out of my rights. Gentlemen, you well know my opponents have resorted to every species of imposition and misrepresentation not only against me, but against my Friends and Supporters, to injure our cause; but gentlemen, these misrepresentations have fortunately all recoiled upon their own heads.

Gentlemen, I thank you for this striking manifestation of confidence. You have again for the fourth time, reposed in me the most sacred trug, that British subjects can place in the hands of a fellow citizen, it is no less than investing me with the power to assist in making Laws &c.

for the Government of your persons, your pro-perty, and life itself. Gentlemen,my great am-bition has been and will ever be to show you bition has been and will ever be to show you by every honest means in my power, that I am not undeserving of that trust.

Gentlemen, I thank you from my heart for your personal kindness, support and assistance throughout this memorable contest and I have only to say in conclusion—When I forget you, do you forget me, and if I ever betray your trust, may God forget me.

Gentlemen, I regret that Mr. Williston has not thought proper to show himself at the Hustings to day, for two reasons; the first, that he might hear what I have said relative to him and his supporters, and secondly, that he might might hear what i have said relative to him and his supporters, and secondly, that he might again witness your self-possession and highly creditable forbearance. Mr. Williston well knows, Gentlemen, that he and his voters would be as safe this day, as I am; and his assertion to the contrary, and his teasons for not appearing to day, as expressed in his letter to the Sheriff, are of a piece with his contemptible conduct throughout the whole election. Gentlemen, I beg to apologise for trespassing thus long upon your time and patience, and again thank you for your noble and disinterested support. disinterested support.

There was a Riot, attended with loss of life, at Kingston Canada, on the 12th inst, on the occasion of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, During the day, things generally were quiet.—About 9 o'clock in the evening, the outbreak commenced. The military were called upon the ground. Three persons were instantly killed by shots fired by the rioters. The difficulty grew out of the feeling of hostility cherished by the Repealers against the Orangemen. The latter abandoned all public processions on that day, and rigidly confined them Riot and loss of Life at Kingston, Canada .solves to their lodge rooms, where they dined together. Montreal Courier, July 17:

THE CROPS — The Brockville Recorder says:

"In this section of the Province, the wheat never presented a more promising appearance to the eye. We regret, however, to state that the insect which showed itself for a few year's past, has again made its appearance, and it is feared that much injury will in consequence be sustained. In some fields these dimunitive, yet destructive, animals are quite plenty; in others a few only are reported, while in some they have not been discovered. On the whole, considering the uncommon growth and fine appearance, a fair average crop may be anticipated, should the rust not show itself. Of this there does not seem to be much probability, as the weather thus far has been most favorable to the crop, and the grain in most fields is now the crop, and the grain in most fields is now nearly or quite full.

the crop, and the grain in most fields is now nearly or quite full.

"The Spring grains in general promise well, if we except Indian Corn, which is in a backward state. Of this grain, however, the quantities cultivated are not large Potatoes promise well, although those planted in low lands, suffered from the heavy rains which came shortly after the crop was put into the ground, by which the seed rotted; replanting in some places was in consequence rendered necessary. These will be late in coming to maturity. Hay promises to be abundant."

From the Niagara Chronicle.

The Hay harvest has commenced in this neighbourhood under very favorable asspices, the weather being as fine as could be desired, and the grass abundant. Notwithstanding the backwardness and extreme coldness of the spring, information from all parts of the District satisfies us that with a continuance of favorable weather all descriptions of grain will be a full average. Some sorts of fruit will be scarce, especially peaches, which the spring frosts seem to have almost totally destroyed.
