THE GOVERNOR GENERAL.-We perceive by the Montreal papers, that intelligence was received by the last English Mail, that our, Most graeious Sovereign has signified her determination of raising Sir Charles Metcalfe to the PEFRAGE. On this subject the Montreal Courier has the following apposite remarks, which we have much satisfaction in in-

" At this mark of the decided approbation with which Her Majesty views Sir Charles Metcalfe's successful admiration of the Provincial Government, we are sure every loyal man in the Colony must be highly gratified. We, the loyalists of Canada, are honored in our own persons by the honor conferred upon him, whose policy we have so triumphantly assisted in carrying out. Certain it is, that on more worthy brows the coronet of the Peerage could not be placed, and, in addition to the usual good wishes which we have for Sir Charles Metcelfe's health and happiness, on this the first day of another year, we beg to offer him our humble congratulations on the acquisition of his well earned honors, and our sincere hope that he may enjoy them for many long years to come.

"The bestowal of the Peerage on our noble Governor, is a "New Year's Gift" to the whole loyal population of Canada: we hail it as an auspicious omen for the future. We understand that the choice of his title is left to Sir Charles himself, and that the patent will be issued as soon as he shall have signified his wishes on the matter."

Common Schools.—We strongly recommend the following admirable remarks, copied from the American Farmer, more particularly to our readers residing in the rural districts. There are many evils existing in our present Educational system, which we trust to see speedily remedied, if not altogether removed. We know there is much cause to complain of the habits, want of education, and proper training of many of our school masters; but we see no prospect of a change for the better, until teachers are raised by the people, into a higher scale of society than they at present occupy, and they obtain a much higher reward for the arduous, and frequently onerous duties, they have to perform, than is at present, (in too many instances) grudgingly doled out to them-frequently amounting to not more than a miserable existence:-

"Common school instruction is of incalealable worth and general interest to all the com-munity. Unlike many other institutions, it seeks not the benefit of the few, but of all: and whatever is done to promote the advance-ment of this cause is designed for the good of all.—There should be, then, a more general interest felt throughout the community and throughout the Sate in behalf of common school instructions. When we consider the importance of our primary Schools—reflect upon their beneficial influence on the public interest, that they are not only useful but indespensable to the honour and prosperity of our country, and then consider the moral inflaence exerted by the general diffusion of useful knowledge, it seems as though too much could not be done to improve our common schools and awaken the community to a sense of their vital importance. It is a well known fact, that to proportion to the advancement of useful knowledge, crime becomes less common; our schools therefore, are, or should be, bulwarks of toroils. of morality against ignorance, mental dissipation and crime. In view of the great influence which is constantly exerted on the minds and character of the rising generation -the chil-dren to whom we look as soon to take our places, is it not surprising that parents can manifest so much apathy as prevails in society. as to the character of the teachers whom they employ? Cannot something be done to make parents feel more their accountability in this respect? It is not enough that teachers be provided competent to instruct in the literory departments, elthough this is of great importance. The teacher's influence is ordinarily next to the parent's; we delegate to him our authority nearly half of the time; should we not feel an urgent solicitude that the character of the individual thus delegated should be such as we can approve? Yet how many are permitted to assume the charge of our schools who are in want of better and more profitable business for the time heing, who know no more of ness for the time being, who know no more of the duties incumbent on their station than the children may not instruct; and notwithstanding the station is one of great importance, our teachers are often hired from mercenery motives. There is sometding "worth living for besides the simple accumulation of property," a single day or hour may dissipate all the possessions to which we cling with childish or miserly fondness, while nothing but the deprivation of reason can deprive our children of the rich treasures of mental acquisitions. Inthe rich treasures of mental acquisitions. Un-til parents feel a more general interests in this subject, it is to be feared all other means will be found insufficient. The teacher needs the co operation of the parent; this, many seem to consider 100 great a burden, but the trouble would be slight indeed compared with the beneficial consequences. They seem to forget that their children are receiving impressions weal or for no that the track of least their hills time. weal or for wo, that are to last their life time; it is enough for them that their children are sent to school, if they do not learn, it is the teacher's fault, not theirs. If parents would take the same interest in the school to which they send their children, that they usually manifest in the school to which they send their children, that they usually manifest in the school to which they are the school to which they send their children, that they usually manifest in the school to which the school to which they are the school to which the school the school to which the school to which the school the school to which the school the school to which the school to which the school to which the school nifest in their other business, our faithful teachers would be encouraged in their labours far more than we are apt to suppose, and the num-ber of such teachers would be greatly increas-ed, and the progress of our children would be twice as rapid as it now is. If parents could be made to feel how much the usefulness of our schools would be increased by manifesting a greater interest in them, it would seem that all would cheerfully contribute their influence for the promotion of this cause."

Guano .- The price of this article has most wonderfully declined in the British market. It is now selling at £5 10, and £5 5 per ton. This has been occasioned by the large quantities received.

GOOD INVESTMENT .- The Saint John papers report that the Marine Assurance Company in that city, has declared a semi-annual Dividend of twenty per cent.

CAPTURE OF A PIRATE. -The New York Tribune turnishes the following extract of a letter dated Trieste, October 30, giving an account of the capture of a natorious Pirate :-- Capture of a Pirate.—Trieste 30th October, 1844.—We have news of the capture of an extraordinary large and well equipped piratical bark, named the "A-venger." The vessel was taken into Trieste and the disclosures the hands on board made to their captors were beyond conception. Their confessions are not fully known, but this much is true:-

The bark has been cruising, piratically for the last two years, and in that time there have been 200 murders committed by the crew, and 10 ships, 3 barks, 1 brig, and 11 schooners taken and plundered by The amount of treasure found on board the vessel was immense. She is an English built vessel, with tall raking masts and of about 700 tons burthen, very sharp and deep.

We trust our friends in this county residing on the northern shore to Tracadie; and in Gloucester from Shippigan to Bathurst, will not forget to petition the Legislature, pointing out the evils they labour under from the want of a Courier.

To Severe indisposition prevented us from attending the Agricultural Cattle Show, held at Newcastle on Friday show, held at Newcastle on Friday last; and we have since that period been confined to the house. This will account for our silence on this interesting subject. If able, we shall endeavour to collect some information respecting the same for our next number.
