

He deprecated the exposition which Mr. Jordan made of the intentions of the Legislature, it was morally dishonest. If parties were starving, they ought and had a right to be supported by their parishes, and the parties ought to claim relief from the commissioners of the Poor. Gentlemen had said that there were abundance of seed in the county, that parishes had husbanded it, and were now asking exorbitant prices. The conduct of these men, he said, was highly reprehensible, and should meet with the just condemnation of their fellow men. He did not see why the industrious portion of the population should be assessed to assist the idle, depraved and dissolute: the people of the county had engendered too extravagant habits, they must learn to be more economical and industrious. The parish of Nelson had applied to them for the grant—that parish was already heavy in arrears for previous assessments, and how were they to meet this additional burden. He thought that every industrious man could procure the seed he required, and he did not feel disposed to support persons of an opposite character; he then moved the following amendment:

That no part of the grant be drawn from the Provincial Treasury.

This was seconded by Alexander Fraser, jun.

Mr Nesmith in a few remarks supported the amendment.

Mr Tozer again strenuously urged his resolution—he contended that the inhabitants of his parish were neither lazy or dissolute—that Providence had thought fit to visit them last season with a deficient crop—and to this, and this only, was to be attributed the present distress. He expected to hear the opponents of the measure use some arguments, but nothing had been elicited by the persons who spoke, and the greater part remained silent. Seed was required in his parish to double the portion of the grant he sought. It was absurd to hear gentlemen talk of the necessity there existed of studying economy in county and province matters, while to subserve their own purposes, or advance the interest of certain individuals of their party, needless expenses were incurred, and offices created with large salaries, when they knew that no such offices or measures were required. He attributed the present opposition to the measure, to the undue influence of Mr Hutchison; but he admitted the house of which he was a partner, had used every exertion to have seed brought into the county, and they had been very liberal and generous in its distribution to the needy settlers.

The amendment was then put, when there appeared for it, Messrs Justices Hutchison, Nesmith, A. Fraser, jun, McNaughton, McDonald and Allison.

Against it, Messrs. Justices Williston, Tozer, Donalds, Letson and Perley.

Mr Goodfellow declined voting on the occasion, and Alexander Davidson, although in the Court House, took no part in the proceedings.

Mr Williston then informed the Bench that he and his colleague, Mr Letson had been sued for agreements they had entered into as a committee of Sessions, conducting the quarantine station at Middle Island last season, and wished to be informed by them what course they should adopt, that they might govern themselves accordingly.

After some desultory conversation, Mr Goodfellow moved—that this Session adjourn—which was carried.

As the public appeared to be deeply interested in the issue of this measure, we have endeavoured to give a brief outline of what was said and done on the occasion, and cannot refrain from again expressing our disappointment at the course the Bench has pursued. The number of Magistrates present were very small—and we were astonished to find that parties who were favourable to the acceptance of the grant, at the former session, were not at their posts. How is this?

LAUNCH.—From the building yard of Mr Joseph Russel, at Beaubier's Island, on Tuesday morning last, a fine ship called the Standard, of about 750 tons registered.

following intelligence regarding the movements of the Sons of Temperance. St. John Morning News, May 24.

Temperance Procession—Festivals at the Institute—&c. &c.—Quite an imposing and interesting procession took place in our City on Wednesday afternoon, by the Sons of Temperance. At 4 o'clock the respective divisions from Portland, Carleton, St. John, and away from the interior, assembled at the Mechanics' Institute, and after having formed in line, they commenced their march, preceded by the Amateur Band. The following is the order in which the different bodies troved.

Guernsey,	No. 5,	with a handsome
Portland,	7,	[Banner.
Victoria,	9,
Carleton,	11,
Rechab,	12,
Sheffield,	13,
Albion,	14,
N. Brunswick,	17,
St. John,	20,
Coldstream,	32,

The procession marched through Germain street, down King street, along Prince William street, and turned round Reed's Point; then up Germain street again as far as Queen street—up Queen street to the Square, where the various divisions opened out around the mound in the centre of the square. On the mound stood the leading officers of the various divisions together with the Most Worthy Patriarch, Hon. Mr. White. W. R. M. Burtis, Esq. read and presented an Address to Mr. White, which was replied to from a written document, (which we have not room to publish this morning.)—afterwards Mr. W. addressed the vast multitude assembled on the square, numbering some five or six thousand persons, in a very happy and effective manner occupying about half an hour. The procession then left the Square and proceeded to the Mechanics' Institute again, where they dispersed. In the evening at 8 o'clock a Tea Soiree was held in the Hall of the Institute.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE.—The following table shows the rise, progress, and present condition of this popular Order, yet an infant in days, but a giant in strength. The left hand figures show the order of precedence in the organizations of the Grand Divisions of the several States; and those on the right hand give the number of divisions in each State at the present date:

New York has 363, New Hampshire 18, New Jersey 86, Mississippi 20, North Carolina 15, Wisconsin 24, Maryland 60, Rhode Island 9, Dis. of Columbia 13, Louisiana 22, Pennsylvania 465, Michigan 64, Connecticut 54, Iowa 16, Virginia 120, Florida 3, Massachusetts 102, Vermont 2, Ohio 456, Arkansas 2, Maine 164, Canada East 1, Delaware 48, Prov. of N.
