Free Toleration in Siam.—The King has allowed not only full toleration to all religions, but has permitted free access by the missionaries to every part of the Empire, whose labors are unrestricted. On this subject the official proclamation says: "The English and Americans who reside in the kingdom of Siam are allowed to enjoy greater privileges than formerly. They are allowed to travel to and fro in the kingdom, wherever they please. They are permitted to follow the dictates of their own consciences in religious observances; to erect chapels and cemeteries, according to their wishes; and in all respects they are allowed unreserved freedom, so long as they do not intrude upon the customs and laws of the country."

A Reporting Machine.—Many and strange are the uses to which machinery is being adopted nowadays, we question it it ever entered into the head of any man to adapt it to such a description of work as reporting for the press. Yet this has actually been accomplished by our ingenious townsman, Dr Dewar, who has invented a machine, at one end of which the reporter's shorthand notes are placed, and at the other end of which—a few yards off—they are produced at the ordinary rate of speaking, in clear bold longhand, ready for being put into the hands of the printer. An experiment made on Thursday night (including the speech of Mr Arthur, slightly condensed in our report of the Free Presbytery's meeting) was quite successful. To give an idea of the advantages that may be secured by this machine, we may mention that four columns of the type used for reports by the Times may be produced comfortably in a couple of hours, by one reporter, whereas, under the present laborious and cumbersome plan, nearly eight hours would be consumed in the task by an ordinary reporter.—Aberdeen Herald.

Are Defensive Preparations necessary?—The Paris correspondent of the London Daily News writes:

"The Duke of Bassano, the new French envoy to the court of Belgium, arrived at Brussels on Thursday last. I am able to assure you on good authority, that one of the demands which M. de Bassano is charged to make from the Belgian Government is the removal of the monumental lion from the field of Waterloo, and the demolition of the pyramidal mound of triumph which it crowns. You are aware that soon after the Revolution of July, the destruction of the same trophy was talked of as a point insisted on by the Government of Louis Philippe; and when the French expedition returned from the siege of Antwerp, in passing over the plain of Waterloo, it was expected that they would have taken the law into their own hands, and hurled the offensive symbol of victorious force from his proud eminence. But they were dissuaded from this violent project by an officer, who suggested that it would be much easier to stamp the trophy with ridicule than to overturn it. Therefore, he proposed that they should knock out the lion's teeth and bare his claws. This practical sarcasm was unanimously approved, and the expressive mutilation forthwith carried into effect. The application now made by Louis Napoleon for the demolition of the trophy makes one recal his laconic declaration before the Court of Peers, when tried for the seditious attempt at Boulogne. He then said—I represent as principle the sovereignty of the people, as system the empire, and as action the retrieval of Waterloo. The two first points have been carried; and it is certain that no means will be neglected to achieve the last. It is a fixed idea with the President; and you may rest assured that he will prosecute it with the dogged tenacity which marks his character. Meanwhile it is true that the Prince ridicules the preparations for national defence against invasion which are being made in England."

The London Times meets the insolence of Lords and hon. gentlemen disapproving the language of the Metropolitan Press—in its denunciation of Louis Napoleon, thus:

"We are not disposed to surrender one half of this privilege. We owe it to the trampled intelligence and bleeding liberty of France to lit up in this sanctuary of freedom a voice which yet dares to denounce the crimes of her oppressor. Couched in a foreign language, and forbidden translation into their own, our solemn appeal to the conscience of mankind may fail to penetrate in its original form to the ears we would wish it to reach, but the thought will still live though the vehicle of its expression may be jealously excluded, and the mind of one nation thoroughly informed with the principles of liberty and justice in spite of an army of spies and a garrison of police will act through a thousand channels of social and confidential intercourse upon the mind of the other."

We owe it to the cause of liberty, humanity, and social order, to do our best to prevent the public opinion of this country from being dazzled by the spectacle of successful vice, or intimidated by the vicinity of lawless power. We owe it to the purity of our national character to prove that wickedness is never more odious to us than in prosperity; and we owe it to the rest of the world to keep this great lesson constantly before the eyes of the English people, destined to act so mighty a part in its construction for good or for evil. We have endeavored to fulfil this mission, and we cannot believe that the national spirit is sunk so low as to wish us to desist from it from a craven fear of the mighty criminal whom we have endeavored to drag before the unerring tribunal of public justice."
