

will be accomplished by independent legislation we cannot undertake to say, but we do unhesitatingly assert our advised conviction that it is not in the power of Courts, Judges, Lawyers, Government, or Legislature to keep the things as they are; and we venture to predict that within two years, unless the reformation we allude to be wrought out by constitutional means, it will be practically enforced by the people themselves. Men of integrity, veracity, and influence, who are summoned to give evidence as witnesses, will not submit to be wearied, brow beaten, and insulted by counsel, and if the law and the court fail to provide them both remuneration and protection, such men will be found to vindicate their own rights by walking out of court, and public opinion will support them in it.

Jurors will not consent to be confined in narrow unventilated jury rooms, obtaining food only by stealth, and utterly deprived of necessary repose during the indefinite discretion of a presiding Judge. They will try to agree upon a verdict, and when they find they cannot, they will tell the court so, after a reasonable time, if they are not discharged, they will discharge themselves, and here again they will be sustained by public opinion.

The expectation of unanimity in a jury of twelve is false in philosophy, and opposed to every law and to all our experience of human nature, and in practice works great inconvenience and injury to jurors and injustice to suitors. The law and its administration is a nuisance, it must be and will be abated.

As we can pretend to no confidence or advice of any section or member of the Government, we feel something at a loss what to say, or whether to say anything, respecting the very current gossip of "heresies and schisms" in the Executive camp, and of an impending general election as one of the first fruits. William Shakspear and William End have concurred in denouncing common fame as a common liar, and on the two-fold authority we might find excuse if we were to leave these rumors unnoticed, but when every body talks why not we? Everybody who is so familiar with the antecedents of the members of the Council must be aware that there never was, and never can be, any very cordial good will between some of them, and it is reasonable to conjecture that each of them is keeping a bright look out for the main chance as regards himself. It has long been apparent to every close observer that the cabinet itself did not believe in its perpetuity, and we are disposed to suspect that the last session of the Legislature and its late sittings have deepened its conviction.

Some of the new combinations spoken of and intimated, are simply preposterous—impossible to work out, and if wrought out, incapable of lasting two days. Sir Edmund Head would never accept them unless on absolute compulsion, and neither the present Assembly nor any which will be elected instead of it, will either desire or sustain such a Government. — Fredericton Head Quarters.

The Hon. Charles Wilson, Mayor of Montreal, communicates to all concerned through the columns of the Pilot, the fact that he has not fled the city. We are not sure, nevertheless, that he does consult his own safety in prolonging his sojourn. The testimony at the Coroner's Inquest, fixing on him, and on him alone, the responsibility of having ordered the Cameronians to 'fire,' apparently admits of no gainsaying. The Quebec Chronicle, under the heading 'Montreal Massacre,' says:

The Mayor had two days warning. He was apprised of the likelihood of a disturbance, and advised to swear in constables, but assured by Mr Sadler, by Mr Clark of the True Witness, and by Mr Connelly, that there would be no disturbance, he waited until the eleventh hour before he made the slightest effort to preserve that peace which he had been assured would be maintained, and then applied to the military authorities for assistance, leading the troops when he obtained them, through by-ways, to the scene of disturbance, and, lastly, reading the riot act in violent haste, and in a hurried manner, and crumbling up the papers, he turned towards the men, looking towards the right of the company, and shouted 'Fire in the Queen's name—Fire!' This too is gathered not from the evidence of any single individual, but from that of Mr Baillie, Mr Routh, Lieut. Quarley, Capt. Cameron, Mr Wylie, Mr Morris, Lieut. and Adj. Wallace, and Mr Chisholm. The Mayor denies that he acted thus, but his evidence is so contradictory and incoherent, that not the slightest doubt can rest in any one's mind respecting the cause of the firing.

The Home Journal adds: The Coroner's Inquest has removed a great weight from the public mind with respect to the officers of the Cameronians. It was feared that they had acted with haste, but it is now evident that the whole conduct of those acting under the order of Mayor or Wilson was characterised by humanity, coolness, and discretion. The troops ought never to be called upon to quell small disturbances. The well disposed will always be found ready and willing, in Canada, as elsewhere to assist in keeping the peace. All that is wanted in any city for the maintenance of order is a discreet Mayor and a determined Chief of Police. With them there would be neither election nor other disturbances.

While being towed by the Imperieuse, screw frigate, the ringbolt, to which the rope was fastened, gave way, and the cable flew round with tremendous velocity and force, killing six men, who were sitting down to their dinner at the time, and Lieut. Chapman, and wounding six others.

The magnificent new screw line of battleship Princess Royal, mounting 91 guns, was launched at Portsmouth on Thursday, in the presence of 30,000 people. There were numerous steamboats from Lymington, Southampton, and Isle of Wight, besides the railway contributions. HEAR DR. POMROY.

Positive Proof—Sceptics Read.

HAMPDEN, Feb. 24, 1846.

Messrs. J. Curtis, Jr. & Co.—Gentlemen, I have a word to say to you, in favor of HUNTER'S COUGH SYRUP. I have the last year used in my practice two dozen bottles of it which I had of you, and every bottle has done good. For eight years past I have been in the practice of medicine, and I have never found anything so well calculated to operate so favorably in all diseases of the lungs as that is. I have known a hard, distressing cough, cured in forty eight hours, by using (in Broken doses) one bottle of it. One case here in particular, of a man who was thought to have a seated consumption, troubled with a hard, distressing cough. I let him have one bottle, and he had two more of your agent, Mr Whitmore. After using the three Bottles, he has become well, and now labours every day. He told me lately, that Hunter's Cough Syrup was the means and only means of his cure. I have given it to infants, to children, to adults, and have the pleasure to inform you that it has done good in every case.

You need not hesitate to recommend it for a cough, and also all diseases of the lungs. I shall do all in my power to recommend it in the cases above named, not wholly for your benefit, but for the benefit of suffering humanity,

Yours truly, BENJAMIN L. POMROY.
