AGRICULTURE.

THE "LONG PASTURE." Country residents may be divided into two classes - the neat, and the slovenly. Specimens of the former may be known on approaching their dwellings, by the air of finish and comfort which pervades the pre-mises—the whole indicating, that the man who has mastered one art, does not find it hard to master another, -or, in other words if he will not allow the intrusion of mullins and pig-weeds among his crops, neither will he premit the defacement of his door-yard by old rubbish in its countless forms. Of the latter class of residents, the indications are various. Sometimes they censist in a broken fence bordered with a unbroken hedge of briars, elders and thistles -at others, the yard, which might have been a neat lawn with shady trees, is mostly occupied with burdocks and nettles, bordering old decaying heaps of chips and pools of kitchen slop, and variously interspersed with old boards, barrel-hoops, and the drop pings of cattle, and cut up by the wheels of carts into mud-holes of unknown depth, until sounded in a dark evening, by the un-wary foot of a neighbor's wife or daugh-

There is again an intermediate class— belonging partly to both the preceding we are by no means sure that they are not the largest class of all, in many districts of the country. Over these, neatness and disorber seem to hold each a sort of doubtful jurisdiction-sometimes the one, and again the other, obtaining the ascendancy. Per-haps a neat "picket" fence in front, has its counterpart in a decayed rail fence in the rear; or a flower hed by the parlor door, has it off-set in a puddle of soapsuds at the kitchen door; or the odor of June roses under the windows, may be curiously mingled with breezes laden with the perfumes of the hog-pen. Now such of this intermediate class, as have no desire for improvement, and who regard the economy of an adulterated neatness as a chimera, will naturally fall under the same head as the slovenly. For these the following remarks are not intended, and they will therefore, if they have read thus far please skip the rest. But those who really love neatness and order, though they may not have attained it fully, will be likely to appreciate our intentions, in endeavoring to assist in the removal of the very common evil, namely, that of converting our pupile highways into promisenous pasturage for cattle, colts, sheep, kitchen door; or the odor of June roses uncuous pasturage for cattle, colts, sheep, hogs, and web-footed poultry. The evils of this practice are intermina-

ble. A friend informs us that he finds it next impossible to preserve the contents of his garden from his neighbor's swine, which have become skilled in all branches of the art of squeezing through small spaces, crowding rails and boards asunder, and burrowing under fences. Another lost, not only some choice young pear trees, but several beautiful and costly imported evergreens, devoured by the street cattle passing through the gate accidentally blown open by the wind in his absence. Why should any one own a cow, when he has nothing wherewithal to give her? Yet we have known those who had several, depending entirely on their skill to pick their own living entirely on their skill to pick their own fiving in the streets,—which they did by variously snapping boards, and entering meadows vaulting into corn-fields or watching with surprising keenness till some one thoughtlessly opened a gate for a few seconds, when they would rush in. Heavy and expensive fences were kept up by an acquaintance but he was compelled, for the sake of maintaining a decent appearance in the road by his house, to " remove the deposits" daily lest by street cattle, who found his shade trees the most convenient places in the world for repose; and not unfrequently swine, after throwing up the turf into every imaginable irregularity, also sought repose in the same comfortable shadows. These evils has become so common in most places, that they are submitted moved annually for wintering the cows of to persevere in their use, until she received a poor men, and save us from all the evils perfect curs. We have ourselves been greatly poor men, and save us from all the evils perfect cure.

We may also add, for the same class of calculators, that the amount of time and attention consumed in opening, shutting and watching gates-the amount lost by the plunderings of half starved street cartlethe enormous expence of heavy street fences -not to keep in the farmer's own stock but to keep out his neighbor's -constitute altogether a most formidable tax, which if imposed by government, would be regarded as insufferable.

As to the macticability of the proposed improvement—prihe people of Massachusetts a,d some other portion of New England haye furnished the proof. We have travelled days together in that highly hallered state with the proposed in the propo chillvated state, without ever seeing seeing any kind of animal at large. In Brookline, which has no equal in America for the continued succession for miles, of its cultivated landscape beauty, one may see gates open from the streets into the most finished and costly grounds, without the least fear of injuring from without, and indeed some of the newer residences have no gates at

Dear SIT—I am enabled to furnish you with a most extraordinary cure effected by your invaluable Ointment and Pills, which so astonished every person acquainted with the sufferer. About ten years ago, Mr W. Cummins, of Saltney Street, in this town was thrown from his horse, whereby he received every serious injuries; he had the best medical advice at the time, and was afterwards an inmate of different infirmaties, yet he grew worse, and at length a malignary running worse, and at length a malignant running ulcer settled in his hip, which so completely crippled him, that he could not move without crutches for nearly 10 years; recently he began to use your Ointment and Pills, which have now healed the wound, strengthened his limb and enabled, him to dispress ened his limb, and enabled him to dispense with his crutches, so that he can walk with the greatest ease, and with renewed health and vigour.

that they are submitted to as a sort of necessity,—as an essential share of the evils of this life, without an inquiry into the possibility or expendiency of their removal.

Dear Sir—Among the numerous cures effected by the use of your valuable medicines in this neighbourhood, we may mention that of an old lady living in the Village of Preston of an old lady living in the Village of Preston. It has been asserted that "no man has a mortal right to keep more stock than he can feed well on his own land." But if the cottager must have his cow kept by the public, and every thing is to be turned to profit would it not be quite as profitable to convert the roadside into meadow, to moved annually for wintering the cows of of street manyauders, and frequently five-mile journeys by their owners in search of them. Istee It frees the head from dandruff, strengthens the roots, imparts health and vigour to the circulation, and prevents the hair changing colour or getting gray.

2d—15 causes the hair to curl beautifully when done up in it over night.

This Balm is made from the original receipt procured from the original Turkish Hakim (physician) of Constantinople, where it is uneversally used. The Turks have always been celebrated for their wonderful skill in compounding the richest perfumes and all other toilet articles. In Turkey the aromatic herbs, &c., of which this Balm is composed, are almost uneversally known and used for the hair. Hence a case of baldness ro thin head of hair is entirely unknown in that country. We wish but one trial to be made of it; that will do more to convince you of its vircues than all the advertisements that can be published, and that all may be able to test its virtues, it is put up in Large Bottles at the low price of 50 cents per pottle, CARLTON'S CONDITION POWDERS FOR HORSES AND CATTLE.

The change of weather and season, with the change of use and feed, have a very great effect upon the blood and sinuous fluids of horses. It is at these changes they require an assistant to nature to throw off any disorder of the fluids of the body that may have been imbibed, and which, if not attended to, will result in the Yellow Water, Heaves, Worms, Botts, &c. All of which will be prevented by giving one of these powders, and will at any time cure when any symptoms of disease appear, if used in time. They purify the blood, remove all inflamation and fever loosen the skin, cleanse the water, and invigorate the whole body, enabling them to do more work with the same feed. The action of these powders is direct upon all the secretive glands, and therefore they have the same effect upon the Horse, the Ox, the Ass, and all Herbivorus animals—all diseases arising from or producing a bad state of the blood, are speedily cured by them. CAUTION.—Remember and ask for CARLTON'S CONDITION Powders, and take no other.
