Directions for using. For every five gallons of water, about milk warm, add one pint of soft soap; then put in three table-spoonfulls of the preperation. Soak the white clothes thirty minutes; then rince or wring them out, rubbing them where the mostdirt appears. Then put them in clear cold water without soap, and boil thirty minutes, and rinse them in clear cold water. The same preparation will answer for colored flannels and calicoes Soak them thirty minutes, rub and wring them out. Then pass them through the water in which the white clothes were boiled, which will cleanse them sufficiently for CLASIFICATION OF MANURES. The following classification is taken from Stockhard's Field Lectures. The best manures are given first.

I. MANURES RICH IN NITROGEN.

1. Substance containing ammonia, (very forcing.) Amoionical salts of all sorts good guano, urates, root, putrid animal stances, such as blood, flesh, skins, &c.; poudrette, gaswater, putrid urine, drainingcompost, fermented stable manure, especially of sheep and horses.

2. Azotized substances that are easily decomposed, (somewhat quickly forcing.)

--Horn-shavings, glue, boiled-flesh, bones liquified by acid, steamed and finely pulverized, oil-cakes of all sorts, malt-grain and the refuse of beer-breweries, tresh urine, drainings, stable-manure begining to

3. Azotized substances that are decomposed with difficulty, (slowly forcing.) Bonedust coarsely powdered, woollen-rags, fresh stable manure.

4. Substances containing nitric-acid. (quickly forcing.) Nitrate of potash, [ordinary salipetre,] mitrate of soda or Chilisaltpetre, mitrate of lime or decayed stable. walls, rubbish of old clay walls, and old compost earth.

SUPERFICIAL FARMING.

A prominent cause of small profits and poor success in many of our farmers, is that parsimonious application of capital, in manures, implements, physical force, and convenient buildings. In their eagerness to save at the tap, they waste treely at the who candidly admitted his unprofitable sy-tem of farming; "but," said he," I am not yet rich enough to be economical." We observe by a late number of the Mark Lane Express, that the present medium estimate in England, of the capital required to carry on the business of a farm, is £8 (about 40 dollars) per acre, " and no prudent man ought to rent more than he has that amount, at least, of available capital to go on with ; for a smaller procession, with ample means to manage it, will yield better returns than a large quantity of land inadequately stocked." Now, some of our best farms can be bought for about the same sum that the English farms are rented, and it the above remark is applied to purchasing, instead of renting, it will constitute excellent advice to Americans. This is a subject for a large volume; and we have only space now to say, that if the landowner has not suitable buildings, the value of the grain and fodder wasted in consequence, would soon pay for them; and the food and flesh wasted by exposed and shivering animals would soon pay for them a second time. The want of manure will prevent the value of crops from rising higher than the cost of cultivating rising higher than the cost of cultivating them; and the want of heavy crops to feed animals, will preclude keeping enough to make plenty of manure. In other words a poor and badily cultivated tarm will react and only support a poor and badily-fed race of animals and men,—just in the same of animals and men,—just in the same of animals and men, -just in the same way that a fertile and thoroughly tilled piece of land will sustain animals enough to manure it and keep up its ferrility, and men enough to give it through tillage

PROTECTION FROM WINTER WINDS.

Besides the very important purposes of shade and ornament, trees perform another exceedingly useful office,—that of sheltering from wintry winds. If evergreens are largely introduced in the plantations around dwellings, they serve wonderfully to mitigate the evils of our long and rigorous winters. A person with whom we are well acquainted thinks he saves from to twenty dollars a year in the diminished of fire-wood since the belts of pines, cedars, hemlocks, balsams, Norways and white spruces, have grown up on the bleak sides of his house.

Now trees may be planted awkwardly, and they may be planted tastefully. To give a few hints under the latter head, we have the above plan ; more especially as writers on ornamental planting appear to have lost sight of this important utility in rees. The prevailings winds are supposed to be from the south, northwest, and northeast. Hence the planting of evergreen trees predominate at these three points, while in other directions the view is left more open. At the same time, artifial stiffness is avoided. The number of trees may be tripled if necessary.

Oriental Turkish Wine.

The great remedy for General Debility, Weakness, Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Billious Diseases, a certain preventive of Fevers, &n., &n. This WINE is the most pleasant and effectual Remedy for any of the adove complaints, and for many others not mentioned, that has ever discovered. It is so agreeable to the taste that any one taking it soon prefers it to any Wine; while its action on the stomach and bowels is prompt and efficient, cleansing them thoroughly, and tous, by keeping the organ in which the basis of the blood is formed, in a healthy and pure state, necessarily keeps the blood pure and healthful. It is a stimulant without reaction, unlike the alcoholic preparations, which leave the partaker in a state of prostratiou. THIS WINE sends a gentle and agreeable feeling through every nerve, and its tonic properties are such that it will restore the weak and debilitated to their natural STRENGTH and VIGOR. It is composed of the Pure Wine of many of the most tonic and rawe Plants in the Materia Riedica, the recipe for which was obtained from a celebrated Turkish "Hakim,"—Physician,—and one bottle is equal to ten of any Sarsaparilla or Blood Purifier ever before known. Then give this Oriental Wine a trial: it will speak for itself better than any recommendation or certificate; and he who tries it once will never be without it, nothing can equal it as a Diet Drink in hot climates, or on Shipboard, and no traveller should be without it. Caution—Find the name of Comstock & Brother, and the Stamp of the Turkish Flug. on the label and co-k of each bottle, WITHOU f this it cannot be genuine.
