gress. Difficulties met with are twofold, viz. rocky nature of soil and heavy calibre of enemy's ship artillery.

On the night of the 20th Russians made an attempt to spike French guns, but failed Russians who entered the batteries, were killed. Health of the army is on the whole satisfactory.

On the 25th, 20,000 Russians attacked the French rear, which was defended by the Turks, from the redoubt, and took possession of it. English commenced attack. General Canrobert bastened the second division, and a squadron of chesseurs to their relief, until French and English cavalry repulsed the encmy by a brilliant charge, in which the combut was maintained five minutes with the sword. The positions were retaken. English lost 500; French loss not quite so great. Oct. 26 - French had advanced their trenches within 300 yards, and chesseurs Devincenes, killed all the Russian artillery men who shewed at the embrosures. English report says that allied commanders refused Menschikoff, three hours he asked to bury the dead.

Russian loss since the commencement of the siege is estimated at 12,000.

English assert that Menschikoff hoisted an hespital flag over his principal magazine in Schastopol-English fired upon it and blew it up.
