MARRIAGES.

On the 22nd inst., by the Rev. John McCurdy, Mr JOHN BROWN, merchant, of this town, to ELLEN, daughter of Mr William McKenzie, late of the firm of Halley & McKenzie.

At Fredericton, on Wednesday the 23rd of September, by the Rev. J. M. Brooke, D. D. the Revd. WILLIAM HENDERSON, A. M. of St. James's Church, Newcastle, to ALEXANDRIA, third daughter of the late Rev. Joseph Purdie, of Clydevale, Lanarkshire, Scotland.

DEATHS.

At Dalhousie, on the 22nd inst., after a lingering illness, borne with patient resignation, JANE BARCLAY, wife of Daniel Sadler, Esq., in the 49th year of her age. Mrs Sadler was a resident of this place from her childhood until about 8 years ago, when she removed with her family to Dalhousie. She was for many years an exemplary member of the Presbyterian Church of Nova Scotia, in Chatham, and was ardently attached to her pastor, her christian brethren and sisters, and other friends of her early years. Though removed far from them, and finding many new and attached friends in her adopted home, yet her affection always lingered around those whom she left behind. The ministrations of the sanctuary and other religious privileges she could not forget, and she continued to the last, interested in everything connected with the well-being of the church where she had so often in earlier days held sweet communion. Many friends here, as well as in the place where she closed her earthly existence, will mourn her departure. She leaves a sorrowing husband, and six children to cherish her memory.—Com.

At Demerara, on the 9th August, Mr JOHN CHALMERS, in the 61st year of his age. Mr C. was a native of Paisley, Renfrewshire, Scotland, and arrived in this Country in 1819, and has for many years been engaged in mercantile pursuits. At Rustico, P. E. Island, on the 4th inst., Mr WILLIAM H. RICHARDSON, late Merchant of Chatham, aged 53 years.

CITY OF DELHI.

A late British paper furnishes the following interesting description of this city. Like all the rest of England, we dream that Delhi may have fallen. But our knowledge of the place inspires little hope that such a consumation is nigh. All that strong hands and strong hearts can do will be done to crush the rebellious city; but since the days when a blast of trumpets threw down the walls of Jericho, no military miracle has occurred more astounding than would be a successful assault on Delhi with the troops now under its walls.

Let the reader imagine himself advancing from Agra northward to the ancient capital of India. His road is through a wide plain, every where covered with ruins. Among prostrate walls and masses of masonry, overgrown with weeds and jungle, here and there rises a broken obelisk, gilt dome, or slender minaret.—These are the ruins of ancient Delhi. To the right flows the Jumna, or Yaxuna, Daughter of the Sun, and according to the legend, gentle sister of the dread Yama, the Hindu Minos.—On a rocky ridge, at the very edge of a branch from this river, which leaves the main stream five miles to the north of the city, and rejoins it two miles to south of the wall's most southern angle, is modern Delhi, built by Shah Jehan, in 1663, it may be, to be razed by the English two centuries later. A wall, scalloped at the top, and about 25 feet high, runs from the Wellesley Bastion, the point to the entrance, south east, where the city touches the river, 5 miles in an irregular semi-circle to Selim Garh, an old fortress which rests upon the stream at the northern extremity. Along the river, or eastern side of the city, this wall is replaced, for one third of the extent to the north, by the walls of the King's palace, which is about half a mile long from north to south. The interval to the Wellesley Bastion has slighter defences, but is protected in some measure by the river, or rather its branch, between which and the main stream is an island, more or less sandy, and covered with melon gardens. The ditch beneath the city wall is 50 feet broad and about 15 feet deep, and the glacis so covers the wall, that it cannot be seen from a distance. The city has eleven gates. To the south east is the Delhi gate, and advancing to the west and north the Turkaman, the Ajaud gate—outside of which is the vast mausoleum of Ghazi Khan, where the rebels were encamped to the number of 3,000—then the Furush Khanah, the Lahore gate, adjoining the Burn Bastion, so called from Colonel Burn, the gallant defender of the city against Holker, in 1804. Next comes the Kabul Gate, close to the canal—the Morea Gate, the Kashmir gate—and close to Selim Ghar, the Calcutta Gate. Tracing the river are the Lal and Raj Ghat Gates.

The western side of the city is a sea of houses, many of them strongly built. To pass such streets defended by good marksmen would be dangerous to an attacking force. The northern quarter of the city, from Kashmir Gate to the King's palace, might be defended when the rest was won. A wall, or even a barrier of ruined houses and timber would render this a sort of citadel, the city has probably a hundred thousand armed defenders.

The main street, Candur Chauk is very wide and along the centre of it runs an aqueduct. Here is the mosque in which Nadir sat during the terrible massacre of the inhabitants by his army.

Delhi has many noble buildings worth preserving. The palace itself ranks next to Windsor as a kingly residence. Its gateway is far handsomer than that of the Great Bazaar at Kabul. The throne room is matchless. The roof rests on massive columns of white marble. In the centre is the white marble dais on which once stood the famous peacock throne. The King's private chapel is of the whitest marble, and a perfect gem of art. A quarter of a mile to the west of the palace stands the cathedral mosque, vast, massive, grand.

The atrocities of the modern rebels of Delhi call for signal retribution; but we are not of the number who wish to see vengeance wreaked indiscriminately, or who would have beautiful edifices destroyed for the guilt of the inhabitants. Let the people of Delhi suffer; let the armed mutineers be exterminated; but let the palaces of Delhi remain a monument of our triumph and of our self-control.

CHEAP LIGHT.

Every Public Building, Dwelling House, Mill, Factory, Shop, Store and Office in this Province, May be brilliantly lighted at little cost! For brilliancy and economy of its light, that of PARAFFINE LAMP OIL Manufactured by the New Brunswick Oil Works Company is superior to that of coal gas, or any other oil or fluid. At the same cost Paraffin Lamp Oil will give 7 times more light than Fluid; 5 " " " " " Spermac Oil; 4 " " " " " Lard Oil; 3 " " " " " Whale Oil. And twice as much light as Rape Seed Oil. PARAFFINE LAMP OIL

Gives a brilliant light, is free from all danger of explosion, it does not ignite where a lighted match is placed directly in the oil; it does not waste on exposure to the air; and may be consumed in a lamp to the last drop within reach of the wick without depreciation in the quality of the light. Leading chemists of London and New York, agree that Paraffine Oil is destined to supersede all other Oils or Burning Fluids as a source of artificial illumination, and is the most valuable material for that purpose, now known. LAMPS for this Oil, 3s. 6d., to 30s. each. PARAFFINE LAMP OIL, 5s. per gallon. Liberal discount to Wholesale Dealers. For Oil and Lamps, apply to J. H. & J. HARDING Newcastle, Miramichi.
