The Wanagan

Published just this once for the edification of our fellow-students by the Ladies' Society of U. N. B. Advertising rates on application. On all business matters address
DELTA RHO.

WITH this number we present for your consideration the Wanagan. We have no apology to offer for its coming; we make no promise as to its future. We present it with the hope that you may find in its pages something to cheer you on the rocky road to learning. If it says anything you don't like, never mind, somebody else will see the point. If it calls you names, rejoice that you were deemed worthy of notice. If it doesn't mention you, thank your lucky stars, and beware.

In view of the fact that the De Om. Pages do not always please everybody—some saying that there is too much of it; others that there is not enough of it; some finding fault if they receive attention in its items and some feeling that they are "not popular" if they do not—in view of these objections it has been suggested that its jokes (?) or roasts appear in some such form as the Wanagan, with circulation only among undergraduates, and that the De Om. page in the MONTHLY contain only local notices and items of general interest as was the early custom. We leave the matter for your consideration. Think it over.

Confessions of the De Om. Editor

"Oh I was the De Om. Editor,
A mate for Judas or Cain.
A perverter of truth and a bold, bad youth,
But I'll never do it again."

NO I'll never do it again for I won't get the chance. Remembering as I do the narrow escapes I have had in the past; mindful of the savage gleam in Billy Woods' eye as he pursued me down Brunswick Street with a razor the day after the last number appeared; remembering the many times I have been waylaid by irate co-eds on the second floor, I know that the jig is up. Two hours after this issue has appeared
