

In Fond Remembrance

Duke (at Engineer's dinner)—"I never saw so many flies at this time of the year, I cannot even kill half of them."

* * *

Normalite (referring to Belyea, '10)—"Who is that verbatim verbosity of a Junior that caught us to find those long words in the short physics."

* * *

McLean, '11 (to Sophomore in English lecture)—"Do you know Mayme Gibson? Isn't she an adorable creature?"

* *

McLeod (the morning after)—"I'll never go to another Engineer's dinner."

* * *

The many friends of John O'Neill rejoice to see him around and a-Maying again, after the sad accident he sustained last month.

* * *

Patterson (coming out of Methodist Church)—"I am going to listen to no more hims to-night."

Young—"Kin I go too, Pat?"

* * *

It is said that Hoyt and Belding are about to adopt a schedule so that their engagements in Hayes' interest may not conflict as they did last Sunday morning.

* * *

Waitres (to Kinghorn, Dixon, Steeves and Macaulay)—"Don't be hoggish, boys, there are still three or four more courses to come."

Miss Hatheway—"How would you like to be my lemon?"

Beanie Neill—"Delighted!"

* * *

Firth (looking at his torn glove)—"I ought to get a wife."

By-stander—"Take him out to Kirk, Mac."

* * *

Miss Everett (to Freshman)—"Does Mr. Belding board with you? I want him."

Belding (hearing it later)—"Well, she can have me just as well as not."

* * *

Smith, '10, (at debate)—"I would like to go back to Elizabeth."

* * *

Whom do the Senior Engineers call their better half in the Physics lectures?

* * *

What makes Miss Crocker mad when you speak about Loggie?

* * *

Why does a certain Freshette like to study French with a Freshman in buttercup time?

* * *

Coed—"Well, there isn't much choice, but of the two I'd rather have Pippin."
