"Well, sir, the next night Gaines steered me against the goat. I had an idea that the initiatory rite was a hair-raiser but had no conception of its true horror. I was ushered into a dimly lighted hall, among goblins, ghosts and chimeras dire. I was tied on the back of a large he-goat that bucked like a Mexican mustang, and the whole gang of goblins chased my Pegasus over benches and boxes for half an hour. Then I was plunged into a hogshead of ice water. After I had a partially recovered I was stripped stood on a pedestal and painted like a zebra. Suddenly the lights went out. The mystic brotherhood chanted a lot of rot around me, the grand master mortar mixer leading the strophe and the grand master hod carrier doing the autisrobe act. Then I was informed that I would be required to stand in one position one hour without moving at a test of my endurance. I was told that I was circled about with spear points and that to move meant death in small quantities, delivered suddenly. Then the grand master ladder holder commanded silence and I proceeded to endure. It was the longest hour I ever saw. It seemed to stretch through all eternity and lap over the edge. I stood there from midnight until five o'clock. Then daylight began to creep through the windows, and I found that I was alone. The grand master mortar mixer and his fiendish gang of Piutes had made a sneak, leaving me standing there in the cold. Patience on a monument with only red, white and blue stripes for a covering. I bought a double-action revolver that carried a ball as big as a door-knob and started out to look for Tom Gaines, but learned that he had gone to Mexico for the winter. If he yearns to see his grandchildren playing about his knee he had best stay there."

A man should never get too poor to pay his assessments. Better reduce the amount, if necessary, but to leave his family penniless when a few cents each week would provide for them, is worse than criminal. —R. A. Guide.

Always carry an application blank with you and be sure to use it when ever you have an occasion. You will be surprised at the number of member you bring into your lodge in the course of a year.—Texas Guide.

They had a new girl. She was not the imported article, but was nativistic enough to satisfy a member of the A. P. A. She came from somewhere in Indiana and had never seen a telephone. She was given a hasty lesson in its use, and was told to answer it when members of the family were absent. The second afternoon everybody was out but the Indiana product. She was in her room.

An hour before dinner the female head of the family returned.

"That thing in the closet was ringing for ten minutes this afternoon, ma'am," said the new girl.

"Why did you not answer it as I told you to do, Mary?" said the mistress.

"I would have, ma'am," said Mary, "only I was half undressed and I was afraid it might be a man."
