

Bob W. (reading joke in Chanticleer on G. C.)—"I don't see what they put that in on me for.

Tom—"They didn't, its on Gordon."

Bob—"Oh well—it's just the same."

Dr. Foster to Risteen—"What have you there?"

Risteen—"Nothing, Sir."

Dr. Foster—"Well, put it in your pocket and keep it."

A WELL KNOWN CARD TRICK

Archie to Bunky—"Say Bunk, I'll show you a peachy card trick."

Bunk—"All right, go ahead."

Archie (taking the king, queen and knave of spades)—"Now this is the king of the devils, and this is the queen of the devils, and this is the baby of the devils. Now I'll place them in the pack, and you shuffle the cards. Now do you want me to tell you where to find them?"

Bunk—"Yes."

Archie—"Allright—Go to H - - l."

In the April number of the University Monthly, for 1916, we find the following joke:

HEARD AT MOCK PARLIAMENT

Gl - ys (after the third)—"Sorry, but I have the rest with Snook."

We feel sure that this will prove interesting to High School, and we ask the question:

"Who is Snook?"

Mrs.—"Now Bridget, you may wash the lettuce."

B - - t—"Which soap will I use?"

ODE OF LOVE

My love is like the red, red rose
In June, that's newly born,
And oh! the bristles on his chin
Are strangely like a thorn.
