
GUM AND PRONOUNCIATION

Lib Lint—"How do you pronounce dinosaur?"

Mr. Miller—"Di—no—saur."

After a little while—

Mr. Miller—"Chewing gum, Miss Lint?"

Libby—"No, sir, I was just trying to pronounce that word."

NO GOOD!

Watters, watching men moving piano—"Huh, that piano is no good. It's not painted on the back."

A TALK ABOUT LOONS

Mr. Ne-i-l—"And if you laugh the loons will laugh right after you."

Miss Gregory—"Yes, if you can imitate loons well enough."

KNOWLEDGE FROM EXPERIENCE

Mr. Miller—"Now, if you want to make an amusing toy for one of your small brothers, take a shingle—although shingles are not always amusing!"

REPORT TONIGHT

Miss Gregory—"Nason, repeat the poem "After School" from memory."

A2 in unison (translating a French phrase literally)—"We are gone!"

DRAW YOUR OWN CONCLUSIONS

Tate (finding a vanity case in his desk)—"Miss Thompson, is this yours?"

NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY

Miss Gregory—"Would you rather be notorious or noted, Myrtle?"

Myrtle—"Notorious, of course."

Mr. Miller (after B2 stopped laughing)—"I do hope Santa Claus will bring you all dolls."
