HAND-OUT.

We want that money you have saved! The remarkable clemency of the present winter has materially decreased the cost of living, and the people have saved money .-Daily paper.

We are after that money of yours with seasonable goods at half-price - and we think that we can take it from you, if you give us any kind of a chance.

We call the goods seasonable, because while being strictly winter things it is altogether likely that they will be very seasonable before the present month is out. The reason for this we find in Wednesday morning's papers :-

"The change in the weather this morning reminds us that is not 1st May yet, and denotes that it is altogether likely we will have six weeks of solid winter weather before the middle of March."

the ball at government house and the brilliant wedding which took place in the cathedral, Wednesday morning, the principal parties being Mr. Forrester, of the Bank of British North America, and Vesta, youngest daughter of Mr. Thos. Temple. M. P., of Fredericton. At a few minutes past 11 o'clock the bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father. She wore an elegant dress, the waist and train being of white silver brocade, with the front of rich white Bengaline silk, handsomely trimmed with lace and orange blossoms. Her veil was of tulle, fastened with the traditional spray, and she carried a large bouquet of loose white roses and maidenhair fern, tied with white ribbon, the loops of which fell gracefully from the midst of the roses. The maid of honor was Miss Belle Dever, of St. John, and the bridesmaids were the little Misses Hilyard, Eddie and May, nieces of the bride, Miss Gardiner of Newton Centre, Mass., and Miss Bessie Jack of Fredericton. They all wore dresses of white satin merveilleux with yoke, front and sleeves of white net, tulle veils fastened with aigrettes, and the three young ladies carried bouquets of loose pink roses tied with long pink ribbons; while those of the two little girls were of cream roses with blue ribbons. Each wore a gold pin with pearl horseshoe setting, these and the bouquets being the gift of the groom. The best man was Mr. Glazebrook of St. John, and the ushers were Messrs. Jack Wetmore and W. C. Gellibrand, of Fredericton. The ceremony was performed by his lordship the metropolitan, assisted by the coadjutor bishop and Rev. F. Alexander, sub-deacon. The bridal party left the church to the jubilant strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march and drove to the residence of Mr. Temple, where a breakfast was served. Mr. and Mrs. Forrester leave for their wedding tour at 9.30 o'clock Wednesday evening, by special train to Fredericton Junction, to meet the western train for Boston. Before their return, they expect to visit Montreal during the carnival, also Ottawa and New York.

Mrs. Forrester's travelling suit was a Directoire costume of amethyst cashmere, broadcloth ulster of the same shade, lined with satin, and hat to match. A large number of invitations were sent abroad, the guests present being: The Metropolitan and Mrs Medley, Sir Leonard and Lady Tilley, The Coadjutor Bishop, Judge and Mrs Wetmore, Judge and Mrs Fraser, Lt-Col and Mrs Maunsell, Rev F and Mrs Alexander, Miss Wetmore, Mr and Mrs George W Allen, Mrs J K Hazen, Mr and Mrs R Inglis, Mr and Mrs Blanchard Sewell, Mr and Mrs A F Randolph, Mr and Mrs F S Hilyard, Miss Ada Dever (St John), Mr G A Hagerty, Miss Stevenson (St Stephen), Miss Kate Beek, Dr and Mrs Coulthard, Mr Stockley, Mr F C D Bristowe, Mr Jack Wetmore, Mr W C Gellibrand.

states, different parts of Canada and from the groom's friends in England. A rather unique one was a handsome carriage whip, with carved handle and silver mounting, which the donor, Mr. Gellibrand, had made to order in England.

Among the many beautiful dresses were those of: Mrs. Temple, the bride's mother, a prune silk, ong train, and bonnet to match; Mrs. Hilyard, the bride's sister, cherry-colored silk with white vest, bonnet to match; Lady Tilley, a rich black velvet trimmed handomely with jet, bonnet to match; Mrs. Fraser, a handsome royal purple plush, long rain, bonnet same shade;

Miss Wetmore, a costume of peacock blue with white vest and white sash, a very handsome white felt hat trimmed with ostrich feathers;

Miss Ada Dever, white dress with blue trimmings, white hat;
Miss Stevenson, a very pretty costume of apple green cashmere trimmed with white, hat to match. The "at home" at Mrs. Miller's, last Thursday afternoon, was a very pleasant affair. There were a large number present and all seemed to enjoy themselves. Those who were invited were: The Metropolitan and The Bishop Coadjutor, The Rector and Mrs Mrs Medley, Rev F and Mrs Alexander Rev H and Mrs Montgomseems to be turning carnivalwards, just now, even as the proverbial-but, alas! not the literal-"sunflower turns to her god when he sets," and the hearts of the upper ten are hungering and thirsting for a trip to Montreal with a fervor which, I fear, very few of us display in thirsting after righteous ness. And, as far as I can learn, a great many are going to have their desires gratified, for I think Moncton will contribute largely to the throng of distinguished visitors who will add to the attractions and crowd the hotels of Montreal during the coming week-for, you know, Moneton makes a point of never being behindhand in any good work; in fact, I should not be at all surprised if we should quietly and unassumingly build an ice palace and issue invitations to a winter carnival ourselves, next year. But this is a digression. I have not yet been able to obtain a complete list of those departing for the carnival, but will do so Miss Black, of Amherst, is visiting Mr. and Mrs.

upper end of the town-the West end, be it understood. The members are all married, and I did hear that they numbered exactly thirteen; but still. I don't quite see how that could be, for it would necessitate there always being one over; but perhaps that one may be set apart as a species of referee in case of disputes. I don't see how I can find out, for the preliminary step to initiation into the mysteries of the club seems to be getting married, and newspaper correspondents are proverbially too poor to get spliced. The club's first meeting for the season took place at Mr. P. S. Archibald's, last Wednesday evening.

Mr. Harris intends taking quite a long continental tour, and will visit most of the principal cities of Europe before his return. His many friends join in wishing him a delightful trip and a safe return. I am happy to say that Mrs. and Miss Cooke have been restored to us at last. They reached home last Thursday, both looking too well and too happy to have been detained across the border against their will. But be that as it may we are all delighted to have them back again, though I have heard that they are thinking of leaving us again this week, tempted by the attractions of the carnival. I must not neglect to mention a fashion that has become very popular lately in Moncton, especially among the upper classes, and which promises to rival the short lived, but extraordinary popularity of the far famed "Grecian bend," only this fashion is an involuntary one, and consists of an abnormal swelling of the lower part of the face and throat, which makes. a cravat inconvenient and a collar an instrument of keenest torture. Need I say that it is called "mumps"? and is laughed at by all those who have not got it themselves? Positively it seems to have become epidemic and to be chiefly confined to grown people. So if my letter should fail to appear next week, it will be safe to conclude that
