PROGRESS SATURIALY

THE WORLD OF BOOKS.

The Magazines.

There is a remarkably strong and striking story in Scribner's Magazine for August, by Prof. H. H. Boyesen, entitled "A Pagan Incantation." It is entirely new in material and we need say nothing of its prose-style, for Professor Boyesen's style is too wellknown to require comment. "Form in Lawn Tennis," by Dr. James Dwight, will find many interested readers. Robert Louis Stevenson, that master of prose, gives us chapter x. of his continued story. "The New Poverty," by George Parsons Lathrop, hits off capitally some of the weaknesses of haps the most salient features of the numour nineteenth century society. Miss Guiney's nocturne doesn't quite satisfy us, perhaps because Miss Guiney has taught us to expect work from her pen far above the ordinary. Brander Matthews contributes a series of sketches, " Memories"; Robert Grant, "Tarpon Fishing in Florida"; Henry Morton, "Electricity in Lighting"; Benjamin Norton, "How to Feed a Railway;" and E. C. Martin, "A Monster of my Acquaintance." There is a good deal of Tennyson in this number-an engraving of the poet himself as the frontispiece ; "Tennyson's First Flight," by Henry Van Dyke, and a paper on "The Two Locksley Halls," by T. R. Lonnsbury.

With the August number, The Forum · completes its second volume. The leading article in this number is by John G. Carlisle, speaker of the house of representatives, on "The Republican Program." He explains and defends the Cleveland administration. "The Transformation of New England" is dealt with by Mr. A. L. Bartlett, superintendent of schools at Haverhill, Mass. In an article on "Prohibition and License," Senator Ingalls, of Tweed and Yarrow," with its beautiful en-Kansas, concludes that license of the liquor traffic has in the main been a failure, and he shows that prohibition does prohibit in Kansas. "The Defects of the Coroner or old. Then there is a touching melo-System" are pointed out by Dr. S. W. Abbott, of Boston. Mr. Edward Atkinson sums up his economic theories by a demonstration that every man, under existing conditions, can earn all that his character and industry fairly entitle him to have. Judge James M. Love, of Iowa, makes a comparative study of the governments of the United States and Canada, to the great advantage of the former. Mr. Walter Lewin, in a review of the main purposes to which fiction has been put, reviews American novels in a friendly spirit. and predicts the decline of the novel written for a religious or a psychological or a sensational purpose, and predicts "a return to Scott." Mr. Alfred H. Peters writes concerning "The Extinction of Leisure." The Forum Publishing Co., 253 Fifth Ave., N. Y. A genuine midsummer number is The Century for August, with its opening article on "The Stream of Pleasure-the River Thames," by the Pennells-husband and wife,-who have written about and minutely pictured that gay and thronged resort of boats and boaters. Little and big, there are 20 pictures in this article alone. Mrs. Foote's "Atternoon at a Ranch" has also a midsummer air; and all inland vacationists will find matter of interest in Dr. Weir Mitchell's profusely illustrated article "The Poison of Serpents,"a line of inquiry in which he has made important discoveries. George W. Cable "The 'Haunted House' in Royal Street"; Edward Bellamy, author of Looking Back-Romance"; and in this number is begun | turned the hose where he was, and I guess a three-part story by Joel Chandler Harris ('Uncle Remus') entitled "The Old Bascom Place." The illustrations are by Kemble. The frontispiece is a portrait of Alfred Tennyson; and in connection with this portrait the Rev. Dr. Van Dyke gives the result of his study of Tennyson's use of the Bible, under the title of "The Bible in Tennyson." Dr. Van Dyke incidently discusses the relation of the English Bible | haveter trip him up and make him lame, to English literature. There is an unusual number of poems, including a long one by Robert Burns Wilson-"A Song of the Woodland spirit"; and shorter pieces by Harry Stillwell Edwards, Mrs. Moulton, Frank Dempster Sherman, Celia Thaxter. and others. Mr. James Russell Lowell's poem, "How I consulted the Oracle of the Goldfishes," covers nearly six pages of the Atlantic for August, and is the most noteworthy American poem printed for many a month. The goldfishes as he saw them as a child, as he sees them now, and the analogy between ly treated by H. W. P. and L. D.; H. W. P. being the disguise of Miss Harriet Waters Preston. Mr. Paul Lafleur has a paper on a poet of French Canada. The poet is Louis Frechette; there are a good many extracts from his poems and it is also interesting as a sketch of the attempt at a French Canadian literature in which Frechette seems to be the chief figure. "The German Boy at Leisure" shows us that the lad in the German gymnasium is not quite so overworked as one is accustomed to think. John Fisk has a remarkably good historical paper on "The French Alliance and the Conway Cabal." These are perber, but it also includes other valuable papers, and a review of Emerson's Concord life by his son which will be read with interest: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. Wide Awake for August 1s an open air number, full of things to be done out-ofdoors; geologizing (by Prof. Frederick Starr), boating (by Miss Guiney) and the making of wild-flower books (by Miss Harris). Mrs. White describes breadmaking, as the Boston public school-girls do it. The number is largely written by travellers and sight-seers. Mrs. General Fremont describes her "Camping near the Giant Trees" in the early California days. Miss Risley Seward, "In the Meadows at Trianon," writes of a somewhat peculiar visit she made to the famous playground of Marie Antoinette and her court, with a glimpse of those great Frenchmen, Thiers and Laboulaye. Mrs. Humphrey, in "Queen Mary's Child-Garden," gives an account of a day she spent last year on the islet of Inchmahome where Mary, Queen of Scots, abode for a time Mr when she was a little girl. "Fishing in gravings of the historic river scenery, is a most readable fishing paper by Andrew Lang and will set all anglers wild, young dious ballad by Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford of that saddest journeyer, John Howard Payne, the author of "Home, Sweet Home." $2.40 a year. D. Lothrop Company, publishers, Boston.

RICHIBUCTO.

JULY 29 .- For a better situation, hardly any seaside resort that I have seen can be compared to the "Beaches." The surroundings are fine, the fishing splendid, and for boating or bathing unsurpassed. The beach, although a little gravely, is easy, and mothers can, without fear, leave the little ones to amuse themselves in a cool and salty water. The lawns surrounding the house are laid out in a fine way. The tennis player, the croquet pusher and even the base baller have any amount of ground (properly looked after) to exercise their agility, and to batt at home, in a short run, if a storm shows itself up. The garden and open places have been surrounded by trees, planted under the personal supervision of Mr. Contre, of Montreal, who says that nothing can be compared to the air of Richibucto, specially for dispeptics-having gained on an average of three pounds a week since residing at the "Beaches." I may add that he had given up the idea of ever seeing falling leaves, when his good luck brought him there. The proprietor, Mr. E. E. Phair, seems to be regularly on the qui vive for the special comfort of his guests, and his good humor, intercepted with several murmurs of the songs of the day, seems to give an air of gaiety to the house, which is not always found in our Canadian watering places. I may add that the house is kept clean, the table neat and full of the delicacies, so rarely found, the fishes.

Guests seem to enjoy themselves well, and for the last three seasons an American family have made the "Beaches" their headquarters in preference of all sea-side resorts they had visited, and I must say that they have visited every one in the U.S. and Canada.

I am delighted with my visit and hope to return again, as soon as my business will permit me to do so. The office is under the direct supervision of Mr. Phair's brother, and the guests are properly looked after by him.

He Washes a Fly Off a Young Man's Collar Button and Has to Go out the Back Way. Things is kinder dull now, and my parents said what they'se glad when last Sunday come, 'cause they never put in sitch a week what was so tryin' on the nerves, but I guess they don't know what fun is. I'm jist now like pa was when the consterbil was tryin' to catch him fur that bill what he wouldn't pay the dry goods man, 'cause he said it was all ma's extravagance, and he hadter climb over the back fence every time he went to town, for the consterbil was watchin' for him across the street. I got ter climb out that way, too, when I want to go out, 'cause when I'se washin' our winders with the hose, the young dood what works in the grocery store comes along and said I couldn't squirt a hose, so there was a fly on his collar-button, and 'cause I tried to drownd gives the true and extraordinary history of it with the hose, you'd think it was the grocery fellar what was drowned, he spluttered so, 'cause it went down his neck, I ward, has a short story called "A Positive guess. He tried to rush at me, ony I he thort it was better fur him to run. It took all the the starch outer his shirt bosom, anyhow He's too much of a dood to roll barrels of flour in a grocery store, anyhow, and Bill thinks so, too. He's watchin' for me now, and I haveter go round the other way, 'cause I can't always take the hose with me. I guess if he don't git tired, though, what Bill will so's he can't run, 'cause climbin' out the way I do is gittin' a chestnut.

> All our visitors is gone, and pa hadter give the feller from Nover Scosher enough money to buy his ticket, 'cause the blame fool tried to make money with a shell and pea man, for he thort 'cause he's always good at guessin' at church bazaars what he could guess where the pea was, too. Bill and me's goin' to learn how to do that trick now, so's when anything comes again, we kin have a try.
